Academy Awards Show Complete With Streaker

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Sting," Glenda Jackson and Jack Lemmon were the big winners at the 46th Academy Awards presentation, which had something for everybody. Even a streaker.

"The Sting" stung four other box office favorites, most prominently "The Exorcist," and collected seven Oscars, including best picture of 1973. Lemmon, tortured garment maker of "Save the Tiger," and Miss Jackson, the English lady on a swinging vacation in "A Touch of Class," won top acting honors in the awards Tuesday night. It was a second Oscar for both.

"The Exorcist," which won two Oscars, was an early favorite in the race for best picture. But its shock and violence seemed to turn off many of the Academy voters, who are predominantly mature and longstanding members of the film community.

They seem to prefer a standard and trouble-free film like "The Sting," the stylish tale of a mammoth confidence game in Chicago.

Both "The Exorcist" and "The Sting" had been nominated for 10 awards.

In addition to best picture, "The Sting" won Oscars for George Roy Hill's direction and David S. Ward's screenplay. Julia Phillips shared producing honors with her husband, Michael, and former actor Tony Bill, becoming the first woman producer to win Hollywood's biggest prize.

Youth and age were served in the supporting acting categories. John Houseman, 71, the heartless Harvard professor of "The Paper Chase," and Tatum O'Neal, 9, the cigarettesmoking confidence girl of "Paper Moon," won in their first film roles.

The awards ceremony was enlivened by a totally nude 33-year-old man who dashed across the stage before the Music Center audience as David Niven prepared to introduce Elizabeth Taylor.

The nudity was not seen by viewers tuned in to the nationally televised awards ceremony.

The streaker identified himself as Robert Opel, a Hollywood advertising man. He said his streak was "a hell of a way to launch a career as a comic."

Lemmon, 49, the Harvard graduate who won a supporting Oscar in 1955 for "Mister Roberts," responded emotionally to his award. He commented pointedly about actors who had criticized the award. He said he felt it was "one hell of an honor, and I am thrilled."

"Save the Tiger" was his fourth

nomination as best actor.

Miss Jackson, 39, was making a film in Rome and was unable to accept her second Oscar. It was claimed by Mel Frank, coauthor and director/producer of "A Touch of Class." Miss Jackson won her first Oscar in 1970 for "Women In Love."

Houseman, veteran Broadway and Hollywood producer and now head of the Juilliard School for Dramatics in New York's Lincoln Center, performed his first screen role in "The Paper Chase."

"For the first time in a long and tumultuous life, I am almost speechless — but not quite," said the urbane Houseman.

His award was popular with the trade audience, as was that of perky Tatum O'Neal, who upstaged her father, Ryan, in "Paper Moon." Dressed in a stylish satin tuxedo with high heels, she thanked her director, Peter Bogdanovich, and her father.

"Day For Night," Francois Truffaut's story of the travails of making a movie, won the Oscar as best foreign language film.

The best song was "The Way We Were," from the movie of the same name, with music by Marvin Hamlisch and lyrics by Alan and Marilyn Bergman. Hamlisch also won Oscars for his scores for "The Sting" and "The Way We Were."

The telecast was a full and sometimes deadening three hours, but as usual, the show had its touching and dramatic moments.

Two standing ovations were accorded to veteran superstars Katharine Hepburn and Groucho Marx. Miss Hepburn, still lovely but tremulous of voice, presented the Irving G. Thalberg Memorial Award for consistent high production to Lawrence Weingarten, who made some of her best comedies.

Groucho, 83 and looking it, appeared on stage to accept an honorary Oscar and the Academy's homage for himself and his zany brothers, stars of classic comedies of the 1930s and 1940s.

"I wish Harpo and Chico could have been here to share this great award," the comic remarked. He said he also wished the award could be shared by his long-time dowager foil, the late Margaret Dumont.

"Most of all I want to thank my mother, because without her none of us would have been anything," said Groucho. He also paid tribute to his manager-girl friend, Erin Fleming, "who makes my life worth living. She understands all my jokes."

Pompidou Mourned

PARIS — (AP) — France today faced the prospect of a fierce election battle following the sudden death of President Georges Pompidou.

Pompidou, the republic's president since June 20, 1969, died Tuesday night.

Premier Pierre Messmer summoned government ministers to a meeting today to make arrangements for Pompidou's funeral. Informed sources said it would be a private ceremony restricted to his immediate family, with burial at Orvilliers, the village southwest of Paris where Pompidou had a country retreat.

An official memorial service will be held in Paris Saturday, probably in the Cathedral of Notre Dame, the sources said.

Pompidou returned from a weekend at Orvilliers to his private apartment on the Ile St. Louis in the Seine early Tuesday, and apparently he died there.

A one-sentence announcement from the Elysee Palace said the 62-year-old president died at 9 p.m. The cause of death was not announced, but there had been widespread reports for the past year that he was suffering from some form of cancer.

Since early last year, his face and body had swelled up and he had fatigued easily. But official reports usually said he had influenza.

At Pompidou's death, Alain Poher, president of the Senate, automatically became interim president. The 65-year old Centrist also served as interim president briefly after the resignation of the late Charles de Gaulle in 1969. In the election that followed, he lost to Pompidou, the Gaullist candidate.

Poher must arrange a presidential election within 20 to 35 days of Pompidou's death, or between April 22 and May 7. The new president will be elected for a full seven-year term, not to serve out the two years and two months remaining in Pompidou's term.

Pompidou, the son of a southern schoolteacher, came to office in 1969 as the heir to De Gaulle and his strong presidency. He had served for six years as De Gaulle's premier, but he lacked his mentor's towering personality.

His popularity decreased in recent months as France was battered by economic hardships and the energy crisis.

His death left the Gaullist camp divided, with no clear successor. The front runners were believed to be Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing, who is not formally a Gaullist, and former Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas.

Giscard d'Estaing, 48, is the leader in public opinion polls. A brilliant economist, he leads the small Independent Republican party which has been solidly allied with the Gaullists.

Chaban-Delmas had been preparing to run for the presidency in 1976, when Pompidou's term would have expired, since his ouster as premier in July 1972. He is expected to get the support of the Gaullists.

The Communists and Socialists are expected to back the Socialist party's secretary-general and perennial candidate, Francois Mitterand. He would profit if Chaban-Delmas and Giscard d'Estaing split the Gaullists.

Pompidou is survived by his widow, the former Claude Cahour, and one son, Alain, a doctor.

Major Bills Before Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State lawmakers try to wind up business for a month's recess today with final action expected on energy, farm tax, and campaign financing bills.

However, an 11th hour deadlock on the campaign financing bill caused tempers to flare Tuesday, and some observers are saying that the embattled legislation is in jeopardy.

The dispute came among members of a Senate-House conference committee over whether the penalty — prohibiting a candidate from running again — for a candidate filing his financial statement after the deadline should be cut from five years to one year.

Sen. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake, conceded that a Senate colleague, Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Middletown, would be the main benefactor of such an amendment. But he said "there are about 600 (under the penalty) statewide, many of whom filed late because they were confused and did not get proper instructions from their boards of election."

Matia, chief sponsor of the bill and chairman of the conference committee, was joined in his insistence on the "Lukens amendment" by Sen. Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland. It takes two members of each house on a six-member conference committee to resolve differences.

House Speaker A.G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, lashed out at Matia and Van Meter for "trying to kill that bill. If those two senators get it done, they will be blasted not only by the Democrats, but by their fellow Republicans."

House Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, said House Republicans are against the amendment "not because of Lukens, but because we simply think none of that language belongs in the bill. Some of us think it is unconstitutional because it gets into retroactive law."

Lukens was ruled off Ohio ballots for failure to file his personal campaign financial statement within 45 days after the November 1972 election. The language Matia wants inserted would have the one-year penalty begin with the effective date of the bill, restoring Lukens' eligibility and that of others in the same situation in time for 1976 elections.

The conference committee planned to meet again today, but there was no indication anyone was ready to give in. An obvious alternative would be for the committee to dissolve itself and for leaders to name another one in its place.

Meanwhile, the Senate planned to act today on a compromise bill creating a state energy commission and gearing up the state for possible future shortages. It also would be the first to act on the campaign financing bill if an agreement can be reached. The Senate approved Tuesday the bill that gives Ohio's farmers a break on their property taxes. It comes up today in the House.

Earlier, the House approved 87-7 and sent to the Senate a major bill beefing up the state's fire protection laws. It replaces the state fire marshal with a 10-member commission and empowers it to set various safety standards, including those that regulate the flammability of consumer products.

The measure also requires training and licensing of volunteer as well as paid firefighters, and provides that local subdivisions can set standards more stringent than those set forth in the state fire code. The volunteers would have to have a minimum of 30 hours of training.

Major floor action in the Senate was 30-2 approval of the bill extending property tax relief to farmers. It provides that farm lands may be taxed on the basis of its agricultural use rather than market value.

SLA Says Patricia Hearst Release Details Set Soon

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The parents of kidnaped Patricia Hearst say they believe the Symbionese Liberation Army will keep its promise to reveal by Friday where and when it will free her.

In a typed letter delivered Tuesday to the editor of an underground newspaper, along with a dozen long-stemmed roses and a comic greeting card, the SLA said "further communication will follow in the following 72 hours" giving "the state, city and time of release of the prisoner."

"Of course we're very pleased to learn that the SLA will release Patricia," Randolph A. Hearst said in a statement to newsmen at his home in suburban Hillsborough.

"I'm sure they will," added Hearst, editor and president of the San Francisco Examiner. "I've been sure all along that she was well. And if they say they'll release her, I believe it."

The message, dated March 29, was delivered to John Bryan at the office of the biweekly Phoenix which he edits. It broke a 23-day silence by the terrorist SLA, which dragged the 20-year-old college coed from her Berkeley apartment on Feb. 4.

It was unclear when the SLA's self-imposed deadline would expire, because a florist delivered the communique with the flowers 17 hours late.

Kalliopi Voliakakis, owner of Crete Florists, said she told a smartly dressed brown-haired young woman who ordered the roses Monday and enclosed the letter that she would deliver them no later than 6 p.m. But Mrs. Voliakakis said her car broke down and she wasn't able to make the delivery until late Tuesday morning.

The last SLA message on March 10 denounced the Hearsts for allegedly failing to meet demands in good faith and included a stinging taped rebuke by Miss Hearst in which she accused her father of "washing his hands" of the case.

The new communique was accompanied by half of a California driver's license bearing Miss Hearst's signature and most of her photograph. The state Department of Motor Vehicles said in Sacramento that details on the license match its records of Miss Hearst's license, including the initial of the issuing clerk.

The Park Board was authorized to advertise for bids for construction of a new basketball court at Ted Lewis Park and for bids for resurfacing three tennis courts at the park. Funds for this improvement were allocated at the March 19 meeting of council.

An ordinance authorizing the director of public service to advertise for bids for an aerial bucket truck was held for a third reading. The truck, also equipped with a utility bed will replace a 1964 ladder truck, a 1961 van truck and a 1948 dump truck. The (Continued on Page 2)

Council Improves Fringe Benefits For City Employees

Circleville City Council Tuesday approved legislation improving fringe benefits to city employees.

The fringe benefits are part of the wage package negotiated primarily by the Circleville Fire Department in talks with council earlier this year.

Legislation granted death benefits, added vacation, improved hospitalization, defined paid holidays to all full-time city employees.

The ordinance granting death benefits to the surviving spouses or other heirs of employees killed in the line of duty or who die within six months of injuries received in the line of duty was approved unanimously. City Solicitor William Stevenson informed council that in individual instances exceptions to the six-months deadline could be granted.

The survivors benefits are to equal one year's salary. The paid vacation schedule for all city employees is now two weeks after one year, three weeks after five years and four weeks after 10 years.

The paid holiday schedule for all city employees is New Year's Day, President's Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Veterans Day, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas. A working day is defined in the ordinance as eight hours for all departments except the fire department and for them it is 24 hours. (City firemen are on duty 24 hours and off 48.

Those employees required to work a holiday will be entitled to a day off at some other time.

Legislation was passed in which the city will pay all the employee's medical insurance but not for his family. This will more than double the amount paid by the city which has been paying $7 a month for each employee.

Because of the number of employees in the fire department who will benefit from the improved vacation and holiday schedule, it became necessary to increase the size of the department according to Councilman David Goldschmidt. An ordinance adding one lieutenant and one fireman to the department was approved.

Authorized strength of the department is now one chief, four lieutenants and 13 firemen.

The wage increases and fringe benefits granted to all employees of the city will cost an additional $40,000 according to Councilman Goldschmidt who is chairman of finance committee. This figure does not include the cost of salaries for added manpower for the fire department he stated.

In addition to the fringe benefits legislation, City Council members authorized the Ohio Department of Highway Safety to install advance warning signs at all railroad crossings in the city. The installation of the signs will not obligate the city financially. However, the city will be responsible for maintenance of the signs.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — A modest technical rally nudged stock market prices higher today in light trading.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 3.05 at 849.66, while gainers clung to a very slight lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the advance seemed to be based in large part on buying by traders attracted by the depressed prices of many issues. The slow pace of trading showed that many investors were still cautious because of high interest rates, inflation, and other worries, brokers said.

Uniroyal, unchanged at 9 1/4, was the Big Board's most-active stock. An 87,800-share block traded at that price.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was up .16 at 96.48.

Other Big Board issues on the active list included Polaroid, down 2 at 59 1/2.

The Amex volume leader was Simplex Wire & Cable, up 1/4 at 23 1/4.

The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks inched up .06 to 49.87.

Levy Plans Made By Logan Elm Board

The Logan Elm Board of Education met in regular session Monday night to develop plans for providing information for the upcoming operating levy. The levy will be submitted to voters on the May primary ballot.

Routine business conducted by the board at the meeting included the regretful acceptance of two resignations. Ruth Beckine, English teacher, submitted her resignation to the board stating she was going into another field of employment. Math instructor Robert Eaton cited similar reasons for his resignation which will be effective April 12. Eaton told the board he could not make a living on the teaching salary and was also seeking another field.

Notice of allocations for the fiscal year 1974 Title III funds amounting to $1,332 was acknowledged. The board directed local superintendent John Henn to submit a formal project application prior to the May 10 deadline.

Several informative reports were given to the board pertaining to the metropolitan athletic league with no interest indicated in joining this proposed expansion.

A letter from the Northwood Schools warned board members of the potential danger of several bills being considered by the state legislature. Northwood School District is a former "riches to rags" district, affected by a situation similar to the one which prevails in the Logan Elm District. However, the Northwood citizens did rally behind their schools and pass a ten mill additional levy.

Snow, Wind Hit Rockies, Plains Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An April snowstorm hit the central Rockies and the west-central Plains today, piling up to 6 inches in parts of Wyoming.

The heaviest snow was concentrated in Wyoming and Colorado, with Laramie, Wyo. receiving 6 inches during the night. Denver was whitened by 3 inches. Portions of the Dakotas and Kansas also were dusted by snow, and the storm was expected to spread into the northern Plains and upper Michigan.

In other parts of Kansas and in Oklahoma, blowing dust whipped up by heavy winds reduced visibilities. Tornadoes touched down Tuesday evening at the Texas towns of Benbrook and Wichita Falls, causing some damage.

Thunderstorms crackled through the southern Plains, with rainfall scattered from South Dakota to Arkansas and severe thunderstorm warnings posted for parts of Missouri.

Warnings for tornadoes, large hail and severe thunderstorms were posted for states from the Gulf Coast to Missouri. The states, covered by cloudy skies and some recuperating from a rash of tornadoes and adverse weather earlier this week, included Mississippi, Kentucky, Arkansas and Missouri.

In contrast, the Atlantic Coast was under mostly clear skies, which also favored the Southwest from the southern Rockies to California. Skies over the Pacific Northwest remained overcast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 79 at Key West, Fla., to 21 at Ely, Nev.

Vehicle Stolen In Downtown Area

Addison F. Sanders, 355 Lewis Road, informed city police that his 1967 car was stolen in the downtown area Tuesday afternoon.

He said he parked his car at the rear of 115 W. Main St. about 2 p.m. and the vehicle was gone at 4:10 p.m. Both sets of keys to the auto were in his possession.

decision reached by the board. Information requested from the county auditor's office has not yet been received.

Threat of loss of funding for the vocational agriculture program has caused the board to consider some means of providing adequate facilities. The loss would amount to approximately $14,000 from foundation funds.

In other action, the board approved the list of graduating seniors. A small mower replacement was also approved for purchase for the Pickaway Township School.

Dale Wolfe, representing the Washington Township Parent Teacher Organization, requested permission for the group to replace the wooden steps in the Washington school. Permission was granted by the board with a vote of appreciation given to the PTO for its concern.

A favorable report was given concerning the juke box which was placed free of charge by the student council in the high school cafeteria. It is used during the lunch period and causes no distraction in the building.

The board voted to extend the meeting until April 25 to permit adequate time to discuss teaching contracts. All the principals will be present at the meeting to make recommendations.

The remainder of Monday's meeting was utilized by completing plans for promoting passage of the levy. Board members Virginia Wood, Frank Seimer and Roger Hobbie will speak to the Parent Teacher Organizations in the district. Don Bower and Robert Bowers will help obtain finances.

David Evans was appointed chairman of the finance committee and any one wishing to help should contact any of the board members.

ordinance, if passed at the next council meeting, would authorize the director of public service either to sell the three trucks at public auction or to trade them in on a new truck.

Councilman John Jenkins of the city's second ward has questioned the need for a truck equipped with an aerial bucket.

Two salary ordinances were held for further study. One increased the salary of clerk for the city auditor to $2.55 per hour. Councilman at Large Tom Wells voted against suspension of rules which would have enabled the city's legislators to act on the bill at last night's meeting. Wells indicated he wanted more time to study the proposal to see if it is in line with wage increases granted to other employees of the city last month.

Also held for a first reading was an ordinance authorizing a pay increase from $1200 to $1500 for the city safety director. Fourth Ward Councilman Dixie Watters voted against a suspension of rules because he felt the percentages of increase in the safety director's salary was much greater than for all other city employees and he wanted more time to consider the pay hike.

COUNCIL BRIEFS

Had it not been for a 50-minute recess during which council members discussed pending legislation, last night's meeting would have been relatively brief considering the large amount of legislation before the city's governing body. The meeting began at 8 p.m. and ended at 9:55 p.m.

Chief of Police Robert Temple announced the resignation of another officer from his department, leaving the force five men under its authorized strength. He said he has been notified another member of the force has been accepted by Chillicothe Department and anticipates a resignation from this man.

So many members of the police department have resigned to accept positions at other cities, the local force is becoming known as a training academy. The city has invested between $600 and $700 in training each man. This does not include his salary while being trained. In spite of the recent pay hike, the city wage scale is much below other departments — $1,000 annually below Grove City, for instance.

A petition signed by 18 residents or property owners on Rosewood Ave., have signed a petition asking for curbs and gutters on both sides of the street which bounds Ted Lewis Park. The petition was read at council meeting and referred to the service committee for appropriate action.

Service Director Atwood Jones announced an operator is being trained for the city's street sweeper.

Hit-Skip Driver Sentenced

Larry Eugene Fetherolf, Route 4, was among the five persons appearing in common pleas court this morning.

The April grand jury returned a secret indictment Monday against Fetherolf charging him with aggravated vehicular homicide. Fetherolf pleaded guilty to the hit and run slaying of 15-year-old David Duffy, Kingston.

Judge William Ammer sentenced Fetherolf to 2-5 years in the Ohio State Reformatory for Men at Mansfield. Further order of the court stated that the sentence does not begin until sentences passed on him in Circleville Municipal Court were served.

Breaking and entering and trespassing on the lands of another to commit a felony were heard against Paul Kuhn, Chillicothe, last week. At his arraignment, Kuhn pleaded guilty to the charges and appeared this morning for sentencing. The court sentenced him to 1-5 years at Mansfield.

Jerry Conner was sentenced to Mansfield for 1-5 years on a charge of grand larceny. The court suspended the prison term and ordered Conner committed to Orient State Institute. Upon release from Orient, Conner will begin a three year probation.

Indicted Monday by the grand jury for gross sexual imposition, William Hill, Williamsport, appeared before Judge Ammer today on the charge. He was ordered committed to the Columbus State Hospital for 30 days for observation, examination and psychiatric report.

A not guilty plea was entered by Beverly Lester, Columbus, for carrying a concealed weapon. The case was continued to be heard at a later date.

A Page Of Opinion

Ignored By History

Political administrations generally are rated by the public and later by history according to how active they were and what tumultuous events occurred during their terms of office. It is a case of the activists versus those who attempt to stand pat.

Ask most Americans for a list of their favorite Presidents, and inevitably the names will be the activists—the two Roosevelts, Lincoln, Washington, Jefferson and perhaps a name or two of more contemporary note. All men who presided while the nation was at war or was in the midst of a major social or economic upheaval.

Ask for a list of the least popular, and the Presidents who maintained a low profile will head that list, if their names can be recalled. Men like Tyler, Taylor, Buchanan and Fillmore sometimes are mentioned in this regard. History may be unfair.

When Fillmore declined an Oxford honorary degree on grounds his achievements were not worthy of the honor, he demonstrated a humility not often seen in high office. Which may or may not explain why several Millard Fillmore clubs have been formed on college campuses.

Superpowered Missionary

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — My favorite missionary to the United States, a newly-developed land so far as religious proselytism from older countries are concerned, is Fr. John Lee. He is a lively little partly-blind Chinese priest dedicated to converting heathen Americans to the glories of contributing to Fu-Jen, a fine inter-denominational university on Taiwan.

Like his brother missionaries, Fr. Lee has suffered many rebuffs and mortifications. He has found countless aborigines who never heard of Fu-Jen U. and give every indication that they don't want to hear about it. But the industrious little missionary remains cheerfully optimistic that we'll one day come around. Or, better still, come across.

Fr. Lee, who doesn't have the time or money to get new eyeglasses, has been especially busy these days — shaking hands with lampposts and trying to walk through imaginary doors. He has tickets to sell for an April 6 charity get-together at New York Chinatown's Hwayuan restaurant honoring his hero, Paul Cardinal Yipin. The Cardinal, a classic Chinese Prince of the Church, stands 6-3, is turning 80, speaks half a dozen languages, and had a price put on his noble head by both the Japanese and the Chinese Communists, is president of Fu-Jen U.

Fr. Lee may not be the best ecclesiastical pitchman now working the U.S. but he probably is the jauntiest. I asked him to write me a short account of his life and times, and he has generously sent me the following, which is written in a rare language named Verbatim:

(Editors: CQ all the way, please.)

"Father John Lee, born and raised in north China near Peking. Calls himself a Chinese Yankee. Educated in north China in philosophy and most of his theology studies. Spent last school year in Hankow, south China where rice was common diet. He lost twenty pounds in one semester because he could not eat rice. People in the north do not eat rice, only the southerners do. He used to say: I had more rice in the States than I had in China. Ordained in Kenrick Seminary, St. Louis, Mo. by the later Cardinal Jos. Ritter. Completed his studies for master degree in social administration, Ph. D. in psychology in Loyola University, Chicago. Took care of the Chinese college students in midwest for five years, lectured in various states and conducted TV and Radio programs in Chicago as a news analyst for five years.

"When Pope John commissioned Paul Cardinal Yipin to reestablish Fu-Jen Catholic University in Taiwan, Father Lee was one of the first persons chosen by the cardinal to work for Fu-Jen. (Fu-Jen originally was founded by the American Benedictines in Peking and re-established in Taiwan. It now has nine thousand students enrolled in the six colleges. The school is under the auspices of the Catholic Church, but over 90 per cent of the students are not Catholic.) Father Lee's job has been P.R. and fund raising for Fu-Jen in the States. Fu-Jen Catholic University Foundation was organized. It's board directors consist of prominent people of all walks of life. Father Lee has been at the job for some fourteen years. When Peter Lind Hays asked him on his radio station program how much money he was looking for, he said: I accept one anything from a penny to a million. Any one who wishes to donate more than a million dollars, I would advise him to do two thing: to see his lawyer and his psychiatrist.

"He uses all the ways and means to raise funds, from selling chances on a Cadillac on the street corner and to running high price dinner parties. His friends call him the Chinese bandit. He considered the statement of Frank Flick, the Fu-Jen foundation's president a great complement: This little Chinaman picks your pocket, but you like it. When selling chances, he was unshamedly hollard: No tickie, no cady. He is not afraid to approach any one for a helping hand, from George Meany, president of AFL-CIO to the chairman of GMC. He remarks: I am

A 70-acre field of Gus Valentine, Pickaway Twp. farmer, was plowed in less than half a day by 20 of his farm neighbors who did the job for Valentine while he was recuperating from an appendectomy.

Council, in special session, passed and ordinance requiring persons, firms or corporations desiring to start a new salvage business or to move an existing salvage business to a new location, to first secure a $1,000 license to be paid annually.

The abandoned three-room brick school building in Tarlton was to be sold at public auction. It was situated on a 2.17 acre tract of land.

The first scoopful of earth was moved in the construction of Pickaway County Memorial Lake and Park.

Circleville Board of Education received a proposal that a post of "athletic director" be created in the Circleville school system.

According to statistics received, Pickaway County was second in Ohio in corn production in 1948 and averaged 56 bushels to the acre.

not ashamed to beg, because people know I am not begging for myself. I am no body. I rely on the goodness in people's hearts only. No one can be nice to me and get away with it. The annual Fu-Jen Fun Festival at Jimmy Wong's Restaurant in Chicago has been most popular. Any body who is some body wants to show up. The Chinese New Year's Parties in Chicago and New Year are well attended by American fun seekers. The dinner in honor of Joseph P. Tonelli, president of United Paperworkers International Union netted several hundred thousand dollars. We are in need of another couple hundred thousand dollars to complete our athletic building under construction. We hate to stop construction. We may have to, if no fund is coming in, he sadly remarks. I know I haven't got a Chinaman's chance, but God and American people are good to me. "Father Lee considers his boss Cardinal Yipin his sales man. The cardinal is 6-3 with four doctorates and ability of speaking many languages with all charm of a prince is our best advertisement His Eminence comes to U.S. a couple times a year and makes appearances on important functions.

"In siminary, I used to think the priests who celebrated their 25th anniversary, have one foot in the grave. I am up; there now. As a result of a rare eye disease retinitis pigmentosa, he has very poor vision, but he consoles himself with: Thank God, I am not completely blind. As long as Chinese youth in need and I am able to work, I will do my best."

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

For the first time in four years the people of Circleville and vicinity will not be able to enjoy fishing for trout in the old canal. Why, we do not know. It is my opinion that the canal should be restored and stocked, especially for older people who enjoy fishing in their leisure time but are unable to go elsewhere.

Stocking should be not only with trout, but bass and crappie. People have enjoyed fishing the canal for years, even though it has been an eyesore, simply because the state will not do anything about cleaning it out. It is a known fact that trout will live year round in the waters and with the money taken in from sportsman in the area, some should be put back into restoration of the canal as an historical site since this is one of the small portions of Ohio Erie Canal left.

Some of the nicest fish I have ever caught have been taken from the mile and one half of water still left. It is high time to take action and I would like to know if others feel the same.

Sincerely,
DALE O. ROGERS
Rt. 2

Dear Editor:

Prior to January 1, 1974, the blind, aged, and disabled were on the State Welfare Program and were assured of their burial in case of death.

On January 1, 1974 they were switched to the Supplemental Security Income Plan sponsored by the government. They were denied of burial unless:

1. They had insurance to cover their burial.
 2. They were a veteran and eligible, then they would receive part of their burial expense.
 3. They drew Social Security Benefits, then they would receive part of their burial expenses.
 4. Or if some good samaritan would foot the bill out of his pocket, of course.
- Why you may ask? The answer is simple. There are no funds available through the Supplemental Security Income Plan, or any other plan to bury these blind, aged, and disabled citizens of the United States of America. How do I know? We experienced this shocking situation, when we tried to bury our brother who was disabled.

Sincerely,
WOODROW HALLEY-

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, April 3, the 93rd day of 1974. There are 272 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1865, during the Civil War, the Union Army occupied the former Confederate capital of Richmond, Va.

On this date:

In 1776, Harvard College conferred the honorary degree of doctor of laws on Gen. George Washington.

In 1860, Pony Express service began between St. Joseph, Mo., and Sacramento, Calif.

In 1936, Bruno Hauptmann was executed for the kidnapping and murder of the baby of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh.

In 1941, British troops evacuated the Libyan port of Bengasi during the World War II.

In 1948, the United States allocated more than $5 billion in aid for 16 European countries.

Ten years ago: The United States and Panama agreed to resume severed diplomatic relations and seek a prompt settlement in their conflict over the Panama Canal.

Five years ago: Thousands of Illinois National Guardsmen were mobilized to put down violent demonstrations in Chicago on the eve of the first anniversary of the assassination of Martin Luther King.

One year ago: President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam ended two days of talks with President Nixon at San Clemente, Calif., with a promise of continued American economic aid.

Today's birthdays: Actor Marlon Brando is 50 years old. Actress Doris Day also is 50.

Thought for today: Every religion is good that teaches man to be good. — Thomas Paine, political philosopher and writer, 1737-1809.

Hearst Says Best Done

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — Randolph A. Hearst says a community coalition did its best to see that directions of his daughter's kidnappers were carried out during a $2 million food distribution.

But the Symbionese Liberation Army, a terrorist group that abducted Patricia Hearst Feb. 4, has given no indication whether the giveaway and the pledge of another $4 million to feed the poor meets a precondition it set for negotiations to free the 20-year-old University of California coed.

The SLA, estimated by authorities to number only about 25 youthful members, nominated the coalition to monitor the food program.

On Sunday the coalition broadcast a report critical of administration of the program, prompting a sharp reply from A. Ludlow Kramer, who organized the giveaway. He said that "in many instances, the coalition's help was not there."

Legion Members Aid Guardsmen

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP)—American Legion Post 374 here is campaigning for funds to aid defense of eight indicted former National Guardsmen.

The 555-member post commanded by Paul Gill also voted Monday night to oppose the indictment, returned by a federal grand jury last Friday and charging the eight with violating the civil rights of 13 Kent State University students shot by guardsmen during a May 4, 1970, antiwar protest demonstration.

Meanwhile, American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars state chiefs said they looking into development of a policy statement.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I've had a severe drinking problem and developed cirrhosis of the liver.

I almost had to die before I stopped alcohol. Now that I have stopped I wonder if it is ever possible for the liver to become normal again.

Mr. T. V. L., Wash.

Dear Mr. L.:

First, let me congratulate you on your accomplishment in giving up drinking.

It is interesting how often people totter on the brink of destruction and tempt fate before acknowledging that alcohol, tobacco and overeating can be destructive to their health. When once the situation becomes critical, many people then attempt to buy back the health that they had taken for granted.

Cirrhosis of the liver is a condition in which scar tissue forms and interferes with the important functioning of this organ.

There are a number of causes for the different kinds of cirrhosis. Alcohol is a predominant cause.

The liver is probably the most remarkable organ in the body. It is a chemical factory that cleans out the toxic poisons that circulate in the blood.

One of the most amazing aspects of the liver is that it can continue to function for such a long time, hand-capped by the scar tissue of cirrhosis.

There undoubtedly is a good portion of your liver that is still functioning, and will continue to do so in the absence of alcohol.

There are now many excellent liver function tests, and X-ray scanning methods that determine the liver capacity. It would give you great comfort if these tests were done and you were to learn that, even in the presence of cirrhosis of a liver that will never be completely normal you will still again continue to be healthy, functioning and productive.

What is meant by a strangulated hernia? Is an operation the only way to cure it?

Mr. J. J., Va.

Dear Mr. J.:

A strangulated hernia is one of the complications of a long-neglected hernia.

Occasionally, a loop of intestine becomes caught in the hernial opening. Soon the blood supply is cut off because of the swelling, and the bowel no longer can be returned to its normal position. This is known as "strangulation."

Sometimes the bowel can, with gentle pressure, be pushed back. In most instances, surgery becomes necessary.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Edson Gould is an elder statesman among securities analysts, a forecaster who has made some notably accurate estimates and whose word sometimes is taken as gospel. He is also considered a bear.

Gould, 72, has been dour in his outlook since the mid-1960s, when he suggested an end had come to a bull market that pushed the Dow Jones industrial average from 92.69 points in 1942 to more than 1,000 in 1966.

Since then the average has never substantially or for any length of time exceeded that figure. It dipped as low as 631 in 1970 and rose to 1,067 early in 1973, before descending to its present range of 840 to 850 points.

Gould maintains it will break out of that range, however, and in both directions. After a decided drop, perhaps to under 700 points late this year or very early in 1975, he foresees the beginning of a major bull market.

The bull's first steps will be a bit shaky, in Gould's view. He believes there might be a turnaround, but not a very bad one, in 1976. Then he expects the ascent to resume in 1977 and 1978 and to erupt to 3,000 to 5,000 points in the 1980s.

Assuring an incredulous listener that such a jump wasn't unprecedented, Gould recalled the post-World War II advance, which was even larger in percentage, and an earlier leap that brought the average from 40.52 in 1932 to 195 in 1937.

But before those jagged graph lines pierce the financial stratosphere, "we're going to go through a hell of a lot of grief," says Gould, referring to his expectations of a decline this coming winter.

Why a decline? Gould explains that every major move in the market has three stages. When it rises it does so in steps, he insists. And when it falls it usually trips three times. It has already happened twice.

"In February 1966 the Dow reached 1,001 points," Gould relates, retrieving figures easily from a data bank mind.

"In October 1966 it fell to 735. In December 1968 it rose to 994. In May 1970 it fell to 627. In January 1973 it reached 1,067. And now its getting down for the third time."

While believing in the threestep theory, Gould has enough battle scars to be wary of a possible fourth. By that time, though, even the most obstinate will be shaken out of the market. There'll be no more sellers.

"Thus, rather than regarding the near-term outlook for declining prices with worry, fear and trembling, the investor should welcome it ...," he related in "Findings & Forecasts," a publication he writes for Anametrics, Inc.

Gould's rationale for an advance is compounded of many factors. There are the numbers and the tracings of the graphs, which all technicians examine for signs and signals. There is mass psychology, which Gould feels the market reflects.

He believes no market can become bullish unless international monetary affairs are sound. The worst market fears, he declares, are war and a shaky monetary structure.

He deplores the welfare ethic but believes the country soon will show a renewed appreciation of the work ethic. "We've got a soft generation," he maintains. "Welfare is the opposite of free enterprise."

Mrs. Luce Raps Time Magazine For Reporting

NEW YORK (AP) — Clare Boothe Luce has accused Time magazine of unobjective reporting of Watergate.

Mrs. Luce is the widow of Henry R. Luce, cofounder of Time.

In a letter in the current issue of the magazine, Mrs. Luce noted that commentator Harry Reasoner of ABC-TV News had been critical of Time's Watergate coverage, and added:

"It was predictable that sooner or later Time would begin to pay the price for its editorial over-investment in the destruction of the President. That price, as Reasoner noted, is the loss of journalistic prestige and credibility. How ironic, and how fitting, that a distinguished media colleague and certified Nixon critic like Reasoner should blow the whistle on Time for its phobic Watergate reporting."

Railroad Crossing Repairs Slated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Transportation will take bids April 23 on improvements for 981 dangerous railroad crossings in northwestern Ohio.

The planned improvements include advance pavement markings and no-passing center lines and the erection of advance warning signs.

Estimated cost for the work is $385,000, the agency said.

The department said the proposed work is in Defiance, Paulding, Putnam, Hancock, Wyandot, Allen, Hardin and Van Wert counties.

The Circleville Kiwanis Club met 6:30 p.m. Monday at the Pickaway Arms with Fred Bower, president, presiding.

Tour of the Historical Society Museum was the topic of the program with Dr. Lloyd Sprouse, guest speaker.

The Circleville High School basketball and wrestling teams were special guests of the club including coaches Brent Bell, John Lawhorn and Dale Harger.

A five-minute lenten message was presented by the Rev. David Allard.

John Raterman announced the Easter Egg hunts will be April 13 at the Atwater and South Court Street

Schools and Ted Lewis Park. Members of the Kiwanis and Key Clubs will assist in the hunts.

Don Strawser was inducted as a new member by President Fred Bower. He was sponsored by Jim Shea.

Other business include a Board of Directors meeting tonight at the home of Forrest Croman, U. S. Route 22.

The Kiwanis club is sponsoring the Kiwanis relays April 13. Dave Gillespie needs 15 members to act as judges, timers and ticket takers.

The meals-on-wheels program started April 1 with the Kiwanians purchasing the first "hot-box" which is used to keep the meals hot while being distributed to different residences.

Nixon Tax Report Goes To Panel For Consideration

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional investigating committee received behind closed doors today a report by its staff believed to say President Nixon owes some $350,000 in income taxes.

Questions before the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation include whether to hear Nixon's tax lawyers' arguments that his deductions were proper and whether to make the staff report public before the committee decides whether to endorse it or make changes.

Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, said Nixon's attorneys have seen part of the report.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., vice chairman of the committee, told newsmen he understands the President's counsel has filed a brief supporting its position. He said he would not object to giving the attorneys an opportunity to state their case, but that there was some feeling in the committee that this could lead to other requests for appearances and so involve the committee in extended hearings.

Mills said he could not vote on approval of the report at today's meeting, adding, "I need at least a few hours to study it."

He said he is open-minded on releasing the staff report, meanwhile. Several other members took the same position.

The chairman, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., earlier had set a news conference for late today, apparently with the expectation of making the report public.

The White House meanwhile would not flatly confirm that Nixon still intends to pay additional taxes if the committee rules against him. Nixon had pledged to abide by the committee's findings.

Asked about this Tuesday, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said "We'll address this all at one time ... I'm not really prepared to go into this."

The controversy involves taxes Nixon paid on his income during his first term, 1969 through 1972. According to summaries of his returns, the total tax paid for the four years was $78,651 on income of $1,122,266. Of the total tax paid, $72,682 was for the first year, 1969.

Nixon's tax bill was reduced because of large deductions he claimed.

Of these, the most widely publicized was a donation of papers acquired during his pre-presidential years to the National Archives. Nixon has taken their appraised value of $576,000 as a charitable donation deduction.

A major question, however, has been whether the donation was legally concluded before July 25, 1969, effective date of a change in the law virtually eliminating such deductions.

Another question was whether Nixon should have declared and paid tax on a capital gain of $117,300 from the sale of part of his California property in 1970. Accountants have disagreed as to whether the transaction, in which he sold most of the land originally purchased but retained the house and 5.9 acres, did or did not result in a capital gain.

In December 1973 Nixon asked the joint committee to determine whether he owed additional taxes in connection with these two transactions and said he would abide by its decision.

The committee agreed to undertake an inquiry but would not limit it to those two items, insisting on reviewing Nixon's entire federal income tax operations for the four years.

Chamber Of Commerce Plans Clean-Up Week

Committee reports given at the Tuesday luncheon meeting of the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce included the plans of clean-up week.

Don Brandon, chairman of the Community Appearance committee, reported to the board of directors that clean-up week will be observed April 27 through May 1. The local girl and boy scouts, local merchants and the city clean-up crew will pool their efforts with the committee during that period to clean up the city.

It was also reported along the line of community appearance action that 400-500 pigeons were eradicated in the downtown area last month.

Meetings in Columbus of the Public Utilities Commission are continuing. The Ohio Chamber has petitioned to intervene in the hearing to determine whether gas companies and other utility companies should be allowed to belong to chambers of commerce.

In a report from the Area Development committee, Myron Haradon chairman said efforts to get the Environmental Protection Agency to speak at either a directors or committee meeting had been stifled. The agency had originally promised to talk with interested groups but can not be obtained.

A general discussion was held on the finances of the Chamber and the possible need to increase dues for next year. The present proposal of increase is a ten per cent across the board raise. The recommendation for an increase must be submitted by Aug. 1.

Wayne Miller, chairman of the Membership Committee, reported that 12 of last year's members have not yet paid their dues for this year. The total of these unpaid dues amounts to $800 which will have a profound effect on the budget and finances of the Chamber should these members not continue their membership. Board president Dan Hindy agreed to contact them.

Education Committee chairman Larry Plum reported on the committee's work in the area of consumer education. He said the first half of the program on the junior high level had been completed. The committee plans to work in depth on the television program "Your Future Is Now" when the second phase begins in June.

The program is produced to provide persons who do not have a high school diploma to watch specifically designed lessons to enable them to pass the equivalency test.

A newsletter is being published by the Public Relations committee to inform members of current happenings in the Chamber. All members are requested to get their news items to the committee as soon as possible.

Telegrams have been sent to Robert Taft, Howard Metzenbaum and William Harsha concerning the wage bill.

The Retail Merchants will hold their next promotion June 13-15. Chairman of the merchants committee, Keith Thomerson, also reported that WNRE holds a national Chamber News program at 6:15 p.m. with Arch Booth as moderator.

Considerations and proposals were discussed concerning the accident-prone intersection at Routes 22 and 104. One consideration of the Safety Committee was to rough the highway so motorists would know they were approaching an intersection.

Discussion was also held on the proposed house bill 1092 which concerns personal property assessment. Most of the school districts in the area

Sheriff's Report Shows Decrease In Accidents

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies investigated 77 accidents during the month of March, raising 1974's total to 259.

Two of the wrecks were fatalities with 22 persons injured in 17 accidents.

Speed was attributed to 13 accidents, reckless operation and failure to have the car under control were blamed for 10 each.

Statistics show that the time periods between 3 p.m. and 4 p.m. and 10 p.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday were the most hazardous to drivers.

Circleville and Pickaway Townships recorded 10 accidents, there were eight wrecks each in Darby and Wayne Townships.

The office logged 98 offense reports during March, 32 for theft, 30 for breaking and entering, 28 for vandalism, four sex offenses and four miscellaneous.

Deputies also compiled 378 aid and incident reports, 891 for the year. Majority of the total were traffic complaints, checking suspicious cars and persons and miscellaneous calls.

Man Builds Electric Auto For Around-Town Travel

WARREN, Ohio (AP) — Robert Powell of Warren doesn't find electric cars "re-volting" or shocking; he has built his own.

Powell, owner of an electronics shop, used a 1968 Fiat body and a 1½-horsepower electric motor powered by three 12-volt batteries in building an electric car for intracity use.

It can travel almost 20 miles an hour, covering about 40 miles without recharging its batteries, he says.

He says a recharge takes about seven hours with a conventional battery charger. He is working on a device to use the motor to partially recharge the batteries while the car is in use.

He also has ordered a 7-to 9-horsepower electric motor which he estimates should propel the car at about 40 miles an hour.

Powell says an electric car has several advantages over conventional automobiles: it is practically silent, it needs no transmission, speed being regulated by controlling the flow of power to the motor; it has no exhaust system to rust out, and it emits no pollution.

It also uses no gasoline, and Powell says it is this feature which prompted him to build the car.

Powell says he has no plans to market the car and built it "just to prove it could be done."

But, not satisfied after having proved that the electric car would work, he immediately began changing it. Powell is installing a one-cylinder gasoline engine which he says also will be enough to power the small car.

Pickaway Plains DAR Given Conference Report

Pickaway Plains Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution met recently in the meeting room of Pickaway County Historical Society.

Mrs. Joseph Peters, regent, opened the chapter in ritualistic form with the assistance of Mrs. R. R. Bales, chaplain.

Mrs. Judd Dresbach reported on the talk given by Mrs. Phyllis Schlafly of Alton, Ill., who was the speaker on Monday evening at the State Conference of Ohio Society DAR.

Mrs. Schlafly is critical of the dealing between the United States of America and the USSR. She said: "Should America grant amnesty to the deserter and the draft dodger? Should we forgive and forget? Thousands served during the Vietnam War and thousands died on the battlefield or were taken prisoners. American soldiers were tortured and died at the hands of their captors. Those who were draft dodgers or AWOL now live."

She asked: "How would the veterans feel about amnesty to the defectors and the draft dodgers? How would parents, wives and children feel about granting amnesty to this kind of citizen?" Mrs. Schlafly ended her talk with a quotation, "So long as America is good, she will remain great."

Essay contest winners and their parents were invited guests to the School Luncheon.

Mrs. Martin Cromley gave a report of the first day and the memorial service for deceased members. Pickaway Plains Chapter hosted the Page's Breakfast. Mrs. Charles Beckman, Mrs. Henry Bartholomew and Mrs. Joseph Peters made favors for the pages of red, white and blue cosmetic bags of felt. EDITOR'S NOTE: Has the energy crisis left an imprint on American life? Associated Press reporters have talked with government leaders, social scientists and the man on the street to get a preliminary reading on this question. In this first of a series of three articles, the effects on the cities are examined.

By JOSH FITZHUGH
Associated Press Writer
The energy crisis will not save the cities, but it may give them time to save themselves.

Pre-existing trends toward inner city living and mass transit may be accelerated, while some movement out of the cities may be slowed.

After all, says the head of Philadelphia's planning commission, "the cities are really the best energy savers that man has ever devised."

Long-range trends are difficult, if not impossible, to gauge. Officials universally say "it's too early to tell" whether lifestyle changes in the cities caused by the winter energy shortage will last.

"Energy will be a new factor in the complicated equation of where people live and work," says Doug Parker, newly appointed energy adviser for the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The Associated Press surveyed leaders and citizens in several of the country's largest cities to see what changes the energy crisis has brought. Their answers indicate that:

—For the moment the flight from the cities may have stopped. Families and businesses appear more cautious about leaving. Young couples see an added advantage in buying in town.

—Governments are more willing to subsidize mass transit and people appear more willing to ride it. "We know we've never had so much love and affection," says Wichita's transit director Paul McGinnis.

—Development along the cities' fringes, and within downtown, may increase. Brokers point to the fuel-saving benefits of attached row houses.

Most important, those who love the cities, or are committed to them, feel the energy crisis provides a new psychological weapon to combat the fear of racial distrust and urban crime.

"I think there's been something in the nature of an awakening that things can't go on the way they were," says Donald Moore, president of the Downtown Brooklyn Development Association. "Everything at least psychologically is flowing in our direction."

To Susan Keller, urban sociologist at Princeton University, it's a question whether "the fantasy of open space and the open road or the fantasy of the rich city predominates."

"I have heard people saying they'll take another look at the cities, that maybe cities are in again," she says. Still there appears a need "to combine various modes of life with new kinds of transport," she says.

As gasoline dwindled this winter, mass transit ridership increased between 5 and 10 per cent in some cities. Transit authorities added bus lines and special lanes for car pools and urged businesses to stagger

Black Colleges Gain Strength

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's all-black colleges are bringing that minority into the middle classes, President Rembert E. Stokes of Wilberforce University in Ohio said today.

The university has tooled its curriculum in a series of cooperative programs that take students off campus and into onjob experiences for at least three 15-week quarters, Stokes said on NBC's Today Show.

"It gives our students an opportunity for earlier maturation," he said.

Even though Wilberforce has clustered its offerings to meet industrial demands, Stokes said he found no opposition among students.

working hours to alleviate bunching. Ridership in Honolulu was so heavy officials feared the congestion would drive passengers away once the gasoline crunch eased.

In Los Angeles traffic on the fabled freeways dropped as much as 33 per cent, with accidents off sharply. Downtown parking fell 20 to 45 per cent. The city's traffic engineer, S.S. Taylor, bought his first bicycle to see what problems confronted the two-wheelers.

"I was thinking of getting a foreign car, a small one," said Boston cab driver Ken McCarthy. "But now I'll get a bicycle if anything. I'm serious."

Perhaps to aid the shift, Boston increased its parking meter fees fivefold.

"People may travel to and from work in a different way to have enough money and fuel to move about more freely during nonworking hours," says David Grayson of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Confined to the city, persons looked to restaurants, theaters and museums for entertainment. Some rediscovered neighborhood parks—or neighbors. Says Richard Barr of the League of New York Theaters: "God knows we're not encouraging the energy crisis, but it's given a lot of people a chance to find out that New York is not quite the jungle it is supposed to be."

So far planners detect some increased interest in the downtown areas. Builders are looking more closely at housing in downtown Detroit. Demand is up in central Los Angeles.

"I hear a lot of talk about people moving back downtown because of the energy crisis," says Tom Puett, president of an Atlanta development company. "The real estate appraisers that used to look at our neighborhood with a good bit of skepticism are now very optimistic about it."

"I can't tell you that everybody in the suburbs is going to move downtown, but the appraisers' attitude is a good sign."

Calvin Hamilton, director of Los Angeles city planning, feels fuel prices are bound to spur the re-use of the city's tremendous investment in sewers, schools, parks and streets. "People may want to stay in and rebuild the house they have," he says.

"Anytime the decision to leave is put off, it's got to be a help," says Richard Seeler, a corporate real estate broker in New York. The energy crisis has made businesses "stop and think" about leaving for suburban locations, he says.

But the crisis has hurt cities, too. Utilities' conversion to coal in some Eastern cities threatens environmental gains and pollution cutbacks resulting from fewer cars. Higher electric bills are giving nightmares to owners of some all-electric homes. Apartment owners squak about not being able to pass along fuel surcharges to rent-controlled tenants. And residents with air conditioners prefer not to think about this summer's bills.

"The crisis wasn't as bad as we anticipated, but there's a definite tightening up feeling," says Michael Ehrmann, who lives with his wife and child on Manhattan's upper West Side. "The boom is off; the illusions of the last 10 years are gone."

"Still more than gas, and somewhat more than rent, food is the biggest factor. We're making more but we have the overwhelming feeling that we're going substantially backward."

Feltner Awarded Agriculture Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — After six weeks of rumors and an announcement by one of his home-state congressmen, Dr. Richard L. Feltner of the University of Illinois was officially announced Tuesday by the White House to be an assistant secretary of agriculture.

The nomination by President Nixon, which requires Senate approval, puts Feltner in the midst of an unusual bit of maneuver engineered to fill a top-level $38,000 post in the Agriculture Department.

Here is how it went: Carroll G. Brunthaver, who was then assistant secretary for international affairs and commodity programs, resigned Feb. 1 to do research at the Brookings Institution.

The post was vacant until March 12 when Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz announced he was shifting Clayton K. Yeutter, another assistant secretary in charge of marketing and consumer programs, to Brunthaver's old job.

Meanwhile, Feltner had been reported in line for an assistant secretary's job. And on Feb. 28 Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., announced flatly in a news release that Feltner "will be named assistant secretary for marketing and consumer services" and that Yeutter would take over the more sensitive post held by Brunthaver.

After Butz announced what he called "the reassignment" of Yeutter to Brunthaver's post, there was some flurry in the Senate because Butz made it clear he would not seek reconfirmation of Yeutter. But that concern was stilled and Yeutter took over his new duties.

Yeutter first joined USDA as an agency administrator — down a step or two from an assistant secretary — in Oct. 1970. He resigned late in 1971 and for a year was national director for agriculture in the Committee for Re-election of the President. He rejoined USDA as assistant secretary — receiving Senate approval — in Jan. 1973.

Feltner, 35, has been professor and head of the department of agricultural economics at the University of Illinois since Aug. 1970. He was born in Crawfordsville, Ind., and holds degrees from Purdue University and North Carolina State University.

Girl Saved From Sewer

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A 7-year-old girl found floating in an underground sewer Tuesday was revived by a slap in the face by a rescue worker, a fire department spokesman said.

Laura Ripperger was unconscious when Fireman Gerald Loudin found her in a sewer passage wedged against a partially-submerged Christmas tree.

After reviving her, Loudin carried her back to an opening and surrendered his lifeline rope so she could be hoisted out. His 25-minute air tank ran out moments before he was lifted from the toxic sewer gases, Capt. John Pfaff of Ladder Company 12 said.

Loudin found the girl with only 10 feet left of the 225-foot rope he had tied to him.

The girl was taken to a hospital and pronounced well after the rescue.

Hospital Controls Slated For Hearing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio hospitals will get a chance April 29 to respond to a proposed state plan to control their major expansions and equipment purchases.

State Health Director John W. Cashman will hold a hearing on the proposed revisions of the Ohio State Plan for Hospital and Medical Facilities Construction and modernization.

Under the plan, worked out by department researchers, hospitals would be required to submit building and modernization plans to the state before obtaining federal funds, planning assistant Tom Quilter said.

If the state disapproves the plans, the government funds would be withdrawn, Quilter said.

Quilter said the program is aimed at encouraging hospitals to share expensive equipment and force them to use existing facilities more wisely.

According to Quilter, most of the state's 200 hospitals are operating below the current occupancy requirement.

Some hospital administrators are opposed to the program because of the increased government scrutiny.

Another revision would increase the current bed occupancy requirement for hospitals to 85 per cent, Quilter said. Still another would specify the number of free care patients each hospital must treat annually to be eligible for federal Hill-Burton grants, he added.

The Hill-Burton program was set up by Congress in the early 1940s.

Last year hospitals were given three alternatives to determine how many charity patients to accept to be eligible for the funds, Quilter said.

He said most chose an "open door" policy admitting all needy patients, regardless of their ability to pay.

Quilter said these hospitals used 10 per cent of the Hill-Burton grant or 3 per cent of their operating expenses minus medicaid and medicare expenses.

Prosecutor Succumbs

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank S. Hogan, 72, who as Manhattan's chief prosecutor for 32 years won convictions of key figures in widely publicized scandals, died Tuesday after three months in a hospital following a stroke last year.

LaFatch Hit By Lawsuit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A $1.1 million damage suit was filed Tuesday against Akron businessman Anthony LaFatch, who a day earlier was acquitted of five charges of extortion.

The suit was brought by John Vogel, president of Realty National Corp., and Michael McKenzie, a business associate, both of whom testified at LaFatch's trial that LaFatch had solicited a $50,000 bribe to assure state Commerce Department approval of a stock deal.

The suit filed Tuesday in Franklin County Common Pleas Court, seeks the return of the $50,000, plus $50,000 in compensatory damages and $1 million in punitive damages.

During his trial, LaFatch argued that he earned the money as a "finders fee" for obtaining information about legal problems that might hold up approval of Realty's $10 million stock issue.

Federal officials are holding the money paid LaFatch pending a decision on its ownership. Federal agents confiscated the money when LaFatch was arrested.

Mills Doubts Nixon Can Be Convicted; Not Enough Votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are probably the votes in Congress to impeach President Nixon but not to remove him from office, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills says.

The Arkansas Democrat, who is vice chairman of a committee investigating Nixon's income tax returns, said that "there's no doubt in my mind. That there are enough votes really ... for the articles of impeachment in the House."

But he said he worries that a majority of the Senate, but not the constitutional two-thirds, would vote to remove Nixon from office.

Under the constitution, the House can by a simple majority vote an impeachment — comparable to an indictment — against a President, who is then tried by the Senate. But in the Senate a two-thirds vote is required to convict and remove from office.

Mills spoke in an interview broadcast over public television Monday night.

Mills renewed his offer to back legislation that would provide immunity from criminal prosecution, if the President should resign under the circumstances he described.

"Where are we under that circumstance, with a majority in both branches of the Congress having found the President at fault, and yet he remains in office?" Mills asked. "Now, how can he exercise leadership under that circumstance?"

"The impeachment proceedings, if they are drawn out over a period of time, as I'm sure they will be, will present the most disruptive and divisive force that we've had I think in the United States since the Civil War," Mills said.

The Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation is scheduled to receive from its staff Wednesday a report on Nixon's income taxes for 1969-1972, which sources said will conclude the President owes substantially more tax.

Mills, who had suggested Nixon voluntarily file amended returns, said "his lawyers have told me that they didn't want him to file an amended return because in each instance ... there are two sides, one in his favor and one against him ... They will, I'm sure, dispute any findings that the staff may come up with involving additional tax."

CBS News said Monday night that Nixon is considering a fight against paying any back taxes. It said the President's lawyers say Nixon may be guilty only of a technical violation of the law because he signed his returns ignorant of mistakes.

Mills said a copy of the report as finally approved by the committee will go to the House Judiciary Committee, which is conducting the over-all investigation as to whether there are grounds for impeachment.

"It would be up to the House Judiciary Committee to decide whether or not this would be included as one of the articles for impeachment," he said.

Couple Provides Home For Wolves

SHAWANO, Wis. (AP) — Still night air covered the woods of east central Wisconsin as a family of three prepared to retire for the night.

Suddenly, the cry of a timber wolf broke the silence and brought echoed cries from other wolf throats.

"They really enjoy howling," Joan Gehr explains. "Many times it's almost like a ritual with us," she adds. "Someone sticks his head out the window and starts howling, and they howl with us."

She referred to the pack of nine wolves living in a fenced area of about 1½ acres on the Larry Gehr land near here.

The timber wolf or grey wolf, once an important predator in northwoods areas of the Midwest, is only a rare resident today.

In Wisconsin, the Department of Natural Resources says the spread of civilization caused the wolf population to disappear during the 1950s, although occasional wanderers from adjoining states are sometimes spotted.

The Gehrs say they hope to contribute to replenishing the population of wild wolves by restocking some of the animals they raise.

They began the wolf-raising venture with Canadian-born male and female animals purchased as pups in 1969 and 1970.

Two litters later, the Gehrs have seven offspring and the original pair of wolves living on the wooded tract.

They say living closely with the wolves has given them many insights into the lifestyle of the tightly knit wolf family and into the character of the wolf itself.

Mrs. Gehr uses such terms as "joyous, straightforward and honest"

Dependent Children Caseload Declines

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio Welfare Director Charles Bates says the state's Aid to Dependent Children caseload declined by 6,939 persons in February.

He said in a statement Tuesday it was the largest such drop in history. Bates attributed the decrease to a state review of ADC cases.

Bates said despite the drop in cases, the number of unemployed parents getting ADC checks increased by 2,095. He blamed this on layoffs resulting from the energy crisis.

Ohio Turnpike Work Expected To Continue

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Resurfacing projects on the Ohio Turnpike should continue as scheduled, despite some delays caused by an asphalt shortage, the Ohio Turnpike Commission was told Tuesday.

Allan Johnson, turnpike executive director, also reported first quarter income of $8.4 million, down 5.4 per cent from the same period last year.

to describe the wolves, adding that they possess a dry sense of humor which she can interpret from "the position of the ears, the facial expression, and the position of the tail."

The Gehrs are able to pet the wolves, which may reach a weight of more than 100 pounds, but they say they are somewhat wary of the wolf pack during mating season.

"The wolf considers man either equal with or below him," Mrs. Gehr explained. "He's not subservient like a dog."

"During mating season the male wolf can consider man as a rival," she said, adding that a wolf's attitude toward man will vary with the power of the man's personality.

Gehr has a permit to salvage injured deer, and Mrs. Gehr said the wolves are fed a main diet of venison from animals killed along area highways.

She contended that the wolves would

Leased-Wire Hike Could Hurt Media

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission Tuesday considered arguments that new leased line telephone rates proposed by the Bell System would make news services too costly for many small-city newspapers and radio stations.

Warnings about the impact of the new rates were detailed in petitions filed Monday by The Associated Press, United Press International, Reuters Limited, Dow Jones, Commodity News Services Inc. and the American Publishers Association.

They said the news services must pass on more than $4 million in extra costs to their subscribers or provide reduced services — and said either alternative would injure the national interest by hampering the widespread dissemination of news.

The FCC has said it will decide whether to approve the rates by April 14, the date they are due to go into effect automatically unless the commission decides they are illegal, as the news services contend.

American Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s Bell System plans to drop the current uniform nationwide mileage charge on private lines reserved by businessmen for their exclusive use. It would be replaced by a two-tier system called "Hi-Lo."

Under Hi-Lo, there would be a lower rate for high population-density routes between 370 major cities and a higher rate for low-density routes to the smaller cities and towns. There would also be a new charge for each channel termination.

AT&T contends the change is necessary to relate more closely to actual costs of providing services. It says the new rates are needed if the telephone companies are to be able to compete with the offerings of newly authorized special common carriers

3 Youngsters In 'Campaign'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Three young Ohioans will vie for governor of the Ohio YMCA Youth in Government's model legislature which convenes here Thursday.

They are Tom Grace of Cincinnati, Angie Ellis of Sandusky and Keith Stimpert of Washington Court House.

Some 400 delegates to the annual event also will elect a lieutenant governor, speaker of the House, chief justice of the Supreme Court clerk and chaplain before their opening sessions in the Statehouse and Supreme Court chambers.

The rest of the day will be spent debating mock bills, including one setting up "no smoking" areas.

Gov. John J. Gilligan will deliver the keynote address and Chief Justice C. William O'Neill will administer the oath of office.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

'Doggie Bagger' Takes The Cake

DEAR ABBY: Can you explain why a wealthy woman, when eating out, always takes home leftover dinner rolls, carrot sticks, crackers, and anything else that's served and isn't eaten?

This lady is very generous where charity is concerned.

We are four women who meet once a week for bridge and lunch, and her conduct puzzles me.

I can understand a "doggie bag" for leftover portions of meat, but what about taking home every morsel of edible food on the table?

On occasion we all meet with our husbands, and when this woman asked my husband for his leftover carrot sticks to take home, he thought she was kidding. Yet her husband seemed indifferent. How do you figure this?

AMAZED
DEAR AMAZED: The lady can't bear to see anything wasted. (There are many people who, if they had the courage, would collect all the leftover.) There is nothing wrong with it. If she were poor, she'd be considered "chintzy." But since she's rich, she's "eccentric."

DEAR ABBY: My wife passed away 3 months ago. She was 52, and a wonderful woman. My children are married and have homes of their own. My mother-in-law is constantly plying me with advice. Example: "Don't ever marry again. All women are gold diggers. All they want is your money." Abby, my life seems so empty. I don't know anyone I want to date, but my mother-in-law's constant harping on the subject has made me think about it.

How long a mourning period should be observed in my case? How soon is "too soon" to seek female companionship? Would my dating before a year be considered disrespectful to the memory of my late wife?

Our marriage was a happy one and we had 30 good years, but I think 55 is

King Wins Reversal Of Ohio Suit

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A Denver, Colo., oil firm has won a reversal in the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals of a claim that it defrauded the State of Ohio when it obtained $8 million in loans from the Ohio Workmen's Compensation Fund.

The three-judge panel ruled March 28 that John M. King and King Resources, one of three firms charged in a 1970 Ohio loan scandal, did not violate regulations of the Securities Exchange Commission.

An injunction limiting King's right to do business was lifted.

The King loans were made through Crofters, Inc., which also arranged loans for the two other firms involved in the loan scandal: Four Seasons and Consolidated, Inc. Ohio took the King loans to court.

The appeals court said the lower court erred in finding King and his firm guilty of fraud. King argued the decision and an ensuing injunction prevented him from making a living.

A $3 million loan was approved by former Ohio Treasurer John Herbert April 17, 1970, and a $5 million note on May 1, 1970. Both were for two-year duration, according to court records.

King Resources collapsed and filed bankruptcy a short time later. The SEC filed suit Nov. 16, 1970, charging the firm misrepresented its credit rating to Ohio.

State Economy Shows Increases

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Continued high-level steel production despite energy shortages kept Canton and Youngstown leading the state in economic increases in 1973, reports the Center for Business and Economic Research at Ohio State University.

Canton led the state's eight largest cities of 100,000 or more population with increases in four of seven economic categories, was second in two and third in one. In five of the seven indicators, Canton's 1973 increases were greater than Ohio as a whole.

"Canton's substantial cyclical rise in 1973 was sustained by the consistently high level of operations of the steel industry and metal working which dominate its manufacturing activity," the center wrote.

Youngstown, another steel center near Pennsylvania, leads Ohio in total raw steel production. It ranked No. 2 in overall gains in 1973. Youngstown, like Canton, marked a 10 per cent increase in retail sales to lead Akron, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton and Toledo.

Cleveland and Cincinnati, Ohio's two largest cities, were almost tied for third in gains in 1973. Cleveland, along with Dayton, had the best construction activity after Canton and Youngstown.

Cincinnati was marked for third because its all-industry employment and payrolls gained 2 and 11 per cent, respectively.

Dayton and Toledo nearly tied for growth in 1973. They ranked below Cleveland and Cincinnati. Toledo tied Canton for employment and payroll increases with gains of 5 and 14 per cent, respectively. Construction activity increased by 20 per cent in Dayton. Columbus and Akron recorded the flattest trends.

Minority Workers Plan Gains Approval

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— State officials have announced federal approval of Ohio's plan for hiring minority workers in government-funded construction jobs.

The state's coordinator for construction under the Ohio Bureau of Equal Employment Opportunity, E. Winther McCroom, said the proposal is the first state plan to gain U.S. Department of Labor approval.

He said it sets standards for improving minority participation by individual contractors, rather than by craft.

Columbus increased employment by the state rise of 2 per cent, but construction volume dropped sharply. Akron had an increase in total construction of four per cent, but residential volume dropped by one-quarter.

"The outlook for 1974 activity in Ohio city areas continues generally good," the center reported. "The demand for steel continues strong even with the decline from the automobile industry; capital spending for new equipment by business is expected to continue at high levels.

"Only the reduced production and servicing of automobiles and the shortage of basic plastic materials, both the result of the Arab oil embargo, are drawbacks to continued highlevel activity in Ohio generally.

"City areas which would seem most affected by the impacts of the oil and gasoline shortage are Akron, Toledo and Columbus," the center wrote.

Lt. Brown Attends Biannual Convention

Lt. Mike Brown of the Circleville Fire Department was among the 91 delegates from all over Ohio to attend the 29th biannual convention of the Ohio Association of Professional Fire Fighters. The convention was held this year March 25-28 in Toledo. Sixty alternates, 32 guests and 13 state officers were also in attendance at the convention.

Brown said the delegates acted upon 38 resolutions and elected officers. The state is divided into six districts with one vice-president elected to head each district and a state president elected to head the association. Bob Bell was elected president at this year's convention. Bell is from Cleveland Heights.

The fifth district which includes Circleville selected as its vice-president, Richard Muhleman, Newark. Muhleman was also elected first vice-president of the association in case the president could not fulfill his duties.

Among the reasons for the state convention is for delegates to vote on resolutions to be presented to the state legislature. Lt. Brown said two of the resolutions were very important to both local and state fire fighters.

The delegates voted to ask the state legislature to abandon the Ferguson Act and to set up a collective bargaining law in the state. Under the Ferguson Act, public employees were prohibited to strike. If the legislation is

Libraries Eye Modernized Services

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Librarians, trustees, government officials and educators got together here Tuesday to dust off old ideas about the places books are shelved and plan for the future.

Direct computer hookups between the living room and the library will come in the future, experts told the conference of 600.

"Libraries are unique in a society where most other forces bend people into the same mold," said Virginia Mathews, international libraries and literacy specialist in her keynote speech.

Libraries have become the favorite hangout in a lot of schools, according to Dr. Fay R. Biles, Kent State University vice president of public affairs and development.

Gov. John J. Gilligan asked the group to remember, "Libraries are for people, and they should meet the needs of the people while letting people know what is available to them through the local library."

Rising building costs and the need for more copies of new books, longer hours and additional staff were pointed by Larry Besant, assistant libraries director for Ohio State University.

Besant was part of a panel discussion which included a Columbus reporter and a Battelle Memorial Institute research specialist.

During the conference, Gov. Gilligan presented Gertrude Linnenbruegge of Athens with the Governor's Award for Community Action.

An assistant professor of library science at Ohio University, she came to campus as children's librarian in 1948 and has held executive positions for 40 years in Girl Scout programs.

2 Counties Stage Drug Roundup

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—Licking and Muskingum county authorities Tuesday began what was described as one of the biggest drug roundups in the history of the two counties.

Authorities in Licking County said they had arrested 18 of 35 persons named in secret indictments handed down following a grand jury probe late last week.

At least 10 persons were arrested in Muskingum County, following a similar grand jury probe that brought 16 indictments.

Authorities said the Licking County arrests followed a three-month investigation of drug traffic in the area by the state Bureau of Criminal Investigation and the Licking County Sheriff's office.

County Sheriff Max Marston said that four or five of his agents had been able to infiltrate local drug activities.

Of the 35 indictments returned, 34 involved marijuana and hallucinogens and one involved cocaine.

Licking County Prosecutor Neil Laughlin said that those arrested were being held under $10,000 bail each.

Rhodes Issues Call For Vo-Ed Expansion

ANSONIA, Ohio (AP)—Former Gov. James A. Rhodes called Tuesday for a massive voluntary effort by educators to provide vocational education in public schools.

Speaking at the annual Ohio Education Association banquet, Rhodes said today's youngsters spend 12 years in schools without learning a job skill.

Saxbe Says Officials Face Kidnap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe says he believes government officials face "a tremendous risk" of being kidnaped by terrorists.

He linked the recent series of abductions in the United States and abroad to kidnaping manuals circulated among militant organizations.

In an interview Tuesday, the at-

Dial-A-Joke

Service Provided

NEW YORK (AP) — "Fellows, you want to get your wife crazy?" says the voice on the other end of 999-3838. "Don't talk in your sleep, just grin."

The voice belongs to comic Henny Youngman and the number is for a new service provided by the New York Telephone Company — Dial-A-Joke.

A company spokesman said Tuesday that its Dial-Santa message during the holidays proved so successful that it decided to try another service.

Youngman recorded 30 spot jokes for April, different ones for each day, the spokesman said. He added that if the service proves popular and profitable, the company may sign other comics.

torney general also suggested that Patricia Hearst's kidnapers, who call themselves members of the Symbionese Liberation Army, followed instructions in a kidnaping manual written by some other group.

"When you think that the Symbionese and others are taking this right out of some Maoist doctrinal textbooks on how to operate in terrorism and other forms of civil disturbance, you realize it is not just a coincidental thing," Saxbe said.

Asked if he meant to imply the involvement of a conspiracy, he replied, "A worldwide conspiracy." He said he has evidence of such a conspiracy but cannot discuss it further.

As for the individuals involved, he said "these are mostly punks. You're dealing with nuts."

He indicated, however, that the Symbionese have no part in any such conspiracy. "The Symbionese just profit by the information they get, manuals, information that's available to them. I might add this Hearst thing is conducted right by the book."

FBI spokesman Robert Franck said authorities have examined copies of at least three terrorism manuals circulated among militant groups in recent years.

The newest, he said, is a volume called "Organizing Urban Guerrilla Units," written by a Raul Estremera and circulated within the Black Liberation Army, which has been described by the FBI as an offshoot of the Black Panther party.

Franck said the manual suggests that terrorist kidnapers demand vast amounts of food as ransom. Miss Hearst's abductors demanded that her father, newspaper executive Randolph H. Hearst, provide millions of dollars worth of free food for California's poor.

However, Franck added that he himself has no information about whether any kidnaping manual has been linked to the Hearst case.

Car-Train Collision Claims Man's Life

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP)—A car-train collision at a downtown crossing has claimed the life of Glen D. Relman, 21, of Mansfield.

Witnesses told police Tuesday that Relman drove around a lowered crossing gate and into the path of the southbound freight train.

Asked whether any terrorist group now is promoting the kidnaping of government officials, Saxbe said, "This is all part of the scheme of some of these irresponsible terrorist organizations. We don't make these things up. We have reports of what people say."

Energy Saving Quick Picture

SENECA FALLS, N. Y. (AP) — The Electronic Tube Division of GTE Sylvania Inc. announced the development of a picture tube cathode structure which provides a color picture approximately five seconds after the TV set is turned on.

R. Joseph Dorcy, a marketing manager, said the device is an improvement over current types used in sets which provide quick pictures. It saves energy by not requiring the cathode heater to be partially activated while the set is not in use.

Based on consumer usage statistics, an annual savings of up to 20 kilowatt hours is possible per household.

The new cathode is expected to be in mass production this year.

Across My Conscience

By JIM BISHOP

The stout woman attendant was reflected in the linoleum floor as a pygmy. It would only take a minute, she said. I sat near the empty desk of the superintendent. He had left permission for me to see Grandma Flynn, provided I published nothing about the visit. On the visitor's card I was listed as "personal friend."

I wasn't, really. Grandma Flynn wasn't my grandma. She was an old lady I had spent years trying to peel from my conscience. She was small and old when I was a teenager. She had white hair, with a swirl of whipped cream on top. The face was cracked custard.

She kept a boarding house on South Street, Jersey City, N. J. Assorted boarders arrived and departed. Some paid. Some did not. I knew her grandson, Tom. He was short with deep wavy hair and a pair of impish eyes overlooking a mouth made for gin.

I never saw grandma upstairs. She was always in the basement, moving a teapot from the back burner of a coal stove to the front, or back again. She did a lot of hand ironing. Sometimes, when four of us got loaded on a Saturday night, she would insist that we sleep in an empty room.

"Don't go home to your mother like that," she would say. For no reason, I became her favorite. "My little gentleman," she called me. Sometimes, in winter, I sat near the hot stove as she dropped bits and slivers of the mosaic of her life.

She had never been pretty, even when she was young. And, she insisted, she was not intelligent. She sailed the old iron slowly down a white sleeve and chuckled. "But I was lucky all my life," she said. "I had God, my church and a good man."

Grandma Flynn, I deduced, was crazy. Her good man drank himself to death at age 35. He left her with a son and a daughter. The son had tuberculosis and left bright red patches on her snowy pillows before he left her for an attractive redhead who appeared to have everything but character. Her husband searched the night streets for her, and found her in many taverns with many men.

There was one child—Tom. Grandma Flynn brought him up as, in a sense, she did me. Her daughter was a crotchety epileptic who inflicted floggin accusations on Grandma. Sometimes, when Tom's mother visited him, the daughter waited until she left, then heated water and poured it on the sidewalk to scrub her steps from the premises.

Grandma Flynn had no past, no future, but it was no business of mine. When she wasn't ironing, she baked cakes for her church. She had no money, but she had flour, butter, chocolate and a stove. It is possible that she baked a thousand layer cakes to show her appreciation to God for his blessings.

I saw time as her mortal enemy. Grandma didn't. She was close to 80 when men came and took her daughter away to a state home. The rooms were empty of boarders—even those who did not pay—and sunbeams held floating specks of dust enthralled.

Tom was found unconscious on the Bowery in New York. He was sent to Sea View Hospital in Staten Island. Neighbors complained that Grandma was starving. Two big gentle policemen took her away. She wrung her hands and said they didn't understand—there was a cake in the oven.

Years later, I found her in the Hudson County poorhouse. She was no relative, no friend, but, unbidden, she kept tiptoeing through my mind. That's why I sat in the outer office.

She was bent forward, the face frightened, as she was led into the office. I tried to reassure her. Diamond tears quivered on her lower lids, but they didn't fall. "Where is Tommy?" she said. "Oh, Jim, you've come to take me home."

Hardly. I was broke. No editor wanted to pay for anything I might write. I held the bony hand. Could I tell her that Tommy had died? No. Could I explain that she was worn out, useless to the world on any level? No. I folded two one-dollar bills and pressed them into the hand.

"No," she said. "No. You're a man now. You have a wife and children." "For hairpins," I mumbled. I closed her knuckles over the money. She looked around and down the hall.

"Listen," she whispered. "Would you do a big favor for me?" I nodded. "I was always a churchgoer. I don't want to be buried in Potter's Field. Pride is a sin, but I don't want to go there. Will you . . .?"

I kissed her cheek. The promise was made. I never returned to see Grandma Flynn. A doctor told me that she died, thankful for all the love he had shared with her. They dropped her in Potter's Field.

Grandma Flynn was nothing, compounded of nothing. Late at night, when the house is quiet, she tiptoes across my conscience, stepping lightly so that the pain is small. . .

Jobless Rate Up In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Unemployment in Ohio rose to 5.4 per cent in February, the Bureau of Employment Services reported today.

Persons out of work numbered 250,000 in February, compared to 218,000 unemployed in March, the bureau said.

Employment dropped in manufacturing industries by 1.9 per cent, mostly because of layoffs in the auto industry and labor disputes among auto, textile and construction machinery builders.

At the same time a slight increase was recorded in jobs filled in the government and service industries, the bureau said.

Unemployment for the year ending in February was up 4.5 per cent to 5.4 per cent of the civilian labor force. Total employment was up, however, 1.8 per cent.

Campaign Amendment Curbs Result Broadcasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Early presidential election returns could not be published or broadcast under a campaign reform bill amendment adopted by the Senate.

The purpose of the amendment, offered by Sen. Henry L. Bellmon, R-Okla., and approved by a 43-38 vote, is to prevent returns in the East from influencing voters in other parts of the country.

More amendments to the controversial bill continued to pile in today, adding to a stack already submitted and not yet acted on.

The bill includes provisions for use of tax funds to finance campaigns for federal offices as well as limitations on contributions and expenditures.

Hospital Group Saves $10 Million On Insurance

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Members of the Ohio Hospital Association have saved $10 million for the second straight year by operating their own unemployment insurance program, the organization said today.

These savings are passed on to patients in the form of lower cost services, the OHA claimed in a statement.

The federal government ordered all states in 1972 to provide unemployment compensation to all employees in nonprofit corporations, including hospital employees.

Nearly all of Ohio's 200 hospitals elected to enter a self-insuring program offered by the OHA, the group said.

The first ice skates were deer or ox ribs, strapped onto hide boots with leather thongs, according to the National Geographic Society.

Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., and other opponents of public financing have threatened a filibuster to block the bill's passage.

A two-thirds majority would be required to shut off debate, and Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd told newsmen the votes will be hard to get.

Bellmon's amendment would make it a criminal offense, punishable by a $5,000 fine or a year in jail, to make public any information on votes cast for president before midnight, eastern standard time, on election day.

It was based on contentions that projections of winners on the basis of early returns from the East influence voters in other areas or deter them from going to the polls.

In other voting Monday on the bill, the Senate rejected 68 to 10 a complete substitute proposed by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn.

Weicker's substitute would have compressed all campaigning, fund raising and expenditures into a 60-day period before the November elections.

He said this would cut costs and was a better way to get at campaign abuses than public financing.

Opponents argued that Weicker's substitute would make the campaign period so short that relatively unknown challengers would have almost no chance to unseat incumbents.

Billingham To Hurl Opener

By ANDY LIPPMAN
AP Sports Writer

Gerald Ford and Jack Billingham have both been announced as starters for Thursday's major league baseball opener between the Cincinnati Reds and the Atlanta Braves in Atlanta.

But the vice president has a big advantage. He doesn't have to worry about serving up Hank Aaron's 714th home run.

"Everybody in the place is going to give him a standing ovation when he comes up to bat. My stomach is probably going to turn over a couple of times and I'll swallow hard. Then I'll have to get down to business," said the lanky Cincinnati pitcher who has given up five homers to Aaron in his career.

There's no indication that Aaron will definitely be in the Braves' line-up to continue his pursuit of Babe Ruth's career homer mark, other than Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's recent memo that he expected the 40-year-old star to make an appearance.

But if the homer does come, Billingham says it won't be the end of the world.

"It's not something that's going to haunt me the rest of my life," Billingham said. "Nobody will remember it a month later."

Ford was named as the White House starter for the opener, accepting an invitation from Kuhn and Reds' President Bob Howsam.

In exhibition games Tuesday, Minnesota bombed Boston 13-0, a split Philadelphia Phillies squad lost to Pittsburgh 10-2, while another squad beat the St. Louis Cardinals 8-4, the Chicago White Sox beat the Reds 7-6, the Milwaukee Brewers trimmed the Chicago Cubs 11-10, the New York Mets blanked the New York Yankees 3-0, the Detroit Tigers beat the Houston Astros 4-2, the Atlanta Braves edged the Baltimore Orioles 3-2, the California Angels beat University of Southern California 8-5, and Los Angeles Dodgers beat San Francisco 10-8.

The game between Montreal and Kansas City was called off because of rain.

The ball Ford throws out won't be worth anything near what the record-breaking ball hit out of the park by Aaron will bring. Spalding, whose baseballs are used by both major leagues, got into the ball bidding business Tuesday, offering $15,000 for the ball Aaron hits for No. 715.

Meanwhile, the Texas Rangers were sold by Bob Short to a Dallas-Fort Worth group for $10 million dollars.

Short, who retained 10 per cent of the team, said, "I did everything I could in Washington to make the team a success, and I wouldn't stay with this team if I didn't believe it eventually will pay dividends."

Chicago Cubs pitcher Milt Pappas topped a list of several players who were trimmed by clubs shuffling their rosters in preparation for opening-day play.

Pappas, 34, is one victory shy of becoming the third pitcher to notch 100 victories in each league. While pitching in the American League, he compiled 110 victories, while he has won 99 games in the National League.

The winner went the mile in 2:08 2-5 to return $8.20, $3.40 and $2.40. Vicette paid $4.00 and $3.20. Pompano's First was the show horse at $4.20.

The 1-3 combination of Stormy Bob and Intruder Jeffrey paid $59.00 in the daily double.

Norm Sloan Cage Coach Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Norm Sloan, a low-key boss who plays down his role with North Carolina State's national championship basketball team, was named The Associated Press Coach of the Year today.

The modest transplanted Hoosier scored a runaway victory over Marquette's Al McGuire, a man whom Sloan beat just as easily for the national title.

The 47-year-old Sloan collected 81 points to 35 for McGuire in balloting by the nation's sports writers and broadcasters.

Notre Dame's Dick Phelps placed third with 24 votes, Michigan's Johnny Orr was fourth with 19 and UCLA's John Wooden, who has won this award five times, was fifth with 14.

Preaching "love" among his players, Sloan directed the Wolfpack to a 30-1 record this season, including the 76-64 victory over Marquette in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's finals.

But he's not overly impressed with his part in the formidable accomplishments.

"People give coaching too much credit," he has often said. "Players win the games, not the coaches."

Sloan has mystical rapport with his players, as well as an enormous attachment. In his eighth season, those ingredients have helped him compile a 145-71 record, including a 27-0 mark last year when the Wolfpack was on NCAA probation for recruiting violations.

Prior to taking over the North Carolina State post, Sloan coached at Presbyterian College, The Citadel and Florida. His overall coaching record is 358-208 and he has won Coach of the Year honors in three different conferences — the Southern, Southeastern and twice in the Atlantic Coast Conference. He has guided the Wolfpack to three ACC titles.

Sloan's emergence as the nation's No. 1 coach moves Wooden out of the spotlight, temporarily at least. The UCLA coach was named Coach of the Year in 1967, 1969, 1970, 1972 and 1973.

Other coaches receiving votes this year: Charles Ridl, Pitt (10); Ted Owens, Kansas (8); Lute Olson, Long Beach State (5); Roy Skinner, Vanderbilt (3); Eddie Sutton, Creighton (2); Don Donohue, Dayton (2) and Fred Schaus, Purdue (2).

Cougars Top Knights In WHA, 7-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I played goal, defense and forward in my sleep last night, and I woke up this morning a wreck," said Chicago Cougar Player-Coach Pat Stapleton.

"We all felt we had to make the playoffs because if you don't, nobody pays any attention to the good season you had," Stapleton said Tuesday night after the Cougars defeated the Jersey Knights 7-3 to clinch a spot in the World Hockey Association playoffs.

Jan Popiel scored three goals in the victory, as Chicago moved to an insurmountable 4-0 lead going into the final period.

The Cougars will play either New England or Toronto in the first round of the East playoffs this coming weekend.

In the other WHA game, the Toronto Toros nipped Edmonton 3-2.

In the National Hockey League, the New York Islanders beat Pittsburgh 3-2, Philadelphia stormed Minnesota 6-3, and St. Louis defeated California 5-3.

Bill Bunetta Sets Clinic At Circle D

Bill Bunetta, a member of the AMF Staff of Champions and an ABC Hall of Fame bowler, will conduct two clinics and roll a pair of exhibition matches Saturday at Circle "D" Lanes.

BILL BUNETTA

At 1 p.m., Bunetta will hold a clinic, roll a three-game match with local bowler Linda Owens and give instructions and tips to bowlers in action on the lanes.

He will return at 7 p.m. with a clinic and instructions and tips to bowlers in action. His evening match will be a three game series with local kegler Barry Fisher.

Bunetta began bowling in 1942 and has become known as "The Professor" by his fellow pros and better bowlers everywhere. Because of his in-depth knowledge of the sport and his ability to impart it to others, AMF utilizes him extensively in clinic and instructor forums.

He has rolled five sanctioned "300" games and a total of 22 perfect games overall. His highest sanctioned series is 836 and he holds a 208 average over a 10-year span.

Braves' Bats Come To Life Against Visiting Aces

Logan Elm's baseball team wore its hitting shoes Tuesday in a game against visiting Amanda-Clearcreek, bombing the Aces, 28-3.

Paced by Greg Justus, Scott Pontius and Jeff Reichelderfer, the Braves boomed 21 hits, six for extra bases.

Pontius drove in seven runs, going four for four at the plate with a pair of singles, a double and a 2-run homer.

Reichelderfer drove in four runs with three singles, a double and a 3-run homer in the third inning in five trips to the plate. Greg Justus drove in four runs with three singles and a lead-off homerun in the second inning.

Steve Rawlins smacked a grand slam homerun in the second inning. Mark Justus drove in three runs with three singles. Derek Morris drove in two runs with one single. Chuck Cave drove in a run with a sacrifice fly. Ron Stevens hit a single. Randy Pontius two singles to drive in one run and Mark Skinner was credited with run batted in.

LE Coach Vic Pontius used three pitchers, Scott Pontius, Derek Morris and Tim Justus. They gave up five singles, walked four and struck out 11.

Hitting singles for Amanda-Clearcreek were Jim Destadio, Mike

Cassill, Bud Cordle, Keith Kelley and Tom McKenzie. Russ Martin was the first of four pitchers used by the Aces. They allowed 21 hits, walked nine and fanned two.

The Braves, one and one for the season, are scheduled to host Westfall 4:30 p.m. today, weather permitting. Amanda-Clearcreek has a one and two record.

County Softball To Hold Meeting

Pickaway County Softball Association will hold an organizational meeting 7:30 p.m. Friday in the K of C Hall.

Teams in the Pickaway County area are requested to have their manager or a team member attend the meeting.

Any team desiring to join the league is invited to the meeting.

Group May Buy Toledo Hornets

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—A local group headed by attorney Richard Cohn expressed an interest Tuesday in purchasing the Toledo Hornets International Hockey League franchise.

Linksmen Top Flaget

Circleville's golf squad turned in a 160-174 win over visiting Bishop Flaget Tuesday at the Pickaway Country Club.

Jeff Spires and Mark McFadden tied for medalist honors with 39s, Terry Spellacy and Mike Currie both carded 41s while Jim England had a 42 for the Tigers.

M. Earne led Bishop Flaget with a 40, J. Burns and V. Gaus both carded 44s. J. Melaragno had a 46 and M. Ball tallied 49.

Circleville will host Lancaster and Bishop Watterson 4 p.m. today and will be at home with Wehrle and Madison Plains 4 p.m. Thursday. Both matches will be at Pickaway Country Club.

Aspromonte Ponders Opening Day Lineup

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Cleveland Indians Manager Ken Aspromonte is still pondering his opening day lineup as the Tribe prepares to head east for Saturday's season opener in New York's Shea Stadium.

Manager Gene Mauch of the Montreal Expos has been a major league pilot 15 years.

NFL Gets Into Signing Game

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Long months remain before the football season opens officially, but the way things have been going in the offseason, the games could prove an anticlimax.

The National Football League, made more fully aware of the World Football League by the bombshell signings of the three Miami Dolphin stars Sunday, reached deep into its pocketbook Tuesday and came up with two first-round draft choices.

Massive defensive tackle Carl Barzilauskas agreed to terms with the American Conference New York Jets for a three-year contract reported as high as $650,000, while the Chicago Bears signed No. 1 choice Waymond Bryant of Tennessee State — a linebacker.

In both cases, the WFL made strong overtures to the college stars, only to lose in the bargaining through doubts that it — regardless of Messrs. Csonka, Warfield and Kiick — will prove itself viable this summer.

"I put a lot of emphasis on playing in the NFL," said Bryant, the second-round pick of the Washington-Baltimore Ambassadors. "We had doubts the WFL would get off the ground."

Barzilauskas, 6-foot-6 and 265

pounds, felt the same way. The offer from the New York Stars was termed "substantial" by the big tackle's lawyer, and covered fewer years, but Barzilauskas expressed concern over the numerous franchise shifts the WFL already has suffered.

That fact apparently didn't matter to Oakland Raider veteran quarterback Ken Stabler, who jumped to the WFL Birmingham Americans — starting with the 1976 season — for a multi-year contract one agent said made him the highest-paid player in the sport's history.

It wasn't the money that brought about the move. "Getting back to the South was pretty important to me," said the 27-year-old — the AFC's leading passer last season and engineer of a 9-4-1 playoff season for the Raiders.

"I was born in the South, raised in the South, played football in the South (at Alabama), and I'd like to continue to do so."

But money may draw five starting players from the Baltimore Colts to the WFL as it did former All-Pro wide receiver Gary Collins to the Ambassadors and Houston Oilers quarterback Ed Hargett to the Honolulu Hawaiians Tuesday.

Baltimore linebackers Mike Curtis and Ted Hendricks, defensive end Roy

Hilton, running back Don McCauley and safety Rick Volk all are in the option year of their contracts and have expressed readiness to jump.

Miami Dolphins safety Jake Scott may find that there's enough money to purchase his services for the Honolulu Hawaiians. The Miami Herald reported in its Wednesday editions that Scott "is close" to a multi-year, six-figure contract with the WFL team.

So the Miami crisis continues. Thirteen other Dolphins have not yet signed their contracts for the coming season, and a number of that group are toying with the purse strings of the WFL owners.

Foreman-Ali Fight Set For Zaire?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Zaire sounds an unlikely place for a world heavyweight title fight between George Foreman and Muhammad Ali. But a British company is so sure of success that it is ready to pump $3 million into it.

Hemdale Lesisure Corp. says it has put up $1.5 million in front money to ensure the fight takes place next September.

A spokesman said the firm expects the promotion to cost it an additional $1.5 million to $2 million besides the front money.

Doubts have been cast on a world title fight in Africa. There are problems over television relay, hotels and press facilities. But if the fight comes off it could be the most lucrative sports spectacle in history.

The Hemdale group is active in movie production and distribution, music and gambling.

The firm took its name from film actor David Hemming and his partner John Daly, who founded it. Hemming is now out of the business. Daly runs it in association with television personality David Frost.

Prospects for the fight actually getting off the ground have been blanketed in confusion since Foreman smashed Ken Norton to defeat in Venezuela last week.

But Daly himself is leading a team to Kinshasa within the next two weeks to check out television problems. Zaire is not equipped with a television ground station — essential for the fight to be beamed up to satellites for transmission around the world.

Central Ohio Fishing Group Formed

A new organization was formed Monday to protect and develop fishing in a seven-county area of Central Ohio. Nearly 100,000 licensed fishermen reside in Franklin, Delaware, Union, Madison, Pickaway, Fairfield and Licking Counties. Each year their sport potential has been eroded away through competition with other water-related sports, pollution and poor planning.

The name of the new sportfishing group is the FRANKLIN ANGLERS. Officers elected at the organizational meeting were: Richard L. Paugh, president; John Murphy, vice president; Robert A. Boyd, secretary-treasurer. Directors include Marion (Red) Trabue, Dale Mount, Bill Harper, Archie Emswiler, Phil McGinnis, Skip Butts, Joe Plotnick, Rick Farquhar, Bob Lothamer and Joe Biggioni.

All sport fishermen living in the seven-county area and primarily interested in saving the native fishes of Central Ohio are urged to attend the April 10 meeting at Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Morse Road, Columbus at 7:30 p.m. Questions or applications may be obtained from Secretary Bob Boyd 3230 Norwood Avenue, Columbus 43224 (614-267-9438).

Up to this point in time, fishermen using the waters of Central Ohio have been unable to withstand the inroads of increased population, the ravages of agricultural and industry-related pollution or the organized take-over of fish spawning areas by powerboaters and skiers.

The Franklin Anglers will work with state and local governments to regain clean water, fishing easements and protection from further take-over of scarce local prime fishing areas. We invite all fishermen using the waters in the seven-county area to attend the next meeting and lend their support to this federation of fishermen.

During their first official board meeting, the Franklin Anglers voted to affiliate with the Conservation Society, a statewide non-profit group whose programs include the Teen-age Fishing Clinics and the Pollution Hotline. Each fisherman joining the Franklin Anglers will also be a member of the Society.

N.C. State's Dave Thompson Named Player Of The Year

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — David Thompson, the Associated Press College Basketball Player of the Year, honed his skills by playing against the "big boys" at Gardner-Webb College in Boiling Springs, N.C., not far from his Shelby home.

While in Crest High School, he would amble over to the college for some fun games against the likes of Artis Gilmore, now the premier 7-foot-2 center of the American Basketball Association Kentucky Colonels. He also went up against George Adams, now with San Diego of the ABA.

"I had to learn to jump high to shoot over them," said the two-time All-American, a mere 6-foot-4.

The 19-year-old North Carolina State junior's awesome leaping ability is just one fact of his superlative all-around play.

Thompson, who repeatedly has said he will shun pro offers until he graduates, because "the money will still be there," led State to a 30-1 record and the NCAA championship last week.

Just as his team dethroned perennial champion UCLA in the NCAA semifinals, Thompson replaced the Bruins' Bill Walton as AP player of the year. Thompson received the vote of 128 of the nation's sports writers and sportscasters to 85 for the 6-foot-11

Walton. Nine other players each got one vote.

Statistics tell only part of the story of his worth to Coach Norman Sloan's team. In 31 games Thompson averaged 26 points, 7.9 rebounds, shot 55 per cent from the floor and 75 at the foul line.

In four NCAA tournament games he scored 115 points, all against nationally ranked teams.

Counting his final year in high school and play on the State freshman team, Thompson-led teams are 117-8 for four years.

3 Items Affect Ohio Fishermen

By JIM DAUBEL
Written for Associated Press

Three things interest fishermen most this time of year: the calendar, weather forecasts and water temperatures.

Those three factors all have a bearing on angling success throughout the year but never more so than in the spring.

The calendar is important because it is the framework in which everything else fits.

It is helpful, for example, to know when fish spawn, how they are affected by heat and cold or when to anticipate seasonal changes in the life styles.

Weather has a strong influence any time, but primarily in spring and fall when it affects water temperatures most dramatically.

Now that ice has thawed, water temperature becomes the dominant influence on the nuptial activities of spring-spawning fish, and that includes virtually all species native to Ohio.

The fisherman who knows the preferred spawning temperature for various species and who takes advantage of fish spawning habits is most likely to succeed early in the year.

Walleyes, for instance, spawn in some rivers and on gravel shoals or reefs in lakes. The species begins spawning activities in earnest when the water reaches about 45 degrees.

It is then that river fishing for walleyes is most productive, although until that 45 degrees is reached action is slow in the few Ohio streams in which "pickerel" spawn.

Largemouth bass begin hitting lures when water temperatures are in the high 40s but bigmouth fishing reaches a high point of the year along in May when spawning commences with water readings in the low 60s.

Once aware specifically of when bass spawn, fishermen can capitalize on their knowledge of the fact that bedding bass defend their nest, often by striking intruding baits.

Smallmouth bass undertake serious springtime activity when the water warms to about 55 degrees, white bass at about 60 degrees and most panfish at about 67 degrees.

Water temperatures are critical throughout the year. Each species has its own preferred temperature and anglers who concentrate their efforts at those times do best.

For future reference, here are optimum temperatures at which degrees various species feed: largemouth bass, 70 degrees; smallmouth, 67; bluegills, 72; perch, 68; crappie, 68; walleye, 60; pike and muskie, 65; salmon, 55.

Waldrop Proves Top Trackster

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Tony Waldrop does not like to speculate about his goals for the coming outdoor track season.

It's partly because Waldrop, 22, is a self-effacing young man. It's also partly because the University of North Carolina senior knows it would be hard to top the indoor season he has just completed.

Waldrop's name was hardly a household word — even among track buffs — when the season began. But he turned in perhaps the finest indoor campaign an American middle distance runner has ever enjoyed.

In seven consecutive races, he broke the four-minute "barrier" in the mile. No other indoor runner had ever done that more than twice in a row.

He ran the first four-minute mile in the history of the Millrose Games in New York. He won the national collegiate championship.

In San Diego, he shattered the ten-year-old world indoor record of 3:56.4 with a 3:55.0 clocking. A week later, running virtually alone in the Atlantic Coast Conference championships, he nearly lapped the field with a time that matched the old indoor record.

Former Michigan State football coach Duffy Daugherty received the Walter Camp Football Foundation Award in 1973.

MILLION DOLLAR TRIO—Miami Dolphin players, from left, Paul Warfield, Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick, pose at Toronto, Can., after signing with the Toronto Northmen of the World Football League for a combined contract of $3 million. The trio will play out their option with the Dolphins this year before joining the Northmen.

CHEVROLET MAKES SENSE FOR AMERICA

EXAMPLE: AMERICA'S LOWEST PRICED INTERMEDIATES ARE BOTH CHEVELLES.

$2878* MALIBU 6 COUPE

Small enough to be easy to drive and easy to park; big enough to carry six passengers. That's Chevelle Malibu. It's already the most popular name in mid-size history (which tells you about its reputation for value) and now this sporty Malibu Coupe with a thrifty 6-cylinder engine is just $2878. What better reason to consider it as your next new car?

Chevrolet

$2873* MALIBU 6 SEDAN

For many, this is the ideal family car. It gives you Malibu economy, ease of handling and six-passenger interior with the special convenience of a four-door design. And notice again the price: $2873 for a six-passenger mid-size sedan with an economical 6-cylinder engine. As we say, Chevrolet makes sense for America.

Billingham To Hurl Opener

By ANDY LIPPMAN
AP Sports Writer

Gerald Ford and Jack Billingham have both been announced as starters for Thursday's major league baseball opener between the Cincinnati Reds and the Atlanta Braves in Atlanta.

But the vice president has a big advantage. He doesn't have to worry about serving up Hank Aaron's 714th home run.

"Everybody in the place is going to give him a standing ovation when he comes up to bat. My stomach is probably going to turn over a couple of times and I'll swallow hard. Then I'll have to get down to business," said the lanky Cincinnati pitcher who has given up five homers to Aaron in his career.

There's no indication that Aaron will definitely be in the Braves' line-up to continue his pursuit of Babe Ruth's career homer mark, other than Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's recent memo that he expected the 40-year-old star to make an appearance.

But if the homer does come, Billingham says it won't be the end of the world.

"It's not something that's going to haunt me the rest of my life," Billingham said. "Nobody will remember it a month later."

Ford was named as the White House starter for the opener, accepting an invitation from Kuhn and Reds' President Bob Howsam.

In exhibition games Tuesday, Minnesota bombed Boston 13-0, a split Philadelphia Phillies squad lost to Pittsburgh 10-2, while another squad beat the St. Louis Cardinals 8-4, the Chicago White Sox beat the Reds 7-6, the Milwaukee Brewers trimmed the Chicago Cubs 11-10, the New York Mets blanked the New York Yankees 3-0, the Detroit Tigers beat the Houston Astros 4-2, the Atlanta Braves edged the Baltimore Orioles 3-2, the California Angels beat University of Southern California 8-5, and Los Angeles Dodgers beat San Francisco 10-8.

The game between Montreal and Kansas City was called off because of rain.

The ball Ford throws out won't be worth anything near what the record-breaking ball hit out of the park by Aaron will bring. Spalding, whose baseballs are used by both major leagues, got into the ball bidding business Tuesday, offering $15,000 for the ball Aaron hits for No. 715.

Meanwhile, the Texas Rangers were sold by Bob Short to a Dallas-Fort Worth group for $10 million dollars.

Short, who retained 10 per cent of the team, said, "I did everything I could in Washington to make the team a success, and I wouldn't stay with this team if I didn't believe it eventually will pay dividends."

Chicago Cubs pitcher Milt Pappas topped a list of several players who were trimmed by clubs shuffling their rosters in preparation for opening-day play.

Pappas, 34, is one victory shy of becoming the third pitcher to notch 100 victories in each league. While pitching in the American League, he compiled 110 victories, while he has won 99 games in the National League.

Norm Sloan Cage Coach Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Norm Sloan, a low-key boss who plays down his role with North Carolina State's national championship basketball team, was named The Associated Press Coach of the Year today.

The modest transplanted Hoosier scored a runaway victory over Marquette's Al McGuire, a man whom Sloan beat just as easily for the national title.

The 47-year-old Sloan collected 81 points to 35 for McGuire in balloting by the nation's sports writers and broadcasters.

Notre Dame's Dick Phelps placed third with 24 votes, Michigan's Johnny Orr was fourth with 19 and UCLA's John Wooden, who has won this award five times, was fifth with 14.

Preaching "love" among his players, Sloan directed the Wolfpack to a 30-1 record this season, including the 76-64 victory over Marquette in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's finals.

But he's not overly impressed with his part in the formidable accomplishments.

"People give coaching too much credit," he has often said. "Players win the games, not the coaches."

Sloan has mystical rapport with his players, as well as an enormous attachment. In his eighth season, those ingredients have helped him compile a 145-71 record, including a 27-0 mark last year when the Wolfpack was on NCAA probation for recruiting violations.

Prior to taking over the North Carolina State post, Sloan coached at Presbyterian College, The Citadel and Florida. His overall coaching record is 358-208 and he has won Coach of the Year honors in three different conferences — the Southern, Southeastern and twice in the Atlantic Coast Conference. He has guided the Wolfpack to three ACC titles.

Sloan's emergence as the nation's No. 1 coach moves Wooden out of the spotlight, temporarily at least. The UCLA coach was named Coach of the Year in 1967, 1969, 1970, 1972 and 1973.

Other coaches receiving votes this year: Charles Riddell, Pitt (10); Ted Owens, Kansas (8); Lute Olson, Long Beach State (5); Roy Skinner, Vanderbilt (3); Eddie Sutton, Creighton (2); Don Donohue, Dayton (2) and Fred Schaus, Purdue (2).

Cougars Top Knights In WHA, 7-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I played goal, defense and forward in my sleep last night, and I woke up this morning a wreck," said Chicago Cougar Player-Coach Pat Stapleton.

"We all felt we had to make the playoffs because if you don't, nobody pays any attention to the good season you had," Stapleton said Tuesday night after the Cougars defeated the Jersey Knights 7-3 to clinch a spot in the World Hockey Association playoffs.

Jan Popiel scored three goals in the victory, as Chicago moved to an insurmountable 4-0 lead going into the final period.

The Cougars will play either New England or Toronto in the first round of the East playoffs this coming weekend.

In the other WHA game, the Toronto Toros nipped Edmonton 3-2.

In the National Hockey League, the New York Islanders beat Pittsburgh 3-2, Philadelphia stormed Minnesota 6-3, and St. Louis defeated California 5-3.

Bill Bunetta Sets Clinic At Circle D

Bill Bunetta, a member of the AMF Staff of Champions and an ABC Hall of Fame bowler, will conduct two clinics and roll a pair of exhibition matches Saturday at Circle "D" Lanes.

BILL BUNETTA

At 1 p.m., Bunetta will hold a clinic, roll a three-game match with local bowler Linda Owens and give instructions and tips to bowlers in action on the lanes.

He will return at 7 p.m. with a clinic and instructions and tips to bowlers in action. His evening match will be a three game series with local kegler Barry Fisher.

Bunetta began bowling in 1942 and has become known as "The Professor" by his fellow pros and better bowlers everywhere. Because of his in-depth knowledge of the sport and his ability to impart it to others, AMF utilizes him extensively in clinic and instructor forums.

He has rolled five sanctioned "300" games and a total of 22 perfect games overall. His highest sanctioned series is 836 and he holds a 208 average over a 10-year span.

Braves' Bats Come To Life Against Visiting Aces

Logan Elm's baseball team wore its hitting shoes Tuesday in a game against visiting Amanda-Clearcreek, bombing the Aces, 28-3.

Paced by Greg Justus, Scott Pontius and Jeff Reichelderfer, the Braves boomed 21 hits, six for extra bases.

Pontius drove in seven runs, going four for four at the plate with a pair of singles, a double and a 2-run homer.

Reichelderfer drove in four runs with three singles, a double and a 3-run homer in the third inning in five trips to the plate. Greg Justus drove in four runs with three singles and a lead-off homerun in the second inning.

Steve Rawlins smacked a grand slam homerun in the second inning. Mark Justus drove in three runs with three singles. Derek Morris drove in two runs with one single. Chuck Cave drove in a run with a sacrifice fly. Ron Stevens hit a single, Randy Pontius two singles to drive in one run and Mark Skinner was credited with run batted in.

LE Coach Vic Pontius used three pitchers, Scott Pontius, Derek Morris and Tim Justus. They gave up five singles, walked four and struck out 11.

Hitting singles for Amanda-Clearcreek were Jim Destadio, Mike

Cassill, Bud Cordle, Keith Kelley and Tom McKenzie. Russ Martin was the first of four pitchers used by the Aces. They allowed 21 hits, walked nine and fanned two.

The Braves, one and one for the season, are scheduled to host Westfall 4:30 p.m. today, weather permitting. Amanda-Clearcreek has a one and two record.

County Softball To Hold Meeting

Pickaway County Softball Association will hold an organizational meeting 7:30 p.m. Friday in the K of C Hall.

Teams in the Pickaway County area are requested to have their manager or a team member attend the meeting.

Linksmen Top Flaget

Circleville's golf squad turned in a 160-174 win over visiting Bishop Flaget Tuesday at the Pickaway Country Club.

Jeff Spires and Mark McFadden tied for medalist honors with 39s, Terry Spellacy and Mike Currie both carded 41s while Jim England had a 42 for the Tigers.

M. Earnce led Bishop Flaget with a 40, J. Burns and V. Gaus both carded 44s. J. Melaragno had a 46 and M. Ball tallied 49.

Circleville will host Lancaster and Bishop Waterson 4 p.m. today and will be at home with Wehrle and Madison Plains 4 p.m. Thursday. Both matches will be at Pickaway Country Club.

Aspromonte Ponders Opening Day Lineup

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Cleveland Indians Manager Ken Aspromonte is still pondering his opening day lineup as the Tribe prepares to head east for Saturday's season opener in New York's Shea Stadium.

Manager Gene Mauch of the Montreal Expos has been a major league pilot 15 years.

NFL Gets Into Signing Game

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Long months remain before the football season opens officially, but the way things have been going in the offseason, the games could prove an anticlimax.

The National Football League, made more fully aware of the World Football League by the bombshell signings of the three Miami Dolphin stars Sunday, reached deep into its pocketbook Tuesday and came up with two first-round draft choices.

Massive defensive tackle Carl Barzilauskas agreed to terms with the American Conference New York Jets for a three-year contract reported as high as $650,000, while the Chicago Bears signed No. 1 choice Waymond Bryant of Tennessee State — a linebacker.

In both cases, the NFL made strong overtures to the college stars, only to lose in the bargaining through doubts that it — regardless of Messrs. Csonka, Warfield and Kiick — will prove itself viable this summer.

"I put a lot of emphasis on playing in the NFL," said Bryant, the second-round pick of the Washington-Baltimore Ambassadors. "We had doubts the WFL would get off the ground."

Barzilauskas, 6-foot-6 and 265

pounds, felt the same way. The offer from the New York Stars was termed "substantial" by the big tackle's lawyer, and covered fewer years, but Barzilauskas expressed concern over the numerous franchise shifts the WFL already has suffered.

That fact apparently didn't matter to Oakland Raider veteran quarterback Ken Stabler, who jumped to the WFL Birmingham Americans — starting with the 1976 season — for a multi-year contract one agent said made him the highest-paid player in the sport's history.

It wasn't the money that brought about the move. "Getting back to the South was pretty important to me," said the 27-year-old — the AFC's leading passer last season and engineer of a 9-4-1 playoff season for the Raiders.

"I was born in the South, raised in the South, played football in the South (at Alabama), and I'd like to continue to do so."

But money may draw five starting players from the Baltimore Colts to the WFL as it did former All-Pro wide receiver Gary Collins to the Ambassadors and Houston Oilers quarterback Ed Hargett to the Honolulu Hawaiians Tuesday.

Hilton, running back Don McCauley and safety Rick Volk all are in the option year of their contracts and have expressed readiness to jump.

Miami Dolphins safety Jake Scott may find that there's enough money to purchase his services for the Honolulu Hawaiians. The Miami Herald reported in its Wednesday editions that Scott "is close" to a multi-year, six-figure contract with the WFL team.

So the Miami crisis continues. Thirteen other Dolphins have not yet signed their contracts for the coming season, and a number of that group are toying with the purse strings of the WFL owners.

Foreman-Ali Fight Set For Zaire?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Zaire sounds an unlikely place for a world heavyweight title fight between George Foreman and Muhammad Ali. But a British company is so sure of success that it is ready to pump $3 million into it.

Hemdale Lesisure Corp. says it has put up $1.5 million in front money to ensure the fight takes place next September.

A spokesman said the firm expects the promotion to cost it an additional $1.5 million to $2 million besides the front money.

Doubts have been cast on a world title fight in Africa. There are problems over television relay, hotels and press facilities. But if the fight comes off it could be the most lucrative sports spectacle in history.

The Hemdale group is active in movie production and distribution, music and gambling.

The firm took its name from film actor David Hemming and his partner John Daly, who founded it. Hemming is now out of the business. Daly runs it in association with television personality David Frost.

Prospects for the fight actually getting off the ground have been blanketed in confusion since Foreman smashed Ken Norton to defeat in Venezuela last week.

But Daly himself is leading a team to Kinshasa within the next two weeks to check out television problems. Zaire is not equipped with a television ground station — essential for the fight to be beamed up to satellites for transmission around the world.

Central Ohio Fishing Group Formed

A new organization was formed Monday to protect and develop fishing in a seven-county area of Central Ohio. Nearly 100,000 licensed fishermen reside in Franklin, Delaware, Union, Madison, Pickaway, Fairfield and Licking Counties. Each year their sport potential has been eroded away through competition with other water-related sports, pollution and poor planning.

The name of the new sportfishing group is the FRANKLIN ANGLERS. Officers elected at the organizational meeting were: Richard L. Paugh, president; John Murphy, vice president; Robert A. Boyd, secretary-treasurer. Directors include Marion (Red) Trabue, Dale Mount, Bill Harper, Archie Emswiler, Phil McGinnis, Skip Butts, Joe Plotnick, Rick Farquhar, Bob Lohamer and Joe Biggioni.

All sport fishermen living in the seven-county area and primarily interested in saving the native fishes of Central Ohio are urged to attend the April 10 meeting at Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Morse Road, Columbus at 7:30 p.m. Questions or applications may be obtained from Secretary Bob Boyd 3230 Norwood Avenue, Columbus 43224 (614-267-9438).

Up to this point in time, fishermen using the waters of Central Ohio have been unable to withstand the inroads of increased population, the ravages of agricultural and industry-related pollution or the organized take-over of fish spawning areas by powerboaters and skiers.

The Franklin Anglers will work with state and local governments to regain clean water, fishing easements and protection from further take-over of scarce local prime fishing areas. We invite all fishermen using the waters in the seven-county area to attend the next meeting and lend their support to this federation of fishermen.

During their first official board meeting, the Franklin Anglers voted to affiliate with the Conservation Society, a statewide non-profit group whose programs include the Teen-age Fishing Clinics and the Pollution Hotline. Each fisherman joining the Franklin Anglers will also be a member of the Society.

During January, more money on thoroughbred racing at Bowie in Maryland was wagered at New York City off-track betting windows than at the racetrack.

N.C. State's Dave Thompson Named Player Of The Year

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — David Thompson, the Associated Press College Basketball Player of the Year, honed his skills by playing against the "big boys" at Gardner-Webb College in Boiling Springs, N.C., not far from his Shelby home.

While in Crest High School, he would amble over to the college for some fun games against the likes of Artis Gilmore, now the premier 7-foot-2 center of the American Basketball Association Kentucky Colonels. He also went up against George Adams, now with San Diego of the ABA.

"I had to learn to jump high to shoot over them," said the two-time All-American, a mere 6-foot-4.

The 19-year-old North Carolina State junior's awesome leaping ability is just one fact of his superlative all-around play.

Thompson, who repeatedly has said he will shun pro offers until he graduates, because "the money will still be there," led State to a 30-1 record and the NCAA championship last week.

Just as his team dethroned perennial champion UCLA in the NCAA semifinals, Thompson replaced the Bruins' Bill Walton as AP player of the year. Thompson received the vote of 128 of the nation's sports writers and sportscasters to 85 for the 6-foot-11

Walton. Nine other players each got one vote.

Statistics tell only part of the story of his worth to Coach Norman Sloan's team. In 31 games Thompson averaged 26 points, 7.9 rebounds, shot 55 per cent from the floor and 75 at the foul line.

In four NCAA tournament games he scored 115 points, all against nationally ranked teams.

Counting his final year in high school and play on the State freshman team, Thompson-led teams are 117-8 for four years.

By JIM DAUBEL
Written for Associated Press

Three things interest fishermen most this time of year: the calendar, weather forecasts and water temperatures.

Those three factors all have a bearing on angling success throughout the year but never more so than in the spring.

The calendar is important because it is the framework in which everything else fits.

It is helpful, for example, to know when fish spawn, how they are affected by heat and cold or when to anticipate seasonal changes in the life styles.

Weather has a strong influence any time, but primarily in spring and fall when it affects water temperatures most dramatically.

Now that ice has thawed, water temperature becomes the dominant influence on the nuptial activities of spring-spawning fish, and that includes virtually all species native to Ohio.

The fisherman who knows the preferred spawning temperature for various species and who takes advantage of fish spawning habits is most likely to succeed early in the year.

Walleyes, for instance, spawn in some rivers and on gravel shoals or reefs in lakes. The species begins spawning activities in earnest when the water reaches about 45 degrees.

It is then that river fishing for walleyes is most productive, although until that 45 degrees is reached action is slow in the few Ohio streams in which "pickereel" spawn.

Largemouth bass begin hitting lures when water temperatures are in the high 40s but bigmouth fishing reaches a high point of the year along in May when spawning commences with water readings in the low 60s.

Once aware specifically of when bass spawn, fishermen can capitalize on their knowledge of the fact that bedding bass defend their nest, often by striking intruding baits.

Smallmouth bass undertake serious springtime activity when the water warms to about 55 degrees, white bass at about 60 degrees and most panfish at about 67 degrees.

Water temperatures are critical throughout the year. Each species has its own preferred temperature and anglers who concentrate their efforts at those times do best.

For future reference, here are optimum temperatures at which degrees various species feed: largemouth bass, 70 degrees; smallmouth, 67; bluegills, 72; perch, 68; crappie, 68; walleye, 60; pike and muskie, 65; salmon, 55.

Waldrop Proves Top Trackster

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Tony Waldrop does not like to speculate about his goals for the coming outdoor track season.

It's partly because Waldrop, 22, is a self-effacing young man. It's also partly because the University of North Carolina senior knows it would be hard to top the indoor season he has just completed.

Waldrop's name was hardly a household word — even among track buffs — when the season began. But he turned in perhaps the finest indoor campaign an American middle distance runner has ever enjoyed.

In seven consecutive races, he broke the four-minute "barrier" in the mile. No other indoor runner had ever done that more than twice in a row.

He ran the first four-minute mile in the history of the Millrose Games in New York. He won the national collegiate championship.

In San Diego, he shattered the ten-year-old world indoor record of 3:56.4 with a 3:55.0 clocking. A week later, running virtually alone in the Atlantic Coast Conference championships, he nearly lapped the field with a time that matched the old indoor record.

Former Michigan State football coach Duffy Daugherty received the Walter Camp Football Foundation Award in 1973.

EXAMPLE: AMERICA'S LOWEST PRICED INTERMEDIATES ARE BOTH CHEVELLES.

$2878* MALIBU 6 COUPE

Small enough to be easy to drive and easy to park; big enough to carry six passengers. That's Chevelle Malibu. It's already the most popular name in mid-size history (which tells you about its reputation for value) and now this sporty Malibu Coupe with a thrifty 6-cylinder engine is just $2878. What better reason to consider it as your next new car?

$2873* MALIBU 6 SEDAN

For many, this is the ideal family car. It gives you Malibu economy, ease of handling and six-passenger interior with the special convenience of a four-door design. And notice again the price: $2873 for a six-passenger mid-size sedan with an economical 6-cylinder engine. As we say, Chevrolet makes sense for America.

*Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price, including dealer new vehicle preparation charge. Destination charges, optional equipment, state or local taxes are additional.

Texas Rangers Sold By Short

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Bob Short says his six-year venture into professional baseball was a "break-even" matter financially after making a $5 million profit off the Los Angeles Lakers in basketball.

Short, a Minneapolis trucking baron, sold the Texas Rangers of the American League for $10 million Tuesday to a Dallas-Fort Worth group headed by industrialist Brad Corbett, but retained 10 per cent of the club.

"I paid $9.4 million for the (baseball) team and it was almost a break-even situation," Short said after a news conference. "It was great I didn't go under. Now, when I sold the Lakers it was almost all profit. The sale price was $5.175 million and most of it was profit."

Short, who lost $1 million in the two years the Rangers were in Texas, said "I wish I could have done better by myself."

Short added, "I have great joy but some misgivings in making the announcement. I did everything I could in Washington to make the team a success, and I wouldn't stay with this group if I didn't believe it eventually will pay dividends."

He said, "I'll stay in at least a full year and I might be in forever. It just depends on how things go. A million dollars is still a lot of money to me."

Short drew the wrath of the Washington, D.C., press and some club owners when he moved the team from the nation's capital to Texas.

"I feel metropolplex ownership of the team will give it a big boost," Short said. "It's good it is now locally owned."

Corbett of Fort Worth, who parlayed a $300,000 loan from the Small Business Administration into a company that reported sales of $55 million in 1973, said, "I come from the Bronx and grew up in the shadows of Yankee Stadium. It's always been a dream to own a major league team."

Corbett's numerous partners include Edward "Buzz" Kemble, a Fort Worth lawyer; Aron Carter Jr., publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram; Bill Harvey, a Fort Worth businessman; Dr. Bobby Brown, a heart specialist and former New York Yankee star third baseman; Dallas businessmen Bill Seay, Charley Sharp and Ray Nasher; and Clayton Walker, a friend of Corbett's and a prominent businessman in Pittsburg, Kan.

Norman, Griffey Spark Reds Win

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Fred Norman and Ken Griffey saved their best for last and returned home with the Cincinnati Reds buoyed by strong showings in Tuesday's final exhibition baseball outing.

Norman, one of the Reds' four starters, turned in a one-hit stint for four innings and Griffey, saddled by a slump earlier, showed signs he was ready to pick up where he left off last fall. Griffey drilled a ninth inning single to score the winning run in a 7-6 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

He had a two-run homer in the seventh inning to put the Reds in front 6-5.

"I'm just glad to end spring training that way," said the fleet Pennsylvanian who turns 24 next week.

Elevated from the minors at the end of last season, Griffey was a sensation. He hit .384 in 25 games to keep the Reds in the thick of the pennant race.

His two hits represented his best outing since going 3-for-5 two weeks ago. Since then he has been 2-for-14.

his brilliant spring spree by slamming his fourth homer. Dan Driessen stroked a double and a single to drive in two runs.

The three youngsters figure heavily in Manager George "Sparky" Anderson's plans for a fourth Western Division title in five years.

Norman's shutout effort came after Roger Nelson was kayed for four runs on six consecutive hits in an inning's work. The White Sox managed only three more hits the last eight innings off Norman, Clay Carroll and Pedro Borbon.

Borbon, the winner, gave up his first run of the spring, but it was unearned. A holdout, he finished with an 0.00 earned run average in 8 2-3 innings of work.

The Reds finished with a 13-12 record.

In London, the Daily Express predicted in a story on a government report on drinking habits: "Britain faces an explosion in alcoholism—with the prospect of a million addicts by 1980."

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of ABC-TV says the way children's weekend morning TV shows now are rated should be replaced with an industrywide system to measure not only audience size and makeup, but also the effect of such programs and their commercials on young viewers.

James E. Duffy made the proposal in an interview. He took a much stronger stand than in a recent speech in which he urged the industry only to "take a long, hard look at the possibility of eliminating children's audience ratings on the weekend, on a national basis."

He was asked in the interview if he personally would like to see that type of rating abolished.

"Sure," he replied. "I would. But you can't do it alone. That's the whole point. This is such a competitive business and the stakes are so high that one network ... can't do it alone."

The ratings employ two basic methods, according to a spokesman for the A.C. Nielsen ratings service. One is a device attached to TV sets in 1,200 homes. It records the channel to which the set is tuned.

The other method is a diary, kept by 2,400 households. The residents, for a fee, note in them who watched what and when. One-third of these diaries are collected weekly for evaluation, the spokesman said.

Despite advances in the quality of children's programming, Duffy said, this ratings system isn't enough now. What's needed, he said, is a "broaderbased study, a much larger sample, that would not only indicate popularity, but also would give (viewer) attitudes toward program and commercial content."

He said the samplings should be "in-depth," made every four months to allow for a more thorough audience assessment, and include what he called "psychographics," or the kinds of reactions programs and commercials cause in viewers.

He said he'd like to hear if the Nielsen ratings service is interested in the idea "along the criteria we've laid out here."

But for the time being, Duffy said, there could be a test study of the proposal, possibly lasting two years and financed either by the three networks and independent stations, or by the National Association of Broadcasters, which claims 531 television stations as members.

He said he hasn't proposed it yet to officials at CBS, NBC or the NAB because he's been travelling on business and also is "waiting to see what kind of action the other two networks will take."

"And if there isn't some in a short period of time, then I'm going to my management and see what kind of action we can go with from there."

Both NBC and CBS were noncommittal when asked by a spokesman if they supported Duffy's proposal to eliminate TV ratings for children's weekend programs and replace them with the system outlined by the ABC executive.

Academy Awards Show Complete With Streaker

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Sting," Glenda Jackson and Jack Lemmon were the big winners at the 46th Academy Awards presentation, which had something for everybody. Even a streaker.

"The Sting" stung four other box office favorites, most prominently "The Exorcist," and collected seven Oscars, including best picture of 1973. Lemmon, tortured garment maker of "Save the Tiger," and Miss Jackson, the English lady on a swinging vacation in "A Touch of Class," won top acting honors in the awards Tuesday night. It was a second Oscar for both.

"The Exorcist," which won two Oscars, was an early favorite in the race for best picture. But its shock and violence seemed to turn off many of the Academy voters, who are predominantly mature and longstanding members of the film community.

They seem to prefer a standard and trouble-free film like "The Sting," the stylish tale of a mammoth confidence game in Chicago.

Both "The Exorcist" and "The Sting" had been nominated for 10 awards.

In addition to best picture, "The Sting" won Oscars for George Roy Hill's direction and David S. Ward's screenplay. Julia Phillips shared producing honors with her husband, Michael, and former actor Tony Bill, becoming the first woman producer to win Hollywood's biggest prize.

Youth and age were served in the supporting acting categories. John Houseman, 71, the heartless Harvard professor of "The Paper Chase," and Tatum O'Neal, 9, the cigarettesmoking confidence girl of "Paper Moon," won in their first film roles.

The awards ceremony was enlivened by a totally nude 33-year-old man who dashed across the stage before the Music Center audience as David Niven prepared to introduce Elizabeth Taylor.

The nudity was not seen by viewers tuned in to the nationally televised awards ceremony.

The streaker identified himself as Robert Opel, a Hollywood advertising man. He said his streak was "a hell of a way to launch a career as a comic."

Lemmon, 49, the Harvard graduate who won a supporting Oscar in 1955 for "Mister Roberts," responded emotionally to his award. He commented pointedly about actors who had criticized the award. He said he felt it was "one hell of an honor, and I am thrilled."

"Save the Tiger" was his fourth

nomination as best actor.

Miss Jackson, 39, was making a film in Rome and was unable to accept her second Oscar. It was claimed by Mel Frank, coauthor and directorproducer of "A Touch of Class." Miss Jackson won her first Oscar in 1970 for "Women In Love."

Houseman, veteran Broadway and Hollywood producer and now head of the Juilliard School for Dramatics in New York's Lincoln Center, performed his first screen role in "The Paper Chase."

"For the first time in a long and tumultuous life, I am almost speechless — but not quite," said the urbane Houseman.

His award was popular with the trade audience, as was that of perky Tatum O'Neal, who upstaged her father, Ryan, in "Paper Moon." Dressed in a stylish satin tuxedo with high heels, she thanked her director, Peter Bogdanovich, and her father.

"Day For Night," Francois Truffaut's story of the travails of making a movie, won the Oscar as best foreign language film.

The best song was "The Way We Were," from the movie of the same name, with music by Marvin Hamlisch and lyrics by Alan and Marilyn Bergman. Hamlisch also won Oscars for his scores for "The Sting" and "The Way We Were."

The telecast was a full and sometimes deadening three hours, but as usual, the show had its touching and dramatic moments.

Two standing ovations were accorded to veteran superstars Katharine Hepburn and Groucho Marx. Miss Hepburn, still lovely but tremulous of voice, presented the Irving G. Thalberg Memorial Award for consistent high production to Lawrence Weingarten, who made some of her best comedies.

Groucho, 83 and looking it, appeared on stage to accept an honorary Oscar and the Academy's homage for himself and his zany brothers, stars of classic comedies of the 1930s and 1940s.

"I wish Harpo and Chico could have been here to share this great award," the comic remarked. He said he also wished the award could be shared by his long-time dowager foil, the late Margaret Dumont.

"Most of all I want to thank my mother, because without her none of us would have been anything," said Groucho. He also paid tribute to his manager-girl friend, Erin Fleming, "who makes my life worth living. She understands all my jokes."

Pompidou Mourned

PARIS — (AP) — France today faced the prospect of a fierce election battle following the sudden death of President Georges Pompidou.

Pompidou, the republic's president since June 20, 1969, died Tuesday night.

Premier Pierre Messmer summoned government ministers to a meeting today to make arrangements for Pompidou's funeral. Informed sources said it would be a private ceremony restricted to his immediate family, with burial at Orvilliers, the village southwest of Paris where Pompidou had a country retreat.

An official memorial service will be held in Paris Saturday, probably in the Cathedral of Notre Dame, the sources said.

Pompidou returned from a weekend at Orvilliers to his private apartment on the Ile St. Louis in the Seine early Tuesday, and apparently he died there.

A one-sentence announcement from the Elysee Palace said the 62-year-old president died at 9 p.m. The cause of death was not announced, but there had been widespread reports for the past year that he was suffering from some form of cancer.

Since early last year, his face and body had swelled up and he had fatigued easily. But official reports usually said he had influenza.

At Pompidou's death, Alain Poher, president of the Senate, automatically became interim president. The 65-year old Centrist also served as interim president briefly after the resignation of the late Charles de Gaulle in 1969. In the election that followed, he lost to Pompidou, the Gaullist candidate.

Poher must arrange a presidential election within 20 to 35 days of Pompidou's death, or between April 22 and May 7. The new president will be elected for a full seven-year term, not to serve out the two years and two months remaining in Pompidou's term.

Pompidou, the son of a southern schoolteacher, came to office in 1969 as the heir to De Gaulle and his strong presidency. He had served for six years as De Gaulle's premier, but he lacked his mentor's towering personality.

His popularity decreased in recent months as France was battered by economic hardships and the energy crisis.

His death left the Gaullist camp divided, with no clear successor. The front runners were believed to be Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing, who is not formally a Gaullist, and former Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas.

Giscard d'Estaing, 48, is the leader in public opinion polls. A brilliant economist, he leads the small Independent Republican party which has been solidly allied with the Gaullists.

Chaban-Delmas had been preparing to run for the presidency in 1976, when Pompidou's term would have expired, since his ouster as premier in July 1972. He is expected to get the support of the Gaullists.

The Communists and Socialists are expected to back the Socialist party's secretary-general and perennial candidate, Francois Mitterand. He would profit if Chaban-Delmas and Giscard d'Estaing split the Gaullists.

Pompidou is survived by his widow, the former Claude Cahour, and one son, Alain, a doctor.

Major Bills Before Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State lawmakers try to wind up business for a month's recess today with final action expected on energy, farm tax, and campaign financing bills.

However, an 11th hour deadlock on the campaign financing bill caused tempers to flare Tuesday, and some observers are saying that the embattled legislation is in jeopardy.

The dispute came among members of a Senate-House conference committee over whether the penalty — prohibiting a candidate from running again — for a candidate filing his financial statement after the deadline should be cut from five years to one year.

Sen. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake, conceded that a Senate colleague, Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Midletown, would be the main benefactor of such an amendment. But he said "there are about 600 (under the penalty) statewide, many of whom filed late because they were confused and did not get proper instructions from their boards of election."

Matia, chief sponsor of the bill and chairman of the conference committee, was joined in his insistence on the "Lukens amendment" by Sen. Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland. It takes two members of each house on a six-member conference committee to resolve differences.

House Speaker A.G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, lashed out at Matia and Van Meter for "trying to kill that bill. If those two senators get it done, they will be blasted not only by the Democrats, but by their fellow Republicans."

House Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, said House Republicans are against the amendment "not because of Lukens, but because we simply think none of that language belongs in the bill. Some of us think it is unconstitutional because it gets into retroactive law."

Lukens was ruled off Ohio ballots for failure to file his personal campaign financial statement within 45 days after the November 1972 election. The language Matia wants inserted would have the one-year penalty begin with the effective date of the bill, restoring Lukens' eligibility and that of others in the same situation in time for 1976 elections.

The conference committee planned to meet again today, but there was no indication anyone was ready to give in. An obvious alternative would be for the committee to dissolve itself and for leaders to name another one in its place.

Meanwhile, the Senate planned to act today on a compromise bill creating a state energy commission and gearing up the state for possible future shortages. It also would be the first to act on the campaign financing bill if an agreement can be reached. The Senate approved Tuesday the bill that gives Ohio's farmers a break on their property taxes. It comes up today in the House.

Earlier, the House approved 87-7 and sent to the Senate a major bill beefing up the state's fire protection laws. It replaces the state fire marshal with a 10-member commission and empowers it to set various safety standards, including those that regulate the flammability of consumer products.

The measure also requires training and licensing of volunteer as well as paid firefighters, and provides that local subdivisions can set standards more stringent than those set forth in the state fire code. The volunteers would have to have a minimum of 30 hours of training.

Major floor action in the Senate was 30-2 approval of the bill extending property tax relief to farmers. It provides that farm lands may be taxed on the basis of its agricultural use rather than market value.

SLA Says Patricia Hearst Release Details Set Soon

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The parents of kidnaped Patricia Hearst say they believe the Symbionese Liberation Army will keep its promise to reveal by Friday where and when it will free her.

In a typed letter delivered Tuesday to the editor of an underground newspaper, along with a dozen long-stemmed roses and a comic greeting card, the SLA said "further communication will follow in the following 72 hours" giving "the state, city and time of release of the prisoner."

"Of course we're very pleased to learn that the SLA will release Patricia," Randolph A. Hearst said in a statement to newsmen at his home in suburban Hillsborough.

"I'm sure they will," added Hearst, editor and president of the San Francisco Examiner. "I've been sure all along that she was well. And if they say they'll release her, I believe it."

The message, dated March 29, was delivered to John Bryan at the office of the biweekly Phoenix which he edits. It broke a 23-day silence by the terrorist SLA, which dragged the 20-year-old college coed from her Berkeley apartment on Feb. 4.

It was unclear when the SLA's self-imposed deadline would expire, because a florist delivered the communique with the flowers 17 hours late.

Kallioi Volikakis, owner of Crete Florists, said she told a smartly dressed brown-haired young woman who ordered the roses Monday and enclosed the letter that she would deliver them no later than 6 p.m. But Mrs. Volikakis said her car broke down and she wasn't able to make the delivery until late Tuesday morning.

The last SLA message on March 10 denounced the Hearsts for allegedly failing to meet demands in good faith and included a stinging taped rebuke by Miss Hearst in which she accused her father of "washing his hands" of the case.

The new communique was accompanied by half of a California driver's license bearing Miss Hearst's signature and most of her photograph. The state Department of Motor Vehicles said in Sacramento that details on the license match its records of Miss Hearst's license, including the initial of the issuing clerk.

Council Improves Fringe Benefits For City Employees

Circleville City Council Tuesday approved legislation improving fringe benefits to city employees.

The fringe benefits are part of the wage package negotiated primarily by the Circleville Fire Department in talks with council earlier this year.

Legislation granted death benefits, added vacation, improved hospitalization, defined paid holidays to all full-time city employees.

The ordinance granting death benefits to the surviving spouses or other heirs of employees killed in the line of duty or who die within six months of injuries received in the line of duty was approved unanimously. City Solicitor William Stevenson informed council that in individual instances exceptions to the six-months deadline could be granted.

The survivors benefits are to equal one year's salary. The paid vacation schedule for all city employees is now two weeks after one year, three weeks after five years and four weeks after 10 years.

The paid holiday schedule for all city employees is New Year's Day, President's Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Veterans Day, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas. A working day is defined in the ordinance as eight hours for all departments except the fire department and for them it is 24 hours. (City firemen are on duty 24 hours and off 48.

Those employees required to work a holiday will be entitled to a day off at some other time.

Legislation was passed in which the city will pay all the employee's medical insurance but not for his family. This will more than double the amount paid by the city which has been paying $7 a month for each employee.

Because of the number of employees in the fire department who will benefit from the improved vacation and holiday schedule, it became necessary to increase the size of the department according to Councilman David Goldschmidt. An ordinance adding one lieutenant and one fireman to the department was approved.

Authorized strength of the department is now one chief, four lieutenants and 13 firemen.

The wage increases and fringe benefits granted to all employees of the city will cost an additional $40,000 according to Councilman Goldschmidt who is chairman of finance committee. This figure does not include the cost of salaries for added manpower for the fire department he stated.

In addition to the fringe benefits legislation, City Council members authorized the Ohio Department of Highway Safety to install advance warning signs at all railroad crossings in the city. The installation of the signs will not obligate the city financially. However, the city will be responsible for maintenance of the signs.

The Park Board was authorized to advertise for bids for construction of a new basketball court at Ted Lewis Park and for bids for resurfacing three tennis courts at the park. Funds for this improvement were allocated at the March 19 meeting of council.

An ordinance authorizing the director of public service to advertise for bids for an aerial bucket truck was held for a third reading. The truck, also equipped with a utility bed will replace a 1964 ladder truck, a 1961 van truck and a 1948 dump truck. The

NEW YORK (AP) — A modest technical rally nudged stock market prices higher today in light trading.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 3.05 at 849.66, while gainers clung to a very slight lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the advance seemed to be based in large part on buying by traders attracted by the depressed prices of many issues. The slow pace of trading showed that many investors were still cautious because of high interest rates, inflation, and other worries, brokers said.

Unroyal, unchanged at 9 1/4, was the Big Board's most-active stock. An 87,800-share block traded at that price.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was up .16 at 96.48.

Other Big Board issues on the active list included Polaroid, down 2 at 59 3/4.

The Amex volume leader was Simplex Wire & Cable, up 1/4 at 23 3/4.

The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks inched up .06 to 49.87.

Levy Plans Made By Logan Elm Board

The Logan Elm Board of Education met in regular session Monday night to develop plans for providing information for the upcoming operating levy. The levy will be submitted to voters on the May primary ballot.

Routine business conducted by the board at the meeting included the regretful acceptance of two resignations. Ruth Beckine, English teacher, submitted her resignation to the board stating she was going into another field of employment. Math instructor Robert Eaton cited similar reasons for his resignation which will be effective April 12. Eaton told the board he could not make a living on the teaching salary and was also seeking another field.

Notice of allocations for the fiscal year 1974 Title III funds amounting to $1,332 was acknowledged. The board directed local superintendent John Henn to submit a formal project application prior to the May 10 deadline. Several informative reports were given to the board pertaining to the metropolitan athletic league with no interest indicated in joining this proposed expansion.

A letter from the Northwood Schools warned board members of the potential danger of several bills being considered by the state legislature. Northwood School District is a former "riches to rags" district, affected by a situation similar to the one which prevails in the Logan Elm District. However, the Northwood citizens did rally behind their schools and pass a ten mill additional levy.

Snow, Wind Hit Rockies, Plains Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An April snowstorm hit the central Rockies and the west-central Plains today, piling up to 6 inches in parts of Wyoming.

The heaviest snow was concentrated in Wyoming and Colorado, with Laramie, Wyo. receiving 6 inches during the night. Denver was whitened by 3 inches. Portions of the Dakotas and Kansas also were dusted by snow, and the storm was expected to spread into the northern Plains and upper Michigan.

In other parts of Kansas and in Oklahoma, blowing dust whipped up by heavy winds reduced visibilities. Tornadoes touched down Tuesday evening at the Texas towns of Benbrook and Wichita Falls, causing some damage.

Thunderstorms cracked through the southern Plains, with rainfall scattered from South Dakota to Arkansas and severe thunderstorm warnings posted for parts of Missouri.

Warnings for tornadoes, large hail and severe thunderstorms were posted for states from the Gulf Coast to Missouri. The states, covered by cloudy skies and some recuperating from a rash of tornadoes and adverse weather earlier this week, included Mississippi, Kentucky, Arkansas and Missouri.

In contrast, the Atlantic Coast was under mostly clear skies, which also favored the Southwest from the southern Rockies to California. Skies over the Pacific Northwest remained overcast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 79 at Key West, Fla., to 21 at Ely, Nev.

Vehicle Stolen

Addison F. Sanders, 355 Lewis Road, informed city police that his 1967 car was stolen in the downtown area Tuesday afternoon.

He said he parked his car at the rear of 115 W. Main St. about 2 p.m. and the vehicle was gone at 4:10 p.m. Both sets of keys to the auto were in his possession.

The Pickaway County Sheriff's Auxiliary is holding its annual spaghetti supper 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Circleville High School.

decision reached by the board. Information requested from the county auditor's office has not yet been received.

Threat of loss of funding for the vocational agriculture program has caused the board to consider some means of providing adequate facilities. The loss would amount to approximately $14,000 from foundation funds.

In other action, the board approved the list of graduating seniors. A small mower replacement was also approved for purchase for the Pickaway Township School.

Dale Wolfe, representing the Washington Township Parent Teacher Organization, requested permission for the group to replace the wooden steps in the Washington school. Permission was granted by the board with a vote of appreciation given to the PTO for its concern.

A favorable report was given concerning the juke box which was placed free of charge by the student council in the high school cafeteria. It is used during the lunch period and causes no distraction in the building.

The board voted to extend the meeting until April 25 to permit adequate time to discuss teaching contracts. All the principals will be present at the meeting to make recommendations.

The remainder of Monday's meeting was utilized by completing plans for promoting passage of the levy. Board members Virginia Wood, Frank Seimer and Roger Hobbie will speak to the Parent Teacher Organizations in the district. Don Bower and Robert Bowers will help obtain finances. David Evans was appointed chairman of the finance committee and any one wishing to help should contact any of the board members.

ordinance, if passed at the next council meeting, would authorize the director of public service either to sell the three trucks at public auction or to trade them in on a new truck.

Councilman John Jenkins of the city's second ward has questioned the need for a truck equipped with an aerial bucket.

Two salary ordinances were held for further study. One increased the salary of clerk for the city auditor to $2.55 per hour. Councilman at Large Tom Wells voted against suspension of rules which would have enabled the city's legislators to act on the bill at last night's meeting. Wells indicated he wanted more time to study the proposal to see if it is in line with wage increases granted to other employees of the city last month.

Also held for a first reading was an ordinance authorizing a pay increase from $1200 to $1500 for the city safety director. Fourth Ward Councilman Dixie Watters voted against a suspension of rules because he felt the percentages of increase in the safety director's salary was much greater than for all other city employees and he wanted more time to consider the pay hike.

COUNCIL BRIEFS

Had it not been for a 50-minute recess during which council members discussed pending legislation, last night's meeting would have been relatively brief considering the large amount of legislation before the city's governing body. The meeting began at 8 p.m. and ended at 9:55 p.m.

Chief of Police Robert Temple announced the resignation of another officer from his department, leaving the force five men under its authorized strength. He said he has been notified another member of the force has been accepted by Chillicothe Department and anticipates a resignation from this man.

So many members of the police department have resigned to accept positions at other cities, the local force is becoming known as a training academy. The city has invested between $600 and $700 in training each man. This does not include his salary while being trained. In spite of the recent pay hike, the city wage scale is much below other departments — $1,000 annually below Grove City, for instance.

A petition signed by 18 residents or property owners on Rosewood Ave., have signed a petition asking for curbs and gutters on both sides of the street which bounds Ted Lewis Park. The petition was read at council meeting and referred to the service committee for appropriate action.

Service Director Atwood Jones announced an operator is being trained for the city's street sweeper.

A Page Of Opinion Ignored By History

Political administrations generally are rated by the public and later by history according to how active they were and what tumultuous events occurred during their terms of office. It is a case of the activists versus those who attempt to stand pat.

Ask most Americans for a list of their favorite Presidents, and inevitably the names will be the activists—the two Roosevelts, Lincoln, Washington, Jefferson and perhaps a name or two of more contemporary note. All men who presided while the nation was at war or was in the midst of a major social or economic upheaval.

Ask for a list of the least popular, and the Presidents who maintained a low profile will head that list, if their names can be recalled. Men like Tyler, Taylor, Buchanan and Fillmore sometimes are mentioned in this regard. History may be unfair.

When Fillmore declined an Oxford honorary degree on grounds his achievements were not worthy of the honor, he demonstrated a humblity not often seen in high office. Which may or may not explain why several Millard Fillmore clubs have been formed on college campuses.

Superpowered Missionary

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — My favorite missionary to the United States, a newly-developed land so far as religious proscons from older countries are concerned, is Fr. John Lee. He is a lively little partly-blind Chinese priest dedicated to converting heathen Americans to the glories of contributing to Fu-Jen, a fine interdenominational university on Taiwan.

Like his brother missionaries, Fr. Lee has suffered many rebuffs and mortifications. He has found countless aborigines who never heard of Fu-Jen U. and give every indication that they don't want to hear about it. But the industrious little missionary remains cheerfully optimistic that we'll one day come around. Or, better still, come across.

Fr. Lee, who doesn't have the time or money to get new eyeglasses, has been especially busy these days — shaking hands with lampposts and trying to walk through imaginary doors. He has tickets to sell for an April 6 charity get-together at New York Chinatown's Hwayuan restaurant honoring his hero, Paul Cardinal Yipin. The Cardinal, a classic Chinese Prince of the Church, stands 6-3, is turning 80, speaks half a dozen languages, and had a price put on his noble head by both the Japanese and the Chinese Communists, is president of Fu-Jen U.

Fr. Lee may not be the best ecclesiastical pitchman now working the U.S. but he probably is the jauntiest. I asked him to write me a short account of his life and times, and he has generously sent me the following, which is written in a rare language named Verbatim:

(Editors: CQ all the way, please.) "Father John Lee, born and raised in north China near Peking. Calls himself a Chinese Yankee. Educated in north China in philosophy and most of his theology studies. Spent last school year in Hankow, south China where rice was common diet. He lost twenty pounds in one semester because he could not eat rice. People in the north do not eat rice, only the southerners do. He used to say: I had more rice in the States than I had in China. Ordained in Kenrick Seminary, St. Louis, Mo. by the later Cardinal Jos. Ritter. Completed his studies for master degree in social administration, Ph. D. in psychology in Loyola University, Chicago. Took care of the Chinese college students in midwest for five years, lectured in various states and conducted TV and Radio programs in Chicago as a news analyst for five years.

"When Pope John commissioned Paul Cardinal Yipin to reestablish Fu-Jen Catholic University in Taiwan, Father Lee was one of the first persons chosen by the cardinal to work for Fu-Jen. (Fu-Jen originally was founded by the American Benedictines in Peking and re-established in Taiwan. It now has nine thousand students enrolled in the six colleges. The school is under the auspices of the Catholic Church, but over 90 per cent of the students are not Catholic.) Father Lee's job has been P.R. and fund raising for Fu-Jen in the States. Fu-Jen Catholic University Foundation was organized. It's board directors consist of prominent people of all walks of life. Father Lee has been at the job for some fourteen years. When Peter Lind Hays asked him on his radio station program how much money he was looking for, he said: I accept one anything from a penny to a million. Any one who wishes to donate more than a million dollars, I would advise him to do two things: to see his lawyer and his psychiatrist.

"He uses all the ways and means to raise funds, from selling chances on a Cadillac on the street corner and to running high price dinner parties. His friends call him the Chinese bandit. He considered the statement of Frank Flick, the Fu-Jen foundation's president a great complement: This little Chinaman picks your pocket, but you like it. When selling chances, he was unashamedly hollard: No tickle, no cady. He is not afraid to approach any one for a helping hand, from George Meany, president of AFL-CIO to the chairman of GMC. He remarks: I am not ashamed to beg, because people know I am not begging for myself. I am no body. I rely on the goodness in people's hearts only. No one can be nice to me and get away with it. The annual Fu-Jen Fun Festival at Jimmy Wong's Restaurant in Chicago has been most popular. Any body who is some body wants to show up. The Chinese New Year's Parties in Chicago and New Year are well attended by American fun seekers. The dinner in honor of Joseph P. Tonelli, president of United Paperworkers International Union netted several hundred thousand dollars. We are in need of another couple hundred thousand dollars to complete our athletic building under construction. We hate to stop construction. We may have to, if no fund is coming in, he sadly remarks. I know I haven't got a Chinaman's chance, but God and American people are good to me. "Father Lee considers his boss Cardinal Yipin his sales man. The cardinal is 6-3 with four doctorates and ability of speaking many languages with all charm of a prince is our best advertisement His Eminence comes to U.S. a couple times a year and makes appearances on important functions.

"In siminary, I used to think the priests who celebrated their 25th anniversary, have one foot in the grave. I am up; there now. As a result of a rare eye disease retinitis pigmentosa, he has very poor vision, but he consoles himself with: Thank God, I am not completely blind. As long as Chinese youth in need and I am able to work, I will do my best."

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

For the first time in four years the people of Circleville and vicinity will not be able to enjoy fishing for trout in the old canal. Why, we do not know. It is my opinion that the canal should be restored and stocked, especially for older people who enjoy fishing in their leisure time but are unable to go elsewhere.

Stocking should be not only with trout, but bass and crappie. People have enjoyed fishing the canal for years, even though it has been an eyesore, simply because the state will not do anything about cleaning it out. It is a known fact that trout will live year round in the waters and with the money taken in from sportsman in the area, some should be put back into restoration of the canal as an historical site since this is one of the small portions of Ohio Erie Canal left.

Some of the nicest fish I have ever caught have been taken from the mile and one half of water still left. It is high time to take action and I would like to know if others feel the same.

Sincerely,
DALE O. ROGERS
Rt. 2

Dear Editor:

Prior to January 1, 1974, the blind, aged, and disabled were on the State Welfare Program and were assured of their burial in case of death.

On January 1, 1974 they were switched to the Supplemental Security Income Plan sponsored by the government. They were denied of burial unless:

1. They had insurance to cover their burial.
2. They were a veteran and eligible, then they would receive part of their burial expense.
3. They drew Social Security Benefits, then they would receive part of their burial expenses.
4. Or if some good samaritan would foot the bill out of his pocket, of course.

Why you may ask? The answer is simple. There are no funds available through the Supplemental Security Income Plan, or any other plan to bury these blind, aged, and disabled citizens of the United States of America. How do I know? We experienced this shocking situation, when we tried to bury our brother who was disabled.

Hearst Says Best Done

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — Randolph A. Hearst says a community coalition did its best to see that directions of his daughter's kidnappers were carried out during a $2 million food distribution.

But the Symbionese Liberation Army, a terrorist group that abducted Patricia Hearst Feb. 4, has given no indication whether the giveaway and the pledge of another $4 million to feed the poor meets a precondition it set for negotiations to free the 20-year-old University of California coed.

The SLA, estimated by authorities to number only about 25 youthful members, nominated the coalition to monitor the food program.

On Sunday the coalition broadcast a report critical of administration of the program, prompting a sharp reply from A. Ludlow Kramer, who organized the giveaway. He said that "in many instances, the coalition's help was not there."

Legion Members Aid Guardsmen

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP)—American Legion Post 374 here is campaigning for funds to aid defense of eight indicted former National Guardsmen.

The 555-member post commanded by Paul Gill also voted Monday night to oppose the indictment, returned by a federal grand jury last Friday and charging the eight with violating the civil rights of 13 Kent State University students shot by guardsmen during a May 4, 1970, antiwar protest demonstration.

Meanwhile, American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars state chiefs said they looking into development of a policy statement.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I've had a severe drinking problem and developed cirrhosis of the liver.

I almost had to die before I stopped alcohol. Now that I have stopped I wonder if it is ever possible for the liver to become normal again.

Mr. T. V. L., Wash.

Dear Mr. L.:

First, let me congratulate you on your accomplishment in giving up drinking.

It is interesting how often people totter on the brink of destruction and tempt fate before acknowledging that alcohol, tobacco and overeating can be destructive to their health. When once the situation becomes critical, many people then attempt to buy back the health that they had taken for granted.

Cirrhosis of the liver is a condition in which scar tissue forms and interferes with the important functioning of this organ.

There are a number of causes for the different kinds of cirrhosis. Alcohol is a predominant cause.

The liver is probably the most remarkable organ in the body. It is a chemical factory that cleans out the toxic poisons that circulate in the blood.

One of the most amazing aspects of the liver is that it can continue to function for such a long time, handicapped by the scar tissue of cirrhosis.

There undoubtedly is a good portion of your liver that is still functioning, and will continue to do so in the absence of alcohol.

There are now many excellent liver function tests, and X-ray scanning methods that determine the liver capacity. It would give you great comfort if these tests were done and you were to learn that, even in the presence of cirrhosis of a liver that will never be completely normal you will still again continue to be healthy, functioning and productive.

What is meant by a strangulated hernia? Is an operation the only way to cure it?

Mr. J. J., Va.

Dear Mr. J.:

A strangulated hernia is one of the complications of a long-neglected hernia.

Occasionally, a loop of intestine becomes caught in the hernial opening. Soon the blood supply is cut off because of the swelling, and the bowel no longer can be returned to its normal position. This is known as "strangulation."

Sometimes the bowel can, with gentle pressure, be pushed back. In most instances, surgery becomes necessary.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Edson Gould is an elder statesman among securities analysts, a forecaster who has made some notably accurate estimates and whose word sometimes is taken as gospel. He is also considered a bear.

Gould, 72, has been dour in his outlook since the mid-1960s, when he suggested an end had come to a bull market that pushed the Dow Jones industrial average from 92.69 points in 1942 to more than 1,000 in 1966.

Since then the average has never substantially or for any length of time exceeded that figure. It dipped as low as 631 in 1970 and rose to 1,067 early in 1973, before descending to its present range of 840 to 850 points.

Gould maintains it will break out of that range, however, and in both directions. After a decided drop, perhaps to under 700 points late this year or very early in 1975, he foresees the beginning of a major bull market.

The bull's first steps will be a bit shaky, in Gould's view. He believes there might be a turnaround, but not a very bad one, in 1976. Then he expects the ascent to resume in 1977 and 1978 and to erupt to 3,000 to 5,000 points in the 1980s.

Assuring an incredulous listener that such a jump wasn't unprecedented, Gould recalled the post-World War II advance, which was even larger in percentage, and an earlier leap that brought the average from 40.52 in 1932 to 195 in 1937.

But before those jagged graph lines pierce the financial stratosphere, "we're going to go through a hell of a lot of grief," says Gould, referring to his expectations of a decline this coming winter.

Why a decline? Gould explains that every major move in the market has three stages. When it rises it does so in steps, he insists. And when it falls it usually trips three times. It has already happened twice.

"In February 1966 the Dow reached 1,001 points," Gould relates, retrieving figures easily from a data bank mind.

"In October 1966 it fell to 735. In December 1968 it rose to 994. In May 1970 it fell to 627. In January 1973 it reached 1,067. And now its getting down for the third time."

While believing in the threestep theory, Gould has enough battle scars to be wary of a possible fourth. By that time, though, even the most obstinate will be shaken out of the market. There'll be no more sellers.

"Thus, rather than regarding the near-term outlook for declining prices with worry, fear and trembling, the investor should welcome it" he related in "Findings & Forecasts," a publication he writes for Anametrics, Inc.

Gould's rationale for an advance is compounded of many factors. There are the numbers and the tracings of the graphs, which all technicians examine for signs and signals. There is mass psychology, which Gould feels the market reflects.

He believes no market can become bullish unless international monetary affairs are sound. The worst market fears, he declares, are war and a shaky monetary structure.

He deplores the welfare ethic but believes the country soon will show a renewed appreciation of the work ethic. "We've got a soft generation," he maintains. "Welfare is the opposite of free enterprise."

Mrs. Luce Raps Time Magazine For Reporting

NEW YORK (AP) — Clare Boothe Luce has accused Time magazine of unobjective reporting of Watergate.

Mrs. Luce is the widow of Henry R. Luce, cofounder of Time.

In a letter in the current issue of the magazine, Mrs. Luce noted that commentator Harry Reasoner of ABC-TV News had been critical of Time's Watergate coverage, and added:

"It was predictable that sooner or later Time would begin to pay the price for its editorial over-investment in the destruction of the President. That price, as Reasoner noted, is the loss of journalistic prestige and credibility. How ironic, and how fitting, that a distinguished media colleague and certified Nixon critic like Reasoner should blow the whistle on Time for its phobic Watergate reporting."

Railroad Crossing Repairs Slated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Transportation will take bids April 23 on improvements for 981 dangerous railroad crossings in northwestern Ohio.

The planned improvements include advance pavement markings and no-passing center lines and the erection of advance warning signs.

Estimated cost for the work is $385,000, the agency said.

The department said the proposed work is in Defiance, Paulding, Putnam, Hancock, Wyandot, Allen, Hardin and Van Wert counties.

Coaches Guests At Kiwanis Meet

The Circleville Kiwanis Club met 6:30 p.m. Monday at the Pickaway Arms with Fred Bower, president, presiding.

Tour of the Historical Society Museum was the topic of the program with Dr. Lloyd Sprouse, guest speaker.

The Circleville High School basketball and wrestling teams were special guests of the club including coaches Brent Bell, John Lawhorn and Dale Harger.

A five-minute lenten message was presented by the Rev. David Allardye.

John Rateman announced the Easter Egg hunts will be April 13 at the Atwater and South Court Street

Schools and Ted Lewis Park. Members of the Kiwanis and Key Clubs will assist in the hunts.

Don Strawser was inducted as a new member by President Fred Bower. He was sponsored by Jim Shea.

Other business include a Board of Directors meeting tonight at the home of Forrest Croman, U. S. Route 22.

The Kiwanis club is sponsoring the Kiwanis relays April 13. Dave Gillespie needs 15 members to act as judges, timers and ticket takers.

The meals-on-wheels program started April 1 with the Kiwanians purchasing the first "hot-box" which is used to keep the meals hot while being distributed to different residences.

Nixon Tax Report Goes To Panel For Consideration

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional investigating committee received behind closed doors today a report by its staff believed to say President Nixon owes some $350,000 in income taxes.

Questions before the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation include whether to hear Nixon's tax lawyers' arguments that his deductions were proper and whether to make the staff report public before the committee decides whether to endorse it or make changes.

Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, said Nixon's attorneys have seen part of the report.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., vice chairman of the committee, told newsmen he understands the President's counsel has filed a brief supporting its position. He said he would not object to giving the attorneys an opportunity to state their case, but that there was some feeling in the committee that this could lead to other requests for appearances and so involve the committee in extended hearings.

Mills said he could not vote on approval of the report at today's meeting, adding, "I need at least a few hours to study it."

He said he is open-minded on releasing the staff report, meanwhile. Several other members took the same position.

The chairman, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., earlier had set a news conference for late today, apparently with the expectation of making the report public.

The White House meanwhile would not flatly confirm that Nixon still intends to pay additional taxes if the committee rules against him. Nixon had pledged to abide by the committee's findings.

Asked about this Tuesday, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said "We'll address this all at one time ... I'm not really prepared to go into this."

The controversy involves taxes Nixon paid on his income during his first term, 1969 through 1972. According to summaries of his returns, the total tax paid for the four years was $78,651 on income of $1,122,266. Of the total tax paid, $72,682 was for the first year, 1969.

Nixon's tax bill was reduced because of large deductions he claimed.

Of these, the most widely publicized was a donation of papers acquired during his pre-presidential years to the National Archives. Nixon has taken their appraised value of $576,000 as a charitable donation deduction.

A major question, however, has been whether the donation was legally concluded before July 25, 1969, effective date of a change in the law virtually eliminating such deductions.

Another question was whether Nixon should have declared and paid tax on a capital gain of $117,300 from the sale of part of his California property in 1970. Accountants have disagreed as to whether the transaction, in which he sold most of the land originally purchased but retained the house and 5.9 acres, did or did not result in a capital gain.

In December 1973 Nixon asked the joint committee to determine whether he owed additional taxes in connection with these two transactions and said he would abide by its decision.

The committee agreed to undertake an inquiry but would not limit it to those two items, insisting on reviewing Nixon's entire federal income tax operations for the four years.

Chamber Of Commerce Plans Clean-Up Week

Committee reports given at the Tuesday luncheon meeting of the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce included the plans of clean-up week.

Don Brandon, chairman of the Community Appearance committee, reported to the board of directors that clean-up week will be observed April 27 through May 1. The local girl and boy scouts, local merchants and the city clean-up crew will pool their efforts with the committee during that period to clean up the city.

It was also reported along the line of community appearance action that 400-500 pigeons were eradicated in the downtown area last month.

Meetings in Columbus of the Public Utilities Commission are continuing. The Ohio Chamber has petitioned to intervene in the hearing to determine whether gas companies and other utility companies should be allowed to belong to chambers of commerce.

In a report from the Area Development committee, Myron Haradon chairman said efforts to get the Environmental Protection Agency to speak at either a directors or committee meeting had been stilled. The agency had originally promised to talk with interested groups but can not be obtained.

A general discussion was held on the finances of the Chamber and the possible need to increase dues for next year. The present proposal of increase is a ten per cent across the board raise. The recommendation for an increase must be submitted by Aug. 1.

Wayne Miller, chairman of the Membership Committee, reported that 12 of last year's members have not yet paid their dues for this year. The total of these unpaid dues amounts to $800 which will have a profound effect on the budget and finances of the Chamber should these members not continue their membership. Board president Dan Hindy agreed to contact them.

Education Committee chairman Larry Plum reported on the committee's work in the area of consumer education. He said the first half of the program on the junior high level had been completed. The committee plans to work in depth on the television program "Your Future Is Now" when the second phase begins in June.

The program is produced to provide persons who do not have a high school diploma to watch specifically designed lessons to enable them to pass the equivalency test.

A newsletter is being published by the Public Relations committee to inform members of current happenings in the Chamber. All members are requested to get their news items to the committee as soon as possible.

Telegrams have been sent to Robert Taft, Howard Metzenbaum and William Harsha concerning the wage bill.

The Retail Merchants will hold their next promotion June 13-15. Chairman of the merchants committee, Keith Thomerson, also reported that WNRE holds a national Chamber News program at 6:15 p.m. with Arch Booth as moderator.

Considerations and proposals were discussed concerning the accident-prone intersection at Routes 22 and 104. One consideration of the Safety Committee was to rough the highway so motorists would know they were approaching an intersection.

Discussion was also held on the proposed house bill 1092 which concerns personal property assessment. Most of the school districts in the area

Sheriff's Report Shows Decrease In Accidents

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies investigated 77 accidents during the month of March, raising 1974's total to 259.

Two of the wrecks were fatalities with 22 persons injured in 17 accidents.

Speed was attributed to 13 accidents, reckless operation and failure to have the car under control were blamed for 10 each.

Statistics show that the time periods between 3 p.m. and 4 p.m. and 10 p.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday were the most hazardous to drivers.

Circleville and Pickaway Townships recorded 10 accidents, there were eight wrecks each in Darby and Wayne Townships.

The office logged 98 offense reports during March, 32 for theft, 30 for breaking and entering, 28 for vandalism, four sex offenses and, four miscellaneous.

Deputies also compiled 378 aid and incident reports, 891 for the year. Majority of the total were traffic complaints, checking suspicious cars and persons and miscellaneous calls.

are against passage of the bill because they feel it will mean a decrease in revenue. The Chamber committee is asked to explain the advantages of the bill to the local school administrators.

The Town Meeting which is planned for tonight at the 4-H and Grange building was announced.

County Commissioner Wayne Hines discussed the proposal of an emergency vehicle with the directors. He said nothing is presently being done to secure a vehicle for the Circleville Area. The county commissioners are the only ones authorized to apply for federal funds for an emergency vehicle. Should interest be sparked in the direction to obtain one, the commissioners agreed to assist.

A letter from Myrl Shoemaker reported that Deercreek State Park will take priority for any money which will be available.

George Hamrick, chairman of the Agri-Business Committee, was present at the meeting and introduced his guest, Dennis Sergeant. Sergeant is president of the student body at Ohio State University.

Man Builds Electric Auto For Around-Town Travel

WARREN, Ohio (AP) — Robert Powell of Warren doesn't find electric cars "re-volting" or shocking; he has built his own.

Powell, owner of an electronics shop, used a 1968 Fiat body and a 1½-horsepower electric motor powered by three 12-volt batteries in building an electric car for intracity use.

It can travel almost 20 miles an hour, covering about 40 miles without recharging its batteries, he says.

He says a recharge takes about seven hours with a conventional battery charger. He is working on a device to use the motor to partially recharge the batteries while the car is in use.

He also has ordered a 7-to 9-horsepower electric motor which he estimates should propel the car at about 40 miles an hour.

Powell says an electric car has several advantages over conventional automobiles: it is practically silent, it needs no transmission, speed being regulated by controlling the flow of power to the motor; it has no exhaust system to rust out, and it emits no pollution.

It also uses no gasoline, and Powell says it is this feature which prompted him to build the car.

Powell says he has no plans to market the car and built it "just to prove it could be done."

But, not satisfied after having proved that the electric car would work, he immediately began changing it. Powell is installing a one-cylinder gasoline engine which he says also will be enough to power the small car.

Pickaway Plains DAR Given Conference Report

Pickaway Plains Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution met recently in the meeting room of Pickaway County Historical Society.

Mrs. Joseph Peters, regent, opened the chapter in ritualistic form with the assistance of Mrs. R. R. Bales, chaplain.

Mrs. Judd Dresbach reported on the talk given by Mrs. Phyllis Schlafly of Alton, Ill., who was the speaker on Monday evening at the State Conference of Ohio Society DAR.

Mrs. Schlafly is critical of the dealing between the United States of America and the USSR. She said: "Should America grant amnesty to the deserter and the draft dodger? Should we forgive and forget? Thousands served during the Vietnam War and thousands died on the battlefield or were taken prisoners. American soldiers were tortured and died at the hands of their captors. Those who were draft dodgers or AWOL now live."

She asked: "How would the veterans feel about amnesty to the defectors and the draft dodgers? How would parents, wives and children feel about granting amnesty to this kind of citizen?" Mrs. Schlafly ended her talk with a quotation, "So long as America is good, she will remain great."

Essay contest winners and their parents were invited guests to the School Luncheon.

Mrs. Martin Cromley gave a report of the first day and the memorial service for deceased members. Pickaway Plains Chapter hosted the Page's Breakfast. Mrs. Charles Beckman, Mrs. Henry Bartholomew and Mrs. Joseph Peters made favors for the pages of red, white and blue cosmetic bags of felt. Red, white and blue candles and candle rings decorated the tables.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Has the energy crisis left an imprint on American life? Associated Press reporters have talked with government leaders, social scientists and the man on the street to get a preliminary reading on this question. In this first of a series of three articles, the effects on the cities are examined.

By JOSH FITZHUGH
Associated Press Writer

The energy crisis will not save the cities, but it may give them time to save themselves.

Pre-existing trends toward inner city living and mass transit may be accelerated, while some movement out of the cities may be slowed.

After all, says the head of Philadelphia's planning commission, "the cities are really the best energy savers that man has ever devised."

Long-range trends are difficult, if not impossible, to gauge. Officials universally say "it's too early to tell" whether lifestyle changes in the cities caused by the winter energy shortage will last.

"Energy will be a new factor in the complicated equation of where people live and work," says Doug Parker, newly appointed energy adviser for the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The Associated Press surveyed leaders and citizens in several of the country's largest cities to see what changes the energy crisis has brought. Their answers indicate that:

—For the moment the flight from the cities may have stopped. Families and businesses appear more cautious about leaving. Young couples see an added advantage in buying in town.

—Governments are more willing to subsidize mass transit and people appear more willing to ride it. "We know we've never had so much love and affection," says Wichita's transit director Paul McGinnis.

—Development along the cities' fringes, and within downtown, may increase. Brokers point to the fuel-saving benefits of attached row houses.

Most important, those who love the cities, or are committed to them, feel the energy crisis provides a new psychological weapon to combat the fear of racial distrust and urban crime.

"I think there's been something in the nature of an awakening that things can't go on the way they were," says Donald Moore, president of the Downtown Brooklyn Development Association. "Everything at least psychologically is flowing in our direction."

To Susan Keller, urban sociologist at Princeton University, it's a question whether "the fantasy of open space and the open road or the fantasy of the rich city predominates."

"I have heard people saying they'll take another look at the cities, that maybe cities are in again," she says. Still there appears a need "to combine various modes of life with new kinds of transport," she says.

As gasoline dwindled this winter, mass transit ridership increased between 5 and 10 per cent in some cities. Transit authorities added bus lines and special lanes for car pools and urged businesses to stagger

Black Colleges Gain Strength

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's all-black colleges are bringing that minority into the middle classes, President Rembert E. Stokes of Wilberforce University in Ohio said today.

The university has tooled its curriculum in a series of cooperative programs that take students off campus and into onjob experiences for at least three 15-week quarters, Stokes said on NBC's Today Show.

"It gives our students an opportunity for earlier maturation," he said.

Even though Wilberforce has clustered its offerings to meet industrial demands, Stokes said he found no opposition among students.

working hours to alleviate bunching. Ridership in Honolulu was so heavy officials feared the congestion would drive passengers away once the gasoline crunch eased.

In Los Angeles traffic on the fabled freeways dropped as much as 33 per cent, with accidents off sharply. Downtown parking fell 20 to 45 per cent. The city's traffic engineer, S.S. Taylor, bought his first bicycle to see what problems confronted the two-wheelers.

"I was thinking of getting a foreign car, a small one," said Boston cab driver Ken McCarthy. "But now I'll get a bicycle if anything. I'm serious."

Perhaps to aid the shift, Boston increased its parking meter fees fivefold.

"People may travel to and from work in a different way to have enough money and fuel to move about more freely during nonworking hours," says David Grayson of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Confined to the city, persons looked to restaurants, theaters and museums for entertainment. Some rediscovered neighborhood parks—or neighbors. Says Richard Barr of the League of New York Theaters: "God knows we're not encouraging the energy crisis, but it's given a lot of people a chance to find out that New York is not quite the jungle it is supposed to be."

So far planners detect some increased interest in the downtown areas. Builders are looking more closely at housing in downtown Detroit. Demand is up in central Los Angeles.

"I hear a lot of talk about people moving back downtown because of the energy crisis," says Tom Puett, president of an Atlanta development company. "The real estate appraisers that used to look at our neighborhood with a good bit of skepticism are now very optimistic about it."

"I can't tell you that everybody in the suburbs is going to move downtown, but the appraisers' attitude is a good sign."

Calvin Hamilton, director of Los Angeles city planning, feels fuel prices are bound to spur the re-use of the city's tremendous investment in sewers, schools, parks and streets. "People may want to stay in and rebuild the house they have," he says. "Anytime the decision to leave is put off, it's got to be a help," says Richard Seeler, a corporate real estate broker in New York. The energy crisis has made businesses "stop and think" about leaving for suburban locations, he says.

But the crisis has hurt cities, too. Utilities' conversion to coal in some Eastern cities threatens environmental gains and pollution cutbacks resulting from fewer cars. Higher electric bills are giving nightmares to owners of some all-electric homes. Apartment owners squak about not being able to pass along fuel surcharges to rent-controlled tenants. And residents with air conditioners prefer not to think about this summer's bills.

"The crisis wasn't as bad as we anticipated, but there's a definite tightening up feeling," says Michael Ehrmann, who lives with his wife and child on Manhattan's upper West Side. "The boom is off; the illusions of the last 10 years are gone."

"Still more than gas, and somewhat more than rent, food is the biggest factor. We're making more but we have the overwhelming feeling that we're going substantially backward."

Feltner Awarded Agriculture Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — After six weeks of rumors and an announcement by one of his home-state congressmen, Dr. Richard L. Feltner of the University of Illinois was officially announced Tuesday by the White House to be an assistant secretary of agriculture.

The nomination by President Nixon, which requires Senate approval, puts Feltner in the midst of an unusual bit of maneuver engineered to fill a top-level $38,000 post in the Agriculture Department.

Here is how it went: Carroll G. Brunthaver, who was then assistant secretary for international affairs and commodity programs, resigned Feb. 1 to do research at the Brookings Institution.

The post was vacant until March 12 when Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz announced he was shifting Clayton K. Yeutter, another assistant secretary in charge of marketing and consumer programs, to Brunthaver's old job.

Meanwhile, Feltner had been reported in line for an assistant secretary's job. And on Feb. 28 Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., announced flatly in a news release that Feltner "will be named assistant secretary for marketing and consumer services" and that Yeutter would take over the more sensitive post held by Brunthaver.

After Butz announced what he called "the reassignment" of Yeutter to Brunthaver's post, there was some flurry in the Senate because Butz made it clear he would not seek reconfirmation of Yeutter. But that concern was stilled and Yeutter took over his new duties.

Yeutter first joined USDA as an agency administrator — down a step or two from an assistant secretary — in Oct. 1970. He resigned late in 1971 and for a year was national director for agriculture in the Committee for Re-election of the President. He rejoined USDA as assistant secretary — receiving Senate approval — in Jan. 1973.

Feltner, 35, has been professor and head of the department of agricultural economics at the University of Illinois since Aug. 1970. He was born in Crawfordsville, Ind., and holds degrees from Purdue University and North Carolina State University.

Girl Saved From Sewer

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A 7-year-old girl found floating in an underground sewer Tuesday was revived by a slap in the face by a rescue worker, a fire department spokesman said.

Laura Ripperger was unconscious when Fireman Gerald Loudin found her in a sewer passage wedged against a partially-submerged Christmas tree. After reviving her, Loudin carried her back to an opening and surrendered his lifeline rope so she could be hoisted out. His 25-minute air tank ran out moments before he was lifted from the toxic sewer gases, Capt. John Pfaff of Ladder Company 12 said.

Loudin found the girl with only 10 feet left of the 225-foot rope he had tied to him.

The girl was taken to a hospital and pronounced well after the rescue.

Evidence Against Men Melts, Police Report

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Police here admit they may have a problem with evidence in their theft case against three young men — it melted. The young men pleaded innocent Tuesday to charges they stole a $1.39 bag of ice.

Hospital Controls Slated For Hearing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio hospitals will get a chance April 29 to respond to a proposed state plan to control their major expansions and equipment purchases.

State Health Director John W. Cashman will hold a hearing on the proposed revisions of the Ohio State Plan for Hospital and Medical Facilities Construction and modernization.

Under the plan, worked out by department researchers, hospitals would be required to submit building and modernization plans to the state before obtaining federal funds, planning assistant Tom Quilter said.

If the state disapproves the plans, the government funds would be withdrawn, Quilter said.

Quilter said the program is aimed at encouraging hospitals to share expensive equipment and force them to use existing facilities more wisely.

According to Quilter, most of the state's 200 hospitals are operating below the current occupancy requirement.

Some hospital administrators are opposed to the program because of the increased government scrutiny.

Another revision would increase the current bed occupancy requirement for hospitals to 85 per cent, Quilter said. Still another would specify the number of free care patients each hospital must treat annually to be eligible for federal Hill-Burton grants, he added.

The Hill-Burton program was set up by Congress in the early 1940s.

Last year hospitals were given three alternatives to determine how many charity patients to accept to be eligible for the funds, Quilter said.

He said most chose an "open door" policy admitting all needy patients, regardless of their ability to pay.

Quilter said these hospitals used 10 per cent of the Hill-Burton grant or 3 per cent of their operating expenses minus medicaid and medicare expenses.

Prosecutor Succumbs

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank S. Hogan, 72, who as Manhattan's chief prosecutor for 32 years won convictions of key figures in widely publicized scandals, died Tuesday after three months in a hospital following a stroke last year.

LaFatch Hit By Lawsuit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A $1.1 million damage suit was filed Tuesday against Akron businessman Anthony LaFatch, who a day earlier was acquitted of five charges of extortion.

The suit was brought by John Vogel, president of Realty National Corp., and Michael McKenzie, a business associate, both of whom testified at LaFatch's trial that LaFatch had solicited a $50,000 bribe to assure state Commerce Department approval of a stock deal.

The suit filed Tuesday in Franklin County Common Pleas Court, seeks the return of the $50,000, plus $50,000 in compensatory damages and $1 million in punitive damages.

During his trial, LaFatch argued that he earned the money as a "finders fee" for obtaining information about legal problems that might hold up approval of Realty's $10 million stock issue.

Federal officials are holding the money paid LaFatch pending a decision on its ownership. Federal agents confiscated the money when LaFatch was arrested.

Mills Doubts Nixon Can Be Convicted; Not Enough Votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are probably the votes in Congress to impeach President Nixon but not to remove him from office, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills said.

The Arkansas Democrat, who is vice chairman of a committee investigating Nixon's income tax returns, said that "there's no doubt in my mind. That there are enough votes really ... for the articles of impeachment in the House."

But he said he worries that a majority of the Senate, but not the constitutional two-thirds, would vote to remove Nixon from office.

Under the constitution, the House can by a simple majority vote an impeachment — comparable to an indictment — against a President, who is then tried by the Senate. But in the Senate a two-thirds vote is required to convict and remove from office.

Mills spoke in an interview broadcast over public television Monday night.

Mills renewed his offer to back legislation that would provide immunity from criminal prosecution, if the President should resign under the circumstances he described.

"Where are we under that circumstance, with a majority in both branches of the Congress having found the President at fault, and yet he remains in office?" Mills asked. "Now, how can he exercise leadership under that circumstance?"

"The impeachment proceedings, if they are drawn out over a period of time, as I'm sure they will be, will present the most disruptive and divisive force that we've had I think in the United States since the Civil War," Mills said.

The Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation is scheduled to receive from its staff Wednesday a report on Nixon's income taxes for 1969-1972, which sources said will conclude the President owes substantially more tax.

Mills, who had suggested Nixon voluntarily file amended returns, said "his lawyers have told me that they didn't want him to file an amended return because in each instance ... there are two sides, one in his favor and one against him ... They will, I'm sure, dispute any findings that the staff may come up with involving additional tax."

CBS News said Monday night that Nixon is considering a fight against paying any back taxes. It said the President's lawyers say Nixon may be guilty only of a technical violation of the law because he signed his returns ignorant of mistakes.

Mills said a copy of the report as finally approved by the committee will go to the House Judiciary Committee, which is conducting the over-all investigation as to whether there are grounds for impeachment.

"It would be up to the House Judiciary Committee to decide whether or not this would be included as one of the articles for impeachment," he said.

Leased-Wire Hike Could Hurt Media

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission Tuesday considered arguments that new leased line telephone rates proposed by the Bell System would make news services too costly for many small-city newspapers and radio stations.

Warnings about the impact of the new rates were detailed in petitions filed Monday by The Associated Press, United Press International, Reuters Limited, Dow Jones, Commodity News Services Inc. and the American Publishers Association.

They said the news services must pass on more than $4 million in extra costs to their subscribers or provide reduced services — and said either alternative would injure the national interest by hampering the widespread dissemination of news.

The FCC has said it will decide whether to approve the rates by April 14, the date they are due to go into effect automatically unless the commission decides they are illegal, as the news services contend.

American Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s Bell System plans to drop the current uniform nationwide mileage charge on private lines reserved by businessmen for their exclusive use. It would be replaced by a two-tier system called "Hi-Lo."

Under Hi-Lo, there would be a lower rate for high population-density routes between 370 major cities and a higher rate for low-density routes to the smaller cities and towns. There would also be a new charge for each channel termination.

AT&T contends the change is necessary to relate more closely to actual costs of providing services. It says the new rates are needed if the telephone companies are to be able to compete with the offerings of newly authorized special common carriers over high-density routes.

The AP petition to the FCC said AT&T "shifted this enormous burden onto the news services ... in apparent ignorance of the impact on the press.... AT&T never had the ability to study the impact on the press of Hi-Lo before filing and now refuses to do so."

"... At the very least, there is a substantial risk that dissemination of news will be impaired as a result of the sharp Hi-Lo increases proposed," the AP said. "This risk might be reasonable if the rates proposed were necessary to support costs newly incurred by AT&T, but the situation is that AT&T costs remain exactly the same as in the past."

"... While the dollar amount of increases required per subscriber may appear to be relatively low, there is inevitably a point at which news services will become prohibitively expensive for a substantial number of subscribers," the AP said.

Couple Provides Home For Wolves

SHAWANO, Wis. (AP) — Still night air covered the woods of east central Wisconsin as a family of three prepared to retire for the night.

Suddenly, the cry of a timber wolf broke the silence and brought echoed cries from other wolf throats.

"They really enjoy howling," Joan Gehr explains. "Many times it's almost like a ritual with us," she adds. "Someone sticks his head out the window and starts howling, and they howl with us."

She referred to the pack of nine wolves living in a fenced area of about 1½ acres on the Larry Gehr land near here.

The timber wolf or grey wolf, once an important predator in northwoods areas of the Midwest, is only a rare resident today.

In Wisconsin, the Department of Natural Resources says the spread of civilization caused the wolf population to disappear during the 1950s, although occasional wanderers from adjoining states are sometimes spotted.

The Gehrs say they hope to contribute to replenishing the population of wild wolves by restocking some of the animals they raise.

They began the wolf-raising venture with Canadian-born male and female animals purchased as pups in 1969 and 1970.

Two litters later, the Gehrs have seven offspring and the original pair of wolves living on the wooded tract.

They say living closely with the wolves has given them many insights into the lifestyle of the tightly knit wolf family and into the character of the wolf itself.

Mrs. Gehr uses such terms as "joyous, straightforward and honest" to describe the wolves, adding that they possess a dry sense of humor which she can interpret from "the position of the ears, the facial expression, and the position of the tail."

The Gehrs are able to pet the wolves, which may reach a weight of more than 100 pounds, but they say they are somewhat wary of the wolf pack during mating season.

"The wolf considers man either equal with or below him," Mrs. Gehr explained. "He's not subservient like a dog."

"During mating season the male wolf can consider man as a rival," she said, adding that a wolf's attitude toward man will vary with the power of the man's personality.

Gehr has a permit to salvage injured deer, and Mrs. Gehr said the wolves are fed a main diet of venison from animals killed along area highways.

She contended that the wolves would be able to adapt to the wilds instinctively on their release, although they might need some help at first.

So far, the Gehrs are still looking for the right situation to offer their animals for release.

"After all this work we put in, I would hate to have them shot right away by someone who didn't know what he was doing," Mrs. Gehr said.

Dependent Children Caseload Declines

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio Welfare Director Charles Bates says the state's Aid to Dependent Children caseload declined by 6,939 persons in February.

He said in a statement Tuesday it was the largest such drop in history. Bates attributed the decrease to a state review of ADC cases.

Bates said despite the drop in cases, the number of unemployed parents getting ADC checks increased by 2,095. He blamed this on layoffs resulting from the energy crisis.

Ohio Turnpike Work Expected To Continue

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Resurfacing projects on the Ohio Turnpike should continue as scheduled, despite some delays caused by an asphalt shortage, the Ohio Turnpike Commission was told Tuesday.

Allan Johnson, turnpike executive director, also reported first quarter income of $8.4 million, down 5.4 per cent from the same period last year.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

'Doggie Bagger' Takes The Cake

DEAR ABBY: Can you explain why a wealthy woman, when eating out, always takes home leftover dinner rolls, carrot sticks, crackers, and anything else that's served and isn't eaten?

This lady is very generous where charity is concerned.

We are four women who meet once a week for bridge and lunch, and her conduct puzzles me.

I can understand a "doggie bag" for leftover portions of meat, but what about taking home every morsel of edible food on the table?

On occasion we all meet with our husbands, and when this woman asked my husband for his leftover carrot sticks to take home, he thought she was kidding. Yet her husband seemed indifferent. How do you figure this?

AMAZED
DEAR AMAZED: The lady can't bear to see anything wasted. (There are many people who, if they had the courage, would collect all the leftover.) There is nothing wrong with it. If she were poor, she'd be considered "chintzy." But since she's rich, she's "eccentric."

DEAR ABBY: My wife passed away 3 months ago. She was 52, and a wonderful woman. My children are married and have homes of their own. My mother-in-law is constantly plying me with advice. Example: "Don't ever marry again. All women are gold diggers. All they want is your money." Abby, my life seems so empty. I don't know anyone I want to date, but my mother-in-law's constant harping on the subject has made me think about it.

How long a mourning period should be observed in my case? How soon is "too soon" to seek female companionship? Would my dating before a year be considered disrespectful to the memory of my late wife?

Our marriage was a happy one and we had 30 good years, but I think 55 is

King Wins Reversal Of Ohio Suit

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A Denver, Colo., oil firm has won a reversal in the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals of a claim that it defrauded the State of Ohio when it obtained $8 million in loans from the Ohio Workmen's Compensation Fund.

The three-judge panel ruled March 28 that John M. King and King Resources, one of three firms charged in a 1970 Ohio loan scandal, did not violate regulations of the Securities Exchange Commission.

An injunction limiting King's right to do business was lifted.

The King loans were made through Crofters, Inc., which also arranged loans for the two other firms involved in the loan scandal: Four Seasons and Consolidated, Inc. Ohio took the King loans to court.

The appeals court said the lower court erred in finding King and his firm guilty of fraud. King argued the decision and an ensuing injunction prevented him from making a living.

A $3 million loan was approved by former Ohio Treasurer John Herbert April 17, 1970, and a $5 million note on May 1, 1970. Both were for two-year duration, according to court records.

King Resources collapsed and filed bankruptcy a short time later. The SEC filed suit Nov. 16, 1970, charging the firm misrepresnted its credit rating to Ohio.

State Economy Shows Increases

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Continued high-level steel production despite energy shortages kept Canton and Youngstown leading the state in economic increases in 1973, reports the Center for Business and Economic Research at Ohio State University.

Canton led the state's eight largest cities of 100,000 or more population with increases in four of seven economic categories, was second in two and third in one. In five of the seven indicators, Canton's 1973 increases were greater than Ohio as a whole.

"Canton's substantial cyclical rise in 1973 was sustained by the consistently high level of operations of the steel industry and metal working which dominate its manufacturing activity," the center wrote.

Youngstown, another steel center near Pennsylvania, leads Ohio in total raw steel production. It ranked No. 2 in overall gains in 1973. Youngstown, like Canton, marked a 10 per cent increase in retail sales to lead Akron, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton and Toledo.

Cleveland and Cincinnati, Ohio's two largest cities, were almost tied for third in gains in 1973. Cleveland, along with Dayton, had the best construction activity after Canton and Youngstown.

Cincinnati was marked for third because its all-industry employment and payrolls gained 2 and 11 per cent, respectively.

Dayton and Toledo nearly tied for growth in 1973. They ranked below Cleveland and Cincinnati. Toledo tied Canton for employment and payroll increases with gains of 5 and 14 per cent, respectively. Construction activity increased by 20 per cent in Dayton.

Columbus and Akron recorded the flattest trends.

Minority Workers Plan Gains Approval

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— State officials have announced federal approval of Ohio's plan for hiring minority workers in government-funded construction jobs.

The state's coordinator for construction under the Ohio Bureau of Equal Employment Opportunity, E. Winther McCroom, said the proposal is the first state plan to gain U.S. Department of Labor approval.

He said it sets standards for improving minority participation by individual contractors, rather than by craft.

Columbus increased employment by the state rise of 2 per cent, but construction volume dropped sharply. Akron had an increase in total construction of four per cent, but residential volume dropped by one-quarter.

"The outlook for 1974 activity in Ohio city areas continues generally good," the center reported. "The demand for steel continues strong even with the decline from the automobile industry; capital spending for new equipment by business is expected to continue at high levels."

"Only the reduced production and servicing of automobiles and the shortage of basic plastic materials, both the result of the Arab oil embargo, are drawbacks to continued highlevel activity in Ohio generally."

"City areas which would seem most affected by the impacts of the oil and gasoline shortage are Akron, Toledo and Columbus," the center wrote.

Lt. Brown Attends Biannual Convention

Lt. Mike Brown of the Circleville Fire Department was among the 91 delegates from all over Ohio to attend the 29th biannual convention of the Ohio Association of Professional Fire Fighters. The convention was held this year March 25-28 in Toledo. Sixty alternates, 32 guests and 13 state officers were also in attendance at the convention.

Brown said the delegates acted upon 38 resolutions and elected officers. The state is divided into six districts with one vice-president elected to head each district and a state president elected to head the association. Bob Bell was elected president at this year's convention. Bell is from Cleveland Heights.

The fifth district which includes Circleville selected as its vice-president, Richard Muhleman, Newark. Muhleman was also elected first vice-president of the association in case the president could not fulfill his duties.

Among the reasons for the state convention is for delegates to vote on resolutions to be presented to the state legislature. Lt. Brown said two of the resolutions were very important to both local and state fire fighters.

The delegates voted to ask the state legislature to abandon the Ferguson Act and to set up a collective bargaining law in the state. Under the Ferguson Act, public employees were prohibited to strike. If the legislation is

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Librarians, trustees, government officials and educators got together here Tuesday to dust off old ideas about the places books are shelved and plan for the future.

Direct computer hookups between the living room and the library will come in the future, experts told the conference of 600.

"Libraries are unique in a society where most other forces bend people into the same mold," said Virginia Mathews, international libraries and literacy specialist in her keynote speech.

Libraries have become the favorite hangout in a lot of schools, according to Dr. Fay R. Biles, Kent State University vice president of public affairs and development.

Gov. John J. Gilligan asked the group to remember, "Libraries are for people, and they should meet the needs of the people while letting people know what is available to them through the local library."

Rising building costs and the need for more copies of new books, longer hours and additional staff were pinpointed by Larry Besant, assistant libraries director for Ohio State University.

Besant was part of a panel discussion which included a Columbus reporter and a Battelle Memorial Institute research specialist.

During the conference, Gov. Gilligan presented Gertrude Linnenbruegge of Athens with the Governor's Award for Community Action.

An assistant professor of library science at Ohio University, she came to campus as children's librarian in 1948 and has held executive positions for 40 years in Girl Scout programs.

2 Counties Stage Drug Roundup

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—Licking and Muskingum county authorities Tuesday began what was described as one of the biggest drug roundups in the history of the two counties.

Authorities in Licking County said they had arrested 18 of 35 persons named in secret indictments handed down following a grand jury probe late last week.

At least 10 persons were arrested in Muskingum County, following a similar grand jury probe that brought 16 indictments.

Authorities said the Licking County arrests followed a three-month investigation of drug traffic in the area by the state Bureau of Criminal Investigation and the Licking County Sheriff's office.

County Sheriff Max Marston said that four or five of his agents had been able to infiltrate local drug activities.

Of the 35 indictments returned, 34 involved marijuana and hallucinogens and one involved cocaine.

Licking County Prosecutor Neil Laughlin said that those arrested were being held under $10,000 bail each.

Rhodes Issues Call For Vo-Ed Expansion

ANSONIA, Ohio (AP)—Former Gov. James A. Rhodes called Tuesday for a massive voluntary effort by educators to provide vocational education in public schools.

Speaking at the annual Ohio Education Association banquet, Rhodes said today's youngsters spend 12 years in schools without learning a job skill.

Saxbe Says Officials Face Kidnap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe says he believes government officials face "a tremendous risk" of being kidnaped by terrorists.

He linked the recent series of abductions in the United States and abroad to kidnaping manuals circulated among militant organizations. In an interview Tuesday, the attorney general also suggested that Patricia Hearst's kidnapers, who call themselves members of the Symbionese Liberation Army, followed instructions in a kidnaping manual written by some other group.

"When you think that the Symbionese and others are taking this right out of some Maoist doctrinal textbooks on how to operate in terrorism and other forms of civil disturbance, you realize it is not just a coincidental thing," Saxbe said.

Asked if he meant to imply the involvement of a conspiracy, he replied, "A worldwide conspiracy." He said he has evidence of such a conspiracy but cannot discuss it further.

As for the individuals involved, he said "these are mostly punks. You're dealing with nuts."

He indicated, however, that the Symbionese have no part in any such conspiracy. "The Symbionese just profit by the information they get, manuals, information that's available to them. I might add this Hearst thing is conducted right by the book."

FBI spokesman Robert Franck said authorities have examined copies of at least three terrorism manuals circulated among militant groups in recent years.

The newest, he said, is a volume called "Organizing Urban Guerrilla Units," written by a Raul Estremera and circulated within the Black Liberation Army, which has been described by the FBI as an offshoot of the Black Panther party.

Franck said the manual suggests that terrorist kidnapers demand vast amounts of food as ransom. Miss Hearst's abductors demanded that her father, newspaper executive Randolph H. Hearst, provide millions of dollars worth of free food for California's poor.

However, Franck added that he himself has no information about whether any kidnaping manual has been linked to the Hearst case.

Car-Train Collision Claims Man's Life

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP)—A car-train collision at a downtown crossing has claimed the life of Glen D. Relman, 21, of Mansfield.

Witnesses told police Tuesday that Relman drove around a lowered crossing gate and into the path of the southbound freight train.

Asked whether any terrorist group now is promoting the kidnaping of government officials, Saxbe said, "This is all part of the scheme of some of these irresponsible terrorist organizations. We don't make these things up. We have reports of what people say."

Energy Saving Quick Picture

SENECA FALLS, N. Y. (AP) — The Electronic Tube Division of GTE Sylvania Inc. announced the development of a picture tube cathode structure which provides a color picture approximately five seconds after the TV set is turned on.

R. Joseph Dorcy, a marketing manager, said the device is an improvement over current types used in sets which provide quick pictures. It saves energy by not requiring the cathode heater to be partially activated while the set is not in use.

Based on consumer usage statistics, an annual savings of up to 20 kilowatt hours is possible per household. The new cathode is expected to be in mass production this year.

Across My Conscience

By JIM BISHOP

The stout woman attendant was reflected in the linoleum floor as a pygmy. It would only take a minute, she said. I sat near the empty desk of the superintendent. He had left permission for me to see Grandma Flynn, provided I published nothing about the visit. On the visitor's card I was listed as "personal friend."

I wasn't, really. Grandma Flynn wasn't my grandma. She was an old lady I had spent years trying to peel from my conscience. She was small and old when I was a teenager. She had white hair, with a twirl of whipped cream on top. The face was cracked custard.

She kept a boarding house on South Street, Jersey City, N. J. Assorted boarders arrived and departed. Some paid. Some did not. I knew her grandson, Tom. He was short with deep wavy hair and a pair of impish eyes overlooking a mouth made for gin.

I never saw grandma upstairs. She was always in the basement, moving a teapot from the back burner of a coal stove to the front, or back again. She did a lot of hand ironing. Sometimes, when four of us got loaded on a Saturday night, she would insist that we sleep in an empty room.

"Don't go home to your mother like that," she would say. For no reason, I became her favorite. "My little gentleman," she called me. Sometimes, in winter, I sat near the hot stove as she dropped bits and slivers of the mosaic of her life.

She had never been pretty, even when she was young. And, she insisted, she was not intelligent. She sailed the old iron slowly down a white sleeve and chuckled. "But I was lucky all my life," she said. "I had God, my church and a good man."

Grandma Flynn, I deduced, was crazy. Her good man drank himself to death at age 35. He left her with a son and a daughter. The son had tuberculosis and left bright red patches on her snowy pillows before he left her for an attractive redhead who appeared to have everything but character. Her husband searched the night streets for her, and found her in many taverns with many men.

There was one child—Tom. Grandma Flynn brought him up as, in a sense, she did me. Her daughter was a crotchety epileptic who inflicted floggin accusations on Grandma. Sometimes, when Tom's mother visited him, the daughter waited until she left, then heated water and poured it on the sidewalk to scrub her steps from the premises.

Grandma Flynn had no past, no future, but it was no business of mine. When she wasn't ironing, she baked cakes for her church. She had no money, but she had flour, butter, chocolate and a stove. It is possible that she baked a thousand layer cakes to show her appreciation to God for his blessings.

I saw time as her mortal enemy. Grandma didn't. She was close to 80 when men came and took her daughter away to a state home. The rooms were empty of boarders—even those who did not pay—and sunbeams held floating specks of dust enthralled.

Tom was found unconscious on the Bowery in New York. He was sent to Sea View Hospital in Staten Island. Neighbors complained that Grandma was starving. Two big gentle policemen took her away. She wrung her hands and said they didn't understand—there was a cake in the oven.

Years later, I found her in the Hudson County poorhouse. She was no relative, no friend, but, unbidden, she kept tiptoeing through my mind. That's why I sat in the outer office.

She was bent forward, the face frightened, as she was led into the office. I tried to reassure her. Diamond tears quivered on her lower lids, but they didn't fall. "Where is Tommy?" she said. "Oh, Jim, you've come to take me home."

Hardly. I was broke. No editor wanted to pay for anything I might write. I held the bony hand. Could I tell her that Tommy had died? No. Could I explain that she was worn out, useless to the world on any level? No. I folded two one-dollar bills and pressed them into the hand.

"No," she said. "No. You're a man now. You have a wife and children." "For hairpins," I mumbled. I closed her knuckles over the money. She looked around and down the hall.

"Listen," she whispered. "Would you do a big favor for me?" I nodded. "I was always a churchgoer. I don't want to be buried in Potter's Field. Pride is a sin, but I don't want to go there. Will you . . . ?"

I kissed her cheek. The promise was made. I never returned to see Grandma Flynn. A doctor told me that she died, thankful for all the love he had shared with her. They dropped her in Potter's Field.

Grandma Flynn was nothing, compounded of nothing. Late at night, when the house is quiet, she tiptoes across my conscience, stepping lightly so that the pain is small. . .

Jobless Rate Up In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Unemployment in Ohio rose to 5.4 per cent in February, the Bureau of Employment Services reported today.

Persons out of work numbered 250,000 in February, compared to 218,000 unemployed in March, the bureau said.

Employment dropped in manufacturing industries by 1.9 per cent, mostly because of layoffs in the auto industry and labor disputes among auto, textile and construction machinery builders.

At the same time a slight increase was recorded in jobs filled in the government and service industries, the bureau said.

Unemployment for the year ending in February was up 4.5 per cent to 5.4 per cent of the civilian labor force. Total employment was up, however, 1.8 per cent.

Campaign Amendment Curbs Result Broadcasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Early presidential election returns could not be published or broadcast under a campaign reform bill amendment adopted by the Senate.

The purpose of the amendment, offered by Sen. Henry L. Bellmon, R-Okla., and approved by a 43-38 vote, is to prevent returns in the East from influencing voters in other parts of the country.

More amendments to the controversial bill continued to pile in today, adding to a stack already submitted and not yet acted on.

The bill includes provisions for use of tax funds to finance campaigns for federal offices as well as limitations on contributions and expenditures.

Hospital Group Saves $10 Million On Insurance

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Members of the Ohio Hospital Association have saved $10 million for the second straight year by operating their own unemployment insurance program, the organization said today.

These savings are passed on to patients in the form of lower cost services, the OHA claimed in a statement.

The federal government ordered all states in 1972 to provide unemployment compensation to all employees in nonprofit corporations, including hospital employees.

Nearly all of Ohio's 200 hospitals elected to enter a self-insuring program offered by the OHA, the group said.

The first ice skates were deer or ox ribs, strapped onto hide boots with leather throngs, according to the National Geographic Society.

Billingham To Hurl Opener

By ANDY LIPPMAN
AP Sports Writer

Gerald Ford and Jack Billingham have both been announced as starters for Thursday's major league baseball opener between the Cincinnati Reds and the Atlanta Braves in Atlanta.

But the vice president has a big advantage. He doesn't have to worry about serving up Hank Aaron's 714th home run.

"Everybody in the place is going to give him a standing ovation when he comes up to bat. My stomach is probably going to turn over a couple of times and I'll swallow hard. Then I'll have to get down to business," said the lanky Cincinnati pitcher who has given up five homers to Aaron in his career.

There's no indication that Aaron will definitely be in the Braves' line-up to continue his pursuit of Babe Ruth's career homer mark, other than Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's recent memo that he expected the 40-year-old star to make an appearance.

But if the homer does come, Billingham says it won't be the end of the world.

"It's not something that's going to haunt me the rest of my life," Billingham said. "Nobody will remember it a month later."

Ford was named as the White House starter for the opener, accepting an invitation from Kuhn and Reds' President Bob Howsam.

In exhibition games Tuesday, Minnesota bombed Boston 13-0, a split Philadelphia Phillies squad lost to Pittsburgh 10-2, while another squad beat the St. Louis Cardinals 8-4, the Chicago White Sox beat the Reds 7-6, the Milwaukee Brewers trimmed the Chicago Cubs 11-10, the New York Mets blanked the New York Yankees 3-0, the Detroit Tigers beat the Houston Astros 4-2, the Atlanta Braves edged the Baltimore Orioles 3-2, the California Angels beat University of Southern California 8-5, and Los Angeles Dodgers beat San Francisco 10-8.

The game between Montreal and Kansas City was called off because of rain.

The ball throwers out won't be worth anything near what the record-breaking ball hit out of the park by Aaron will bring. Spalding, whose baseballs are used by both major leagues, got into the ball bidding business Tuesday, offering $15,000 for the ball Aaron hits for No. 715.

Meanwhile, the Texas Rangers were sold by Bob Short to a Dallas-Fort Worth group for $10 million dollars.

Short, who retained 10 per cent of the team, said, "I did everything I could in Washington to make the team a success, and I wouldn't stay with this team if I didn't believe it eventually will pay dividends."

Chicago Cubs pitcher Milt Pappas topped a list of several players who were trimmed by clubs shuffling their rosters in preparation for opening-day play.

Pappas, 34, is one victory shy of becoming the third pitcher to notch 100 victories in each league. While pitching in the American League, he compiled 110 victories, while he has won 99 games in the National League.

Cougars Top Knights In WHA, 7-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I played goal, defense and forward in my sleep last night, and I woke up this morning a wreck," said Chicago Cougar Player-Coach Pat Stapleton.

"We all felt we had to make the playoffs because if you don't, nobody pays any attention to the good season you had," Stapleton said Tuesday night after the Cougars defeated the Jersey Knights 7-3 to clinch a spot in the World Hockey Association playoffs.

Jan Popiel scored three goals in the victory, as Chicago moved to an insurmountable 4-0 lead going into the final period.

The Cougars will play either New England or Toronto in the first round of the East playoffs this coming weekend.

In the other WHA game, the Toronto Toros nipped Edmonton 3-2.

In the National Hockey League, the New York Islanders beat Pittsburgh 3-2, Philadelphia stormed Minnesota 6-3, and St. Louis defeated California 5-3.

Linksmen Top Flaget

Circleville's golf squad turned in a 160-174 win over visiting Bishop Flaget Tuesday at the Pickaway Country Club.

Jeff Spires and Mark McFadden tied for medalist honors with 39s, Terry Spellacy and Mike Currie both carded 41s while Jim England had a 42 for the Tigers.

M. Earnce led Bishop Flaget with a 40, J. Burns and V. Gaus both carded 44s. J. Melaragno had a 46 and M. Ball tallied 49.

Circleville will host Lancaster and Bishop Watterson 4 p.m. today and will be at home with Wehrle and Madison Plains 4 p.m. Thursday. Both matches will be at Pickaway Country Club.

Aspromonte Ponders Opening Day Lineup

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Cleveland Indians Manager Ken Aspromonte is still pondering his opening day lineup as the Tribe prepares to head east for Saturday's season opener in New York's Shea Stadium.

Manager Gene Mauch of the Montreal Expos has been a major league pilot 15 years.

named The Associated Press Coach of the Year today.

The modest transplanted Hoosier scored a runaway victory over Marquette's Al McGuire, a man whom Sloan beat just as easily for the national title.

The 47-year-old Sloan collected 81 points to 35 for McGuire in balloting by the nation's sports writers and broadcasters.

Notre Dame's Dick Phelps placed third with 24 votes, Michigan's Johnny Orr was fourth with 19 and UCLA's John Wooden, who has won this award five times, was fifth with 14.

Preaching "love" among his players, Sloan directed the Wolfpack to a 30-1 record this season, including the 76-64 victory over Marquette in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's finals.

But he's not overly impressed with

Bill Bunetta Sets Clinic At Circle D

Bill Bunetta, a member of the AMF Staff of Champions and an ABC Hall of Fame bowler, will conduct two clinics and roll a pair of exhibition matches Saturday at Circle "D" Lanes.

BILL BUNETTA

At 1 p.m., Bunetta will hold a clinic, roll a three-game match with local bowler Linda Owens and give instructions and tips to bowlers in action on the lanes.

He will return at 7 p.m. with a clinic and instructions and tips to bowlers in action. His evening match will be a three game series with local kegler Barry Fisher.

Bunetta began bowling in 1942 and has become known as "The Professor" by his fellow pros and better bowlers everywhere. Because of his indepth knowledge of the sport and his ability to impart it to others, AMF utilizes him extensively in clinic and instructor forums.

He has rolled five sanctioned "300" games and a total of 22 perfect games overall. His highest sanctioned series is 836 and he holds a 208 average over a 10-year span.

his part in the formidable accomplishments.

"People give coaching too much credit," he has often said. "Players win the games, not the coaches."

Sloan has mystical rapport with his players, as well as an enormous attachment. In his eighth season, those ingredients have helped him compile a 145-71 record, including a 27-0 mark last year when the Wolfpack was on NCAA probation for recruiting violations.

Prior to taking over the North Carolina State post, Sloan coached at Presbyterian College, The Citadel and Florida. His overall coaching record is 358-208 and he has won Coach of the Year honors in three different conferences — the Southern, Southeastern and twice in the Atlantic Coast Conference. He has guided the Wolfpack to

Logan Elm's baseball team wore its hitting shoes Tuesday in a game against visiting Amanda-Clearcreek, bombing the Aces, 28-3.

Paced by Greg Justus, Scott Pontius and Jeff Reichelderfer, the Braves boomed 21 hits, six for extra bases.

Pontius drove in seven runs, going four for four at the plate with a pair of singles, a double and a 2-run homer.

Reichelderfer drove in four runs with three singles, a double and a 3-run homer in the third inning in five trips to the plate. Greg Justus drove in four runs with three singles and a lead-off homerun in the second inning.

Steve Rawlins smacked a grand slam homerun in the second inning. Mark Justus drove in three runs with three singles. Derek Morris drove in two runs with one single. Chuck Cave drove in a run with a sacrifice fly. Ron Stevens hit a single, Randy Pontius two singles to drive in one run and Mark Skinner was credited with run batted in.

LE Coach Vic Pontius used three pitchers, Scott Pontius, Derek Morris and Tim Justus. They gave up five singles, walked four and struck out 11.

Hitting singles for Amanda-Clearcreek were Jim Destadio, Mike

three ACC titles.

Sloan's emergence as the nation's No. 1 coach moves Wooden out of the spotlight, temporarily at least. The UCLA coach was named Coach of the Year in 1967, 1969, 1970, 1972 and 1973.

Other coaches receiving votes this year: Charles Riddl, Pitt (10); Ted Owens, Kansas (8); Lute Olson, Long Beach State (5); Roy Skinner, Vanderbilt (3); Eddie Sutton, Creighton (2); Don Donohoe, Dayton (2) and Fred Schaus, Purdue (2).

Receiving one vote each: Ken Trickey, Oral Roberts; Norm Blenberger, New Mexico; John Morrison, Canisius; Dick Harter, Oregon; Dee Rowe, Connecticut; Joe Stowell, Bradley; Lefty Driesell; Jud Hattcote, Montana; C. M. Newton, Alabama and Jack McKinney, St. Joseph's, Pa.

Cassill, Bud Cordle, Keith Kelley and Tom McKenzie. Russ Martin was the first of four pitchers used by the Aces. They allowed 21 hits, walked nine and fanned two.

The Braves, one and one for the season, are scheduled to host Westall 4:30 p.m. today, weather permitting. Amanda-Clearcreek has a one and two record.

NFL Gets Into Signing Game

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer
Long months remain before the football season opens officially, but the way things have been going in the offseason, the games could prove an anticlimax.

The National Football League, made more fully aware of the World Football League by the bombshell signings of the three Miami Dolphin stars Sunday, reached deep into its pocketbook Tuesday and came up with two first-round draft choices.

Massive defensive tackle Carl Barzilauskas agreed to terms with the American Conference New York Jets for a three-year contract reported as high as $650,000, while the Chicago Bears signed No. 1 choice Raymond Bryant of Tennessee State — a linebacker.

In both cases, the WFL made strong overtures to the college stars, only to lose in the bargaining through doubts that it — regardless of Messrs. Csonka, Warfield and Kiick — will prove itself viable this summer.

"I put a lot of emphasis on playing in the NFL," said Bryant, the second-round pick of the Washington-Baltimore Ambassadors. "We had doubts the WFL would get off the ground."

Barzilauskas, 6-foot-6 and 265

pounds, felt the same way. The offer from the New York Stars was termed "substantial" by the big tackle's lawyer, and covered fewer years, but Barzilauskas expressed concern over the numerous franchise shifts the WFL already has suffered.

That fact apparently didn't matter to Oakland Raider veteran quarterback Ken Stabler, who jumped to the WFL Birmingham Americans — starting with the 1976 season — for a multi-year contract one agent said made him the highest-paid player in the sport's history.

It wasn't the money that brought about the move. "Getting back to the South was pretty important to me," said the 27-year-old — the AFC's leading passer last season and engineer of a 9-4-1 playoff season for the Raiders.

"I was born in the South, raised in the South, played football in the South (at Alabama), and I'd like to continue to do so."

But money may draw five starting players from the Baltimore Colts to the WFL as it did former All-Pro wide receiver Gary Collins to the Ambassadors and Houston Oilers quarterback Ed Hargett to the Honolulu Hawaiians Tuesday.

Baltimore linebackers Mike Curtis and Ted Hendricks, defensive end Roy

Hilton, running back Don McCauley and safety Rick Volk all are in the option year of their contracts and have expressed readiness to jump.

Miami Dolphins safety Jake Scott may find that there's enough money to purchase his services for the Honolulu Hawaiians. The Miami Herald reported in its Wednesday editions that Scott "is close" to a multi-year, six-figure contract with the WFL team.

So the Miami crisis continues. Thirteen other Dolphins have not yet signed their contracts for the coming season, and a number of that group are toying with the purse strings of the WFL owners.

Foreman-Ali Fight Set For Zaire?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Zaire sounds an unlikely place for a world heavyweight title fight between George Foreman and Muhammad Ali. But a British company is so sure of success that it is ready to pump $3 million into it.

Hemdale Lesisure Corp. says it has put up $1.5 million in front money to ensure the fight takes place next September.

A spokesman said the firm expects the promotion to cost it an additional $1.5 million to $2 million besides the front money.

Doubts have been cast on a world title fight in Africa. There are problems over television relay, hotels and press facilities. But if the fight comes off it could be the most lucrative sports spectacle in history.

The Hemdale group is active in movie production and distribution, music and gambling.

The firm took its name from film actor David Hemming and his partner John Daly, who founded it. Hemming is now out of the business. Daly runs it in association with television personality David Frost.

Prospects for the fight actually getting off the ground have been blanketed in confusion since Foreman smashed Ken Norton to defeat in Venezuela last week.

But Daly himself is leading a team to Kinshasa within the next two weeks to check out television problems. Zaire is not equipped with a television ground station — essential for the fight to be beamed up to satellites for transmission around the world.

Central Ohio Fishing Group Formed

A new organization was termed Monday to protect and develop fishing in a seven-county area of Central Ohio. Nearly 100,000 licensed fishermen reside in Franklin, Delaware, Union, Madison, Pickaway, Fairfield and Licking Counties. Each year their sport potential has been eroded away through competition with other water-related sports, pollution and poor planning.

The name of the new sportfishing group is the FRANKLIN ANGLERS. Officers elected at the organizational meeting were: Richard L. Paugh, president; John Murphy, vice president; Robert A. Boyd, secretary-treasurer. Directors include Marion (Red) Trabue, Dale Mount, Bill Harper, Archie Emswiler, Phil McGinnis, Skip Butts, Joe Plotnick, Rick Farquhar, Bob Lothamer and Joe Biggioni.

All sport fishermen living in the seven-county area and primarily interested in saving the native fishes of Central Ohio are urged to attend the April 10 meeting at Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Morse Road, Columbus at 7:30 p.m. Questions or applications may be obtained from Secretary Bob Boyd 3230 Norwood Avenue, Columbus 43224 (614-267-9438).

Up to this point in time, fishermen using the waters of Central Ohio have been unable to withstand the inroads of increased population, the ravages of agricultural and industry-related pollution or the organized take-over of fish spawning areas by powerboaters and skiers.

The Franklin Anglers will work with state and local governments to regain clean water, fishing easements and protection from further take-over of scarce local prime fishing areas. We invite all fishermen using the waters in the seven-county area to attend the next meeting and lend their support to this federation of fishermen.

During their first official board meeting, the Franklin Anglers voted to affiliate with the Conservation Society, a statewide non-profit group whose programs include the Teen-age Fishing Clinics and the Pollution Hotline. Each fisherman joining the Franklin Anglers will also be a member of the Society.

During January, more money on thoroughbred racing at Bowie in Maryland was wagered at New York City off-track betting windows than at the racetrack.

N.C. State's Dave Thompson Named Player Of The Year

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — David Thompson, the Associated Press College Basketball Player of the Year, honed his skills by playing against the "big boys" at Gardner-Webb College in Boiling Springs, N.C., not far from his Shelby home.

While in Crest High School, he would amble over to the college for some fun games against the likes of Artis Gilmore, now the premier 7-foot-2 center of the American Basketball Association Kentucky Colonels. He also went up against George Adams, now with San Diego of the ABA.

"I had to learn to jump high to shoot over them," said the two-time All-American, a mere 6-foot-4.

The 19-year-old North Carolina State junior's awesome leaping ability is just one fact of his superlative all-around play.

Thompson, who repeatedly has said he will shun pro offers until he graduates, because "the money will still be there," led State to a 30-1 record and the NCAA championship last week.

Just as his team dethroned perennial champion UCLA in the NCAA semifinals, Thompson replaced the Bruins' Bill Walton as AP player of the year. Thompson received the vote of 128 of the nation's sports writers and sportscasters to 85 for the 6-foot-11

Walton. Nine other players each got one vote.

Statistics tell only part of the story of his worth to Coach Norman Sloan's team. In 31 games Thompson averaged 26 points, 7.9 rebounds, shot 55 per cent from the floor and 75 at the foul line.

In four NCAA tournament games he scored 115 points, all against nationally ranked teams.

Counting his final year in high school and play on the State freshman team, Thompson-led teams are 117-8 for four years.

By JIM DAUBEL
Written for Associated Press

Three things interest fishermen most this time of year: the calendar, weather forecasts and water temperatures.

Those three factors all have a bearing on angling success throughout the year but never more so than in the spring.

The calendar is important because it is the framework in which everything else fits.

It is helpful, for example, to know when fish spawn, how they are affected by heat and cold or when to anticipate seasonal changes in the life styles.

Weather has a strong influence any time, but primarily in spring and fall when it affects water temperatures most dramatically.

Now that ice has thawed, water temperature becomes the dominant influence on the nuptial activities of spring-spawning fish, and that includes virtually all species native to Ohio.

The fisherman who knows the preferred spawning temperature for various species and who takes advantage of fish spawning habits is most likely to succeed early in the year.

Walleyes, for instance, spawn in some rivers and on gravel shoals or reefs in lakes. The species begins spawning activities in earnest when the water reaches about 45 degrees.

It is then that river fishing for walleyes is most productive, although until that 45 degrees is reached action is slow in the few Ohio streams in which "pickerel" spawn.

Largemouth bass begin hitting lures when water temperatures are in the high 40s but bigmouth fishing reaches a high point of the year along in May when spawning commences with water readings in the low 60s.

Once aware specifically of when bass spawn, fishermen can capitalize on their knowledge of the fact that bedding bass defend their nest, often by striking intruding baits.

Smallmouth bass undertake serious springtime activity when the water warms to about 55 degrees, white bass at about 60 degrees and most panfish at about 67 degrees.

Water temperatures are critical throughout the year. Each species has its own preferred temperature and anglers who concentrate their efforts at those times do best.

For future reference, here are optimum temperatures at which degrees various species feed: largemouth bass, 70 degrees; smallmouth, 67; bluegills, 72; perch, 68; crappie, 68; walleye, 60; pike and muskie, 65; salmon, 55.

Waldrop Proves Top Trackster

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Tony Waldrop does not like to speculate about his goals for the coming outdoor track season.

It's partly because Waldrop, 22, is a self-effacing young man. It's also partly because the University of North Carolina senior knows it would be hard to top the indoor season he has just completed.

Waldrop's name was hardly a household word — even among track buffs — when the season began. But he turned in perhaps the finest indoor campaign an American middle distance runner has ever enjoyed.

In seven consecutive races, he broke the four-minute "barrier" in the mile. No other indoor runner had ever done that more than twice in a row.

He ran the first four-minute mile in the history of the Millrose Games in New York. He won the national collegiate championship.

In San Diego, he shattered the ten-year-old world indoor record of 3:56.4 with a 3:55.0 clocking. A week later, running virtually alone in the Atlantic Coast Conference championships, he nearly lapped the field with a time that matched the old indoor record.

Former Michigan State football coach Duffy Daugherty received the Walter Camp Football Foundation Award in 1973.

MILLION DOLLAR TRIO—Miami Dolphin players, from left, Paul Warfield, Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick, pose at Toronto, Can., after signing with the Toronto Northmen of the World Football League for a combined contract of $3 million. The trio will play out their option with the Dolphins this year before joining the Northmen.

Billingham To Hurl Opener

By ANDY LIPPMAN
AP Sports Writer

Gerald Ford and Jack Billingham have both been announced as starters for Thursday's major league baseball opener between the Cincinnati Reds and the Atlanta Braves in Atlanta.

But the vice president has a big advantage. He doesn't have to worry about serving up Hank Aaron's 714th home run.

"Everybody in the place is going to give him a standing ovation when he comes up to bat. My stomach is probably going to turn over a couple of times and I'll swallow hard. Then I'll have to get down to business," said the lanky Cincinnati pitcher who has given up five homers to Aaron in his career.

There's no indication that Aaron will definitely be in the Braves' line-up to continue his pursuit of Babe Ruth's career homer mark, other than Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's recent memo that he expected the 40-year-old star to make an appearance. But if the homer does come, Billingham says it won't be the end of the world.

"It's not something that's going to haunt me the rest of my life," Billingham said. "Nobody will remember it a month later."

Ford was named as the White House starter for the opener, accepting an invitation from Kuhn and Reds' President Bob Howsam.

In exhibition games Tuesday, Minnesota bombed Boston 13-0, a split Philadelphia Phillies squad lost to Pittsburgh 10-2, while another squad beat the St. Louis Cardinals 8-4, the Chicago White Sox beat the Reds 7-6, the Milwaukee Brewers trimmed the Chicago Cubs 11-10, the New York Mets blanked the New York Yankees 3-0, the Detroit Tigers beat the Houston Astros 4-2, the Atlanta Braves edged the Baltimore Orioles 3-2, the California Angels beat University of Southern California 8-5, and Los Angeles Dodgers beat San Francisco 10-8.

The game between Montreal and Kansas City was called off because of rain.

The ball Ford throws out won't be worth anything near what the record-breaking ball hit out of the park by Aaron will bring. Spalding, whose baseballs are used by both major leagues, got into the ball bidding business Tuesday, offering $15,000 for the ball Aaron hits for No. 715.

Meanwhile, the Texas Rangers were sold by Bob Short to a Dallas-Fort Worth group for $10 million dollars.

Short, who retained 10 per cent of the team, said, "I did everything I could in Washington to make the team a success, and I wouldn't stay with this team if I didn't believe it eventually will pay dividends."

Chicago Cubs pitcher Milt Pappas topped a list of several players who were trimmed by clubs shuffling their rosters in preparation for opening-day play.

Pappas, 34, is one victory shy of becoming the third pitcher to notch 100 victories in each league. While pitching in the American League, he compiled 110 victories, while he has won 99 games in the National League.

The 1-3 combination of Stormy Bob and Intruder Jeffrey paid $59.00 in the daily double.

Cougars Top Knights In WHA, 7-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I played goal, defense and forward in my sleep last night, and I woke up this morning a wreck," said Chicago Cougar Player-Coach Pat Stapleton.

"We all felt we had to make the playoffs because if you don't, nobody pays any attention to the good season you had," Stapleton said Tuesday night after the Cougars defeated the Jersey Knights 7-3 to clinch a spot in the World Hockey Association playoffs.

Jan Popiel scored three goals in the victory, as Chicago moved to an insurmountable 4-0 lead going into the final period.

The Cougars will play either New England or Toronto in the first round of the East playoffs this coming weekend.

In the other WHA game, the Toronto Toros nipped Edmonton 3-2.

In the National Hockey League, the New York Islanders beat Pittsburgh 3-2, Philadelphia stormed Minnesota 6-3, and St. Louis defeated California 5-3.

Linksmen Top Flaget

Circleville's golf squad turned in a 160-174 win over visiting Bishop Flaget Tuesday at the Pickaway Country Club.

Jeff Spires and Mark McFadden tied for medalist honors with 39s, Terry Spellacy and Mike Currie both carded 41s while Jim England had a 42 for the Tigers.

M. Earnce led Bishop Flaget with a 40, J. Burns and V. Gaus both carded 44s. J. Melaragno had a 46 and M. Ball tallied 49.

Circleville will host Lancaster and Bishop Watterson 4 p.m. today and will be at home with Wehrle and Madison Plains 4 p.m. Thursday. Both matches will be at Pickaway Country Club.

Aspromonte Ponders Opening Day Lineup

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Cleveland Indians Manager Ken Aspromonte is still pondering his opening day lineup as the Tribe prepares to head east for Saturday's season opener in New York's Shea Stadium.

Manager Gene Mauch of the Montreal Expos has been a major league pilot 15 years.

named The Associated Press Coach of the Year today.

The modest transplanted Hoosier scored a runaway victory over Marquette's Al McGuire, a man whom Sloan beat just as easily for the national title.

The 47-year-old Sloan collected 81 points to 35 for McGuire in balloting by the nation's sports writers and broadcasters.

Notre Dame's Dick Phelps placed third with 24 votes, Michigan's Johnny Orr was fourth with 19 and UCLA's John Wooden, who has won this award five times, was fifth with 14.

Preaching "love" among his players, Sloan directed the Wolfpack to a 30-1 record this season, including the 76-64 victory over Marquette in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's finals.

But he's not overly impressed with his part in the formidable accomplishments.

"People give coaching too much credit," he has often said. "Players win the games, not the coaches."

Sloan has mystical rapport with his players, as well as an enormous attachment. In his eighth season, those ingredients have helped him compile a 145-71 record, including a 27-0 mark last year when the Wolfpack was on NCAA probation for recruiting violations.

Prior to taking over the North Carolina State post, Sloan coached at Presbyterian College, The Citadel and Florida. His overall coaching record is 358-208 and he has won Coach of the Year honors in three different conferences—the Southern, Southeastern and twice in the Atlantic Coast Conference. He has guided the Wolfpack to

Logan Elm's baseball team wore its hitting shoes Tuesday in a game against visiting Amanda-Clearcreek, bombing the Aces, 28-3.

Paced by Greg Justus, Scott Pontius and Jeff Reichelderfer, the Braves boomed 21 hits, six for extra bases.

Pontius drove in seven runs, going four for four at the plate with a pair of singles, a double and a 2-run homer.

Reichelderfer drove in four runs with three singles, a double and a 3-run homer in the third inning in five trips to the plate. Greg Justus drove in four runs with three singles and a lead-off homer in the second inning.

Steve Rawlins smacked a grand slam homer in the second inning. Mark Justus drove in three runs with three singles. Derek Morris drove in two runs with one single. Chuck Cave drove in a run with a sacrifice fly. Ron Stevens hit a single, Randy Pontius two singles to drive in one run and Mark Skinner was credited with run batted in.

LE Coach Vic Pontius used three pitchers, Scott Pontius, Derek Morris and Tim Justus. They gave up five singles, walked four and struck out 11.

Hitting singles for Amanda-Clearcreek were Jim Destadio, Mike

three ACC titles.

Sloan's emergence as the nation's No. 1 coach moves Wooden out of the spotlight, temporarily at least. The UCLA coach was named Coach of the Year in 1967, 1969, 1970, 1972 and 1973.

Other coaches receiving votes this year: Charles Riddl, Pitt (10); Ted Owens, Kansas (8); Lute Olson, Long Beach State (5); Roy Skinner, Vanderbilt (3); Eddie Sutton, Creighton (2); Don Donohoe, Dayton (2) and Fred Schaus, Purdue (2).

Receiving one vote each: Ken Trickey, Oral Roberts; Norm Ellenberger, New Mexico; John Morrison, Canisius; Dick Harter, Oregon; Dee Rowe, Connecticut; Joe Stowell, Bradley; Lefty Driesell; Jud Heathcote, Montana; C. M. Newton, Alabama and Jack McKinney, St. Joseph's, Pa.

Cassill, Bud Cordle, Keith Kelley and Tom McKenzie. Russ Martin was the first of four pitchers used by the Aces. They allowed 21 hits, walked nine and fanned two.

The Braves, one and one for the season, are scheduled to host Westfall 4:30 p.m. today, weather permitting. Amanda-Clearcreek has a one and two record.

NFL Gets Into Signing Game

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Long months remain before the football season opens officially, but the way things have been going in the offseason, the games could prove an anticlimax.

The National Football League, made more fully aware of the World Football League by the bombshell signings of the three Miami Dolphin stars Sunday, reached deep into its pocketbook Tuesday and came up with two first-round draft choices.

Massive defensive tackle Carl Barzilauskas agreed to terms with the American Conference New York Jets for a three-year contract reported as high as $650,000, while the Chicago Bears signed No. 1 choice Waymond Bryant of Tennessee State — a linebacker.

In both cases, the WFL made strong overtures to the college stars, only to lose in the bargaining through doubts that it — regardless of Messrs. Csonka, Warfield and Kiick — will prove itself viable this summer.

"I put a lot of emphasis on playing in the NFL," said Bryant, the second-round pick of the Washington-Baltimore Ambassadors. "We had doubts the WFL would get off the ground."

Barzilauskas, 6-foot-6 and 265

pounds, felt the same way. The offer from the New York Stars was termed "substantial" by the big tackle's lawyer, and covered fewer years, but Barzilauskas expressed concern over the numerous franchise shifts the WFL already has suffered.

That fact apparently didn't matter to Oakland Raider veteran quarterback Ken Stabler, who jumped to the WFL Birmingham Americans — starting with the 1976 season — for a multi-year contract one agent said made him the highest-paid player in the sport's history.

It wasn't the money that brought about the move. "Getting back to the South was pretty important to me," said the 27-year-old — the AFC's leading passer last season and engineer of a 9-4-1 playoff season for the Raiders.

"I was born in the South, raised in the South, played football in the South (at Alabama), and I'd like to continue to do so."

But money may draw five starting players from the Baltimore Colts to the WFL as it did former All-Pro wide receiver Gary Collins to the Ambassadors and Houston Oilers quarterback Ed Hargett to the Honolulu Hawaiians Tuesday.

Baltimore linebackers Mike Curtis and Ted Hendricks, defensive end Roy

Hilton, running back Don McCauley and safety Rick Volk all are in the option year of their contracts and have expressed readiness to jump.

Miami Dolphins safety Jake Scott may find that there's enough money to purchase his services for the Honolulu Hawaiians. The Miami Herald reported in its Wednesday editions that Scott "is close" to a multi-year, six-figure contract with the WFL team.

So the Miami crisis continues. Thirteen other Dolphins have not yet signed their contracts for the coming season, and a number of that group are toying with the purse strings of the WFL owners.

Foreman-Ali Fight Set For Zaire?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Zaire sounds an unlikely place for a world heavyweight title fight between George Foreman and Muhammad Ali. But a British company is so sure of success that it is ready to pump $3 million into it.

Hemdale Lesisure Corp. says it has put up $1.5 million in front money to ensure the fight takes place next September.

A spokesman said the firm expects the promotion to cost it an additional $1.5 million to $2 million besides the front money.

Doubts have been cast on a world title fight in Africa. There are problems over television relay, hotels and press facilities. But if the fight comes off it could be the most lucrative sports spectacle in history.

The Hemdale group is active in movie production and distribution, music and gambling.

The firm took its name from film actor David Hemming and his partner John Daly, who founded it. Hemming is now out of the business. Daly runs it in association with television personality David Frost.

Prospects for the fight actually getting off the ground have been blanketed in confusion since Foreman smashed Ken Norton to defeat in Venezuela last week.

But Daly himself is leading a team to Kinshasa within the next two weeks to check out television problems. Zaire is not equipped with a television ground station — essential for the fight to be beamed up to satellites for transmission around the world.

Central Ohio Fishing Group Formed

A new organization was formed Monday to protect and develop fishing in a seven-county area of Central Ohio. Nearly 100,000 licensed fishermen reside in Franklin, Delaware, Union, Madison, Pickaway, Fairfield and Licking Counties. Each year their sport potential has been eroded away through competition with other water-related sports, pollution and poor planning.

The name of the new sportfishing group is the FRANKLIN ANGLERS. Officers elected at the organizational meeting were: Richard L. Paugh, president; John Murphy, vice president; Robert A. Boyd, secretary-treasurer. Directors include Marion (Red) Trabue, Dale Mount, Bill Harper, Archie Emswiler, Phil McGinnis, Skip Butts, Joe Plotnick, Rick Farquhar, Bob Lothamer and Joe Biggioni.

All sport fishermen living in the seven-county area and primarily interested in saving the native fishes of Central Ohio are urged to attend the April 10 meeting at Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Morse Road, Columbus at 7:30 p.m. Questions or applications may be obtained from Secretary Bob Boyd 3230 Norwood Avenue, Columbus 43224 (614-267-9438).

Up to this point in time, fishermen using the waters of Central Ohio have been unable to withstand the inroads of increased population, the ravages of agricultural and industry-related pollution or the organized take-over of fish spawning areas by powerboaters and skiers.

The Franklin Anglers will work with state and local governments to regain clean water, fishing easements and protection from further take-over of scarce local prime fishing areas. We invite all fishermen using the waters in the seven-county area to attend the next meeting and lend their support to this federation of fishermen.

During their first official board meeting, the Franklin Anglers voted to affiliate with the Conservation Society, a statewide non-profit group whose programs include the Teen-age Fishing Clinics and the Pollution Hotline. Each fisherman joining the Franklin Anglers will also be a member of the Society.

During January, more money on thoroughbred racing at Bowie in Maryland was wagered at New York City off-track betting windows than at the racetrack.

N.C. State's Dave Thompson Named Player Of The Year

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — David Thompson, the Associated Press College Basketball Player of the Year, honed his skills by playing against the "big boys" at Gardner-Webb College in Boiling Springs, N.C., not far from his Shelby home.

While in Crest High School, he would amble over to the college for some fun games against the likes of Artis Gilmore, now the premier 7-foot-2 center of the American Basketball Association Kentucky Colonels. He also went up against George Adams, now with San Diego of the ABA.

"I had to learn to jump high to shoot over them," said the two-time All-American, a mere 6-foot-4.

The 19-year-old North Carolina State junior's awesome leaping ability is just one fact of his superlative all-around play.

Thompson, who repeatedly has said he will shun pro offers until he graduates, because "the money will still be there," led State to a 30-1 record and the NCAA championship last week.

Just as his team dethroned perennial champion UCLA in the NCAA semifinals, Thompson replaced the Bruins' Bill Walton as AP player of the year. Thompson received the vote of 128 of the nation's sports writers and sportscasters to 85 for the 6-foot-11

Walton. Nine other players each got one vote.

Statistics tell only part of the story of his worth to Coach Norman Sloan's team. In 31 games Thompson averaged 26 points, 7.9 rebounds, shot 55 per cent from the floor and 75 at the foul line.

In four NCAA tournament games he scored 115 points, all against nationally ranked teams.

Counting his final year in high school and play on the State freshman team, Thompson-led teams are 117-8 for four years.

By JIM DAUBEL

Written for Associated Press

Three things interest fishermen most this time of year: the calendar, weather forecasts and water temperatures.

Those three factors all have a bearing on angling success throughout the year but never more so than in the spring.

The calendar is important because it is the framework in which everything else fits.

It is helpful, for example, to know when fish spawn, how they are affected by heat and cold or when to anticipate seasonal changes in the life styles.

Weather has a strong influence any time, but primarily in spring and fall when it affects water temperatures most dramatically.

Now that ice has thawed, water temperature becomes the dominant influence on the nuptial activities of spring-spawning fish, and that includes virtually all species native to Ohio.

The fisherman who knows the preferred spawning temperature for various species and who takes advantage of fish spawning habits is most likely to succeed early in the year.

Walleyes, for instance, spawn in some rivers and on gravel shoals or reefs in lakes. The species begins spawning activities in earnest when the water reaches about 45 degrees.

It is then that river fishing for walleyes is most productive, although until that 45 degrees is reached action is slow in the few Ohio streams in which "pickerel" spawn.

Largemouth bass begin hitting lures when water temperatures are in the high 40s but bigmouth fishing reaches a high point of the year along in May when spawning commences with water readings in the low 60s.

Once aware specifically of when bass spawn, fishermen can capitalize on their knowledge of the fact that bedding bass defend their nest, often by striking intruding baits.

Smallmouth bass undertake serious springtime activity when the water warms to about 55 degrees, while bass at about 60 degrees and most panfish at about 67 degrees.

Water temperatures are critical throughout the year. Each species has its own preferred temperature and anglers who concentrate their efforts at those times do best.

For future reference, here are optimum temperatures at which degrees various species feed: largemouth bass, 70 degrees; smallmouth, 67; bluegills, 72; perch, 68; crappie, 68; walleye, 60; pike and muskie, 65; salmon, 55.

Waldrop Proves Top Trackster

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Tony Waldrop does not like to speculate about his goals for the coming outdoor track season.

It's partly because Waldrop, 22, is a self-effacing young man. It's also partly because the University of North Carolina senior knows it would be hard to top the indoor season he has just completed.

Waldrop's name was hardly a household word — even among track buffs — when the season began. But he turned in perhaps the finest indoor campaign an American middle distance runner has ever enjoyed.

In seven consecutive races, he broke the four-minute "barrier" in the mile. No other indoor runner had ever done that more than twice in a row.

He ran the first four-minute mile in the history of the Millrose Games in New York. He won the national collegiate championship.

In San Diego, he shattered the ten-year-old world indoor record of 3:56.4 with a 3:55.0 clocking. A week later, running virtually alone in the Atlantic Coast Conference championships, he nearly lapped the field with a time that matched the old indoor record.

Former Michigan State football coach Duffy Daugherty received the Walter Camp Football Foundation Award in 1973.

MILLION DOLLAR TRIO—Miami Dolphin players, from left, Paul Warfield, Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick, pose at Toronto, Can., after signing with the Toronto Northmen of the World Football League for a combined contract of $3 million. The trio will play out their option with the Dolphins this year before joining the Northmen.

Texas Rangers Sold By Short

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — A full year and I might be in forever. It just depends on how things go. A million dollars is still a lot of money to me."

Short drew the wrath of the Washington, D.C., press and some club owners when he moved the team from the nation's capital to Texas.

"I feel metroplex ownership of the team will give it a big boost," Short said. "It's good it is now locally owned."

Corbett of Fort Worth, who parlayed a $300,000 loan from the Small Business Administration into a company that reported sales of $55 million in 1973, said, "I come from the Bronx and grew up in the shadows of Yankee Stadium. It's always been a dream to own a major league team."

Corbett's numerous partners include Edward "Buzz" Kemble, a Fort Worth lawyer; Amon Carter Jr., publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram; Bill Harvey, a Fort Worth businessman; Dr. Bobby Brown, a heart specialist and former New York Yankee star third baseman; Dallas businessmen Bill Seay, Charley Sharp and Ray Nasher; and Clayton Walker, a friend of Corbett's and a prominent businessman in Pittsburg, Kan.

He said, "I'll stay in at least

Norman, Griffey Spark Reds Win

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Fred Norman and Ken Griffey saved their best for last and returned home with the Cincinnati Reds buoyed by strong showings in Tuesday's final exhibition baseball outing.

Norman, one of the Reds' four starters, turned in a one-hit stint for four innings and Griffey, saddled by a slump earlier, showed signs he was ready to pick up where he left off last fall. Griffey drilled a ninth inning single to score the winning run in a 7-6 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

He had a two-run homer in the seventh inning to put the Reds in front 6-5.

"I'm just glad to end spring training that way," said the fleet Pennsylvanian who turns 24 next week.

Elevated from the minors at the end of last season, Griffey was a sensation. He hit .384 in 25 games to keep the Reds in the thick of the pennant race.

His two hits represented his best outing since going 3-for-5 two weeks ago. Since then he has been 2-for-14.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of ABC-TV says the way children's weekend morning TV shows now are rated should be replaced with an industrywide system to measure not only audience size and makeup, but also the effect of such programs and their commercials on young viewers.

James E. Duffy made the proposal in an interview. He took a much stronger stand than in a recent speech in which he urged the industry only to "take a long, hard look at the possibility of eliminating children's audience ratings on the weekend, on a national basis."

He was asked in the interview if he personally would like to see that type of rating abolished.

"Sure," he replied. "I would. But you can't do it alone. That's the whole point. This is such a competitive business and the stakes are so high that one network ... can't do it alone."

The ratings employ two basic methods, according to a spokesman for the A.C. Nielsen ratings service. One is a device attached to TV sets in 1,200 homes. It records the channel to which the set is tuned.

The other method is a diary, kept by 2,400 households. The residents, for a fee, note in them who watched what and when. One-third of these diaries are collected weekly for evaluation, the spokesman said.

Despite advances in the quality of children's programming, Duffy said, this ratings system isn't enough now. What's needed, he said, is a "broaderbased study, a much larger sample, that would not only indicate popularity, but also would give (viewer) attitudes toward program and commercial content."

He said the samplings should be "in-depth," made every four months to allow for a more thorough audience assessment, and include what he called "psychographics," or the kinds of reactions programs and commercials cause in viewers.

He said he'd like to hear if the Nielsen ratings service is interested in the idea "along the criteria we've laid out here."

But for the time being, Duffy said, there could be a test study of the proposal, possibly lasting two years and financed either by the three networks and independent stations, or by the National Association of Broadcasters, which claims 531 television stations as members.

He said he hasn't proposed it yet to officials at CBS, NBC or the NAB because he's been travelling on business and also is "waiting to see what kind of action the other two networks will take."

"And if there isn't some in a short period of time, then I'm going to my management and see what kind of action we can go with from there."

Both NBC and CBS were noncommittal when asked by a spokesman if they supported Duffy's proposal to eliminate TV ratings for children's weekend programs and replace them with the system outlined by the ABC executive.
